REAGAN PUTS U.C. UNDER EMERGENCY

Policy Reversal At S.F. State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Acting president S. I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State College, in a reversal of policy, said today that under state law striking teachers are considered automatically resigned, but they can be rehired without prejudice.

Hayakawa told a news conference that members of the striking American Federation of Teachers — about 275 — who missed classes without cause for five straight days "resigned under provisions of the state education code." The school has 1,300 teachers.

"We cannot simply reinstate those who have automatically resigned," said Hayakawa. "This is an action that rests with the state Personnel Board and must be initiated through requests of the individual concerned."

Last week, rather than remove striking AFT members, the college business office merely docked them their salaries for the days they missed. A school spokesman said at that

Authorizes Use Of Highway Patrol

BERKELEY (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has declared "a state of extreme emergency" exists at the University of California campus at Berkeley, where a strike by several hundred students is now in its 15th day.

In an unprecedented move late yesterday, Reagan declared the emergency and authorized use of highway patrolmen to put down disturbances.

The campus itself was relatively quiet after a day of turmoil Tuesday that saw two dozen hurt and 20 arrested. Two demonstrators were arrested yesterday, but there was no violence.

In issuing his proclamation, Reagan invoked the state Disaster Code and said the California Highway Patrol's assistance would "continue as long as necessary. There are about 800 state patrolmen in the Bay Area available for campus duty.

In a special news conference in Sacramento, Reagan assailed the "terrible condtions" on the Berkeley campus, the "clear

MORE RAIN FORECAST

Lightning, Winds Down Trees, Darken Many Areas

Another in a series of punishing winter storms struck Marin last night, knocking out power to hundreds of homes.

Lightning, hail, heavy rain and fierce winds lashed the county much of the night.

The storm sent rainfall totals over two inches in most of the county since the beginning of the new streak of bad weather Monday.

MORE RAIN SEEN

More rain is expected tonight as the Weather Bureau predicted an 80 per cent chance of showers. Cloudy skies were forecast for tomorrow.

Winds reached 95 miles per hour on Mount Tamalpais and 38 miles per hour at Hamilton Air Force Base last night.

In Kentfield, an aluminum storage hut at Marin Catholic High School disintegrated in high wind. Pieces of debris were scattered around the baseball field and some were blown onto Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

MANY TREES DOWN

A spokesman for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. said trees tumbling on power lines interrupted service in six Marin communities. Hardest hit was San Rafael, where an unknown number of PG&E customers were without power for periods over three hours.

Power failures listed by PG&E were: at 4:30 p.m. in the Country Club area of San Rafael, with service restored an hour later; a tree snapped a power line in Stinson Beach at 4:40 p.m., interrupting service in that community and in Bolinas for periods until 9:30 p.m.; in the area of Chula Vista, Coleman and Prospect drives in San Rafael from 8:51 p.m. to 12:20 a.m.

Power also failed in East San Rafael, including the canal area, and in San Quentin Village at 9:05 p.m. when a utility pole snapped in high winds near the San Quentin Prison exit of Highway 17. Service was restored within an hour in East San Rafael, but customers in San Quentin Village were without power until 4 a.m. because the pole had to be replaced.

Service was interrupted for two hours in the Spencer Avenue area of Sausalito at 9:30 p.m. when a tree severed a power line, according to PG&E, and about 25 customers were without service from about 9:30 p.m. to 5 a.m. at the end of Lovell

Smog Agency Bans Backyard Burning

Barbecues Still Legal; Marin Protests Futile

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO—A ban on all backyard burning after Dec. 31 of this year was ordered yesterday by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District's board of directors.

The ban will apply throughout the six counties in the district—Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda and Contra Costa counties—unless some areas manage to qualify for a temporary variance under the district's regulations.

The ban will not bar barbecues.

The 12-member board voted 9-1 for the ban. Marin Supervisor William A. Gnoss cast the only "no," explaining his fellow supervisors had voted unanimously against the ban until the problem of solid waste disposal is solved on a regional basis. San Francisco supervisors Peter Tamaras and William C. Blake were absent.

Voting for the ban was Marin's other representative, San Rafael City Councilman John A. Miskimen. His own council voted 3-0 on Jan. 6 to oppose the ban, with Miskimen absenting himself from the council vote.

According to the district's staff, backyard burning is the source of 920 tons of pollutants emitted daily in the district. These 920 tons are only about 8 per cent of the total of 10,215 tons emitted daily, but are 26 per cent of the 3,631 tons over which the district has control. This is because two thirds of the 10,215 tons come from motor vehicles, which are regulated by the state, not by the district.

The district has considered such a ban in past years, but each time backed away in the face of storms of protest from homeowners and city and county officials. This time, while opposition still was heavy, the ban also drew strong support, particularly from health groups.

Yesterday's vote was followed by a two-and-a-half-hour hearing in the San Francisco Board of Supervisors' chambers in City Hall.

D. J. Callaghan, the district's chief administrative officer, noted that the district's hearing board could grant variances to areas with "special problems."

Nixon Will Visit Partners In NATO

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon announced today he would leave Feb. 23 for a five-nation visit to America's European allies. He said he hoped the visit would help "strengthen and revitalize" the U. S. relations with its NATO partners.

Nixon told his second presidential news conference that he planned to talk with the U. S. negotiating team at the Paris peace talks and also visit Pope Paul VI on the trip.

The visit, his first outside the country since becoming President, will take him to six cities — Brussels, London, Berlin, Bonn, Rome and Paris.

Nixon said in reply to a question that he did not see any possibility at this time that he would meet with Communist negotiators while in Paris. He said he did not rule out such a meeting later if Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U. S. negotiator, or other U. S. officials thought it wise.

He said he wanted to get from Lodge a complete report on the progress of the negotiations and any recommendations Lodge or his team might have, "with regard to new initiatives" the United States might take in the peace talks.

He said he would have "individual face to face meetings" with heads of government in each of the five nations, with only an interpreter present when needed.

Accompanying Nixon on the trip will be Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser. Mrs. Nixon will not, however accompany him since the nature of the trip is a working one.

Nixon said that on his return from Europe he will explore through diplomatic channels the possibility of arranging a "well prepared summit meeting" with leaders of the Soviet Union.

He said he felt that such a meeting —if preceded by adequate diplomatic preparation —"could be in our interest and in their interest."

Nixon described his forthcoming trip as the "first step in strengthening and revitalizing the American-European community" which he said was one of the great forces for peace in the world.

In addition to talking to the Belgian leaders in Brussels,

BAGLEY REPORTS

Consultant Asks Justice Overhaul

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A complete overhaul of California's system of justice, from the courts to the prisons, was urged today in a report on the system by consultants hired by the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Their study, apparently the first done in California, was presented by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, in a press conference this afternoon in the Capitol. Bagley was the chairman of the committee when the $14,000 pilot study was commissioned.

It was done by Ronald Goldfarb of Washington, D.C., and by Operations Research Inc., a Santa Monica management analysis firm. Goldfarb, who has advised other states on how to update their justice systems, was on the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's staff in the Department of Justice.

The 113-page report, "Problems in the Administration of Justice in California," analyzes, criticizes and makes suggestions on a broad range of topics, including the "free trial, fair press" dilemma and automobile accident litigation, and seeks to isolate some of the reasons for delay in the courts.

"Particularly interesting," said Bagley in an announcement of the press conference, is its urging the adoption of procedures to expedite the handling of persons arrested in urban riots.

The report is divided into three areas — criminal justice, civil justice and court administration.

Citing "inequities" in the present juvenile justice system, the report suggested special attention be given the issue by a subcommittee. The present system discriminates against the poor, and only 5 per cent of the children put in institutions come from middle class families, according to Goldfarb.

He also questioned whether

Third Paris Peace Round Is Fruitless

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said today the United States does "not regard the 17th parallel as a permanent political boundary" marking two Vietnams.

Addressing his remarks to the Communist side in the third session of the Paris peace conference, Lodge was seeking to undermine Communist arguments against restoration of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), the six-mile-wide buffer zone which runs roughly along the 17th parallel.

Lodge Spoke after North Vietnamese delegation leader Xuan Thuy had once again rejected the U.S. proposal that both sides respect the DMZ as a first step towards peace.

Thuy had said that the U.S. proposal was an attempt "to perpetuate the partition of Vietnam."

Chief Viet Cong negotiator Tran Buu Kiem, in the opening speech of today's session, warned that there could be no progress in the conference so long as the administration of South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu remained in power.

In a speech that seemed to foreshadow a long deadlock in the talks, Kiem said, "the Paris conference will not be able to progress as long as the Thieu-Ky-Huong administration remains."

The commission's chief executive officer, F. J. Hortig, did not comment on the Santa Barbara problem directly, nor on the frequently mentioned possibility of a similar situation occuring in San Pablo Bay.

He was repeatedly criticized for the way he handled the hearing, and accused of being an advocate of the proposal as he assured public officials and private groups that the drilling, if permitted, would not be offensive.

The hearing, requested by the Contra Costa County Board of supervisors and held in its chambers in Martinez, was specifically intended to gather public opinion in Contra Costa County on a proposal to lease acreage off the county's shore for oil and gas exploration.

However, concerned persons and groups from throughout the Bay Area appeared to protest the plan, claiming that whatever happened in one part $7.5 Million Capital Outlay For Petaluma?

By BONNIE BARD

Capital outlay projects totaling nearly $7.5 million — with more than $4.5 million suggested in possible bond issues — were presented to the Petaluma City Council in a study session yesterday afternoon.

Futurt projects covering the next seven years were presented by the streets, parks and recreation, fire and police departments. The council had little comment on the proposals presented by the department heads, but agreed a series of study sessions would be required to explore all of the proposed projects.

City Engineer David Young presented 14 street improvements projects, eight of which were estimated to cost $724,950 and be financed through gas tax funds, and six other projects totaling $4,635,000 that would have to be paid for through bond issues.

First on Young's priority list to be financed by gas taxes is the widening of Washington Street to four lanes from Kentucky to Redwood streets and the construction of a new Washington Street bridge. Councilmen have alrtady allocated the $412,000 for this project and will receive construction bids on Feb. 18.

The second project includes improvements to South

Conrad Hilton Jr. Dies At 42

WEST LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Conrad N. (Nicky) Hilton Jr., the handsome hotel heir whose storybook marriage to Elizabeth Taylor ended quickly in divorce, was found dead from cardiac arrest yesterday in his home. He was 42.

Hilton

A family spokesman said Hilton, son of hotel tycoon Conrad Hilton Sr., had recently returned to his plush home in the Holmby Hills section after being hospitalized for a heart condition. The spokesman said the condition had worsened in recent days.

Hilton was found dead in his bedroom, the spokesman said.

The wavy-haired Hilton became the first of Miss Taylor's five husbands when she was 17 and he was 23, in what was considered the Hollywood wedding of the year.

After his divorce from Miss Taylor, Hilton said he would never marry again, but in 1958 he wed Patricia McClintock, heiress to the McClintock oil fortune. The couple has two sons, Conrad N. Hilton III, 9, and Michael Otis Hilton, 7.

After his second marriage, Hilton settled down and become an active businessman. At the time of his death, he was a director of Trans World Airlines, Hilton International Co., and El Paso National Bank. He also served as president of the Conrad N. Hilton Foundation.

Post For Kuchel?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ex-Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California may soon get a job in the Nixon administration, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew hinted yesterday.

Kuchel, a Republican, was defeated for renomination last year and now practices law in Los Angeles.

"Somehow I have the feeling that Tom Kuchel will be back in government pretty soon," Agnew said at a luncheon of the William Randolph Hearst Foundation's Senate Youth Program.

Death Sentence

WARSAW (UPI)—A court in Lodz yesterday sentenced to death Stanislaw Modzelewski, 44, the "Vampire of Galkowek," for slaying seven women. The Polish news agency PAP said Modzelewski was convicted of killing women ranging in age from 17 to 85 in the forests near Galkowek. The Polish press nicknamed him the "Vampire of Galkowek."

Blaze Kills 30

KORIYAMA, Japan (AP) — At least 30 persons were killed in a fire which swept through the Banko Paradise resort hotel here during a snowstorm last night. About 300 hotel guests and employees were forced to flee into the freezing cold, and many of them were in their sleeping garments.

Police said one of the dead was believed to be a Swiss woman, but she was the only foreigner found so far.

Twenty-eight persons also were injured. Police said all were Japanese.

Romance Denied

LONDON (AP) — Beatle Paul McCartney today denied persistent rumors that he is to marry a divorced member of the Eastman Kodak family.

"It's not true," said the only bachelor Beatle, who broke his engagement to actress Jane Asher last July.

Since November, he has been seen constantly with Linda Eastman, divorced 25-year-old daughter of American art collector Lee Eastman and brother of the new general counsel for the Beatles' Apple organization. She has a 5-year-old daughter.

Czech In Kremlin

Communist sources said only that the talks were held "in an atmosphere of sincere friendship and cordiality" and covered subjects of mutual interest.

Marko arrived yesterday for a five-day visit to get acquainted with Soviet leaders. He became foreign minister on Jan. 1, succeeding Jiri Hajek who was forced out because he spoke out at the United Nations against the Soviet invasion of his country.

Red Arms Urged

MOSCOW (AP) — A leading Soviet newspaper called today for strengthening of the Soviet Army, "equipping it with the newest technology and educating the people in a spirit of readiness for the unexpected."

Sovetskaya Rossiya Soviet Russia, published by the Communist party's central committee, said "madmen in the United States and revenge seekers in West Germany are carrying around plans for world slaughter, but we are not helpless before this danger."

Moon Rock Asked

HOBART, Tasmania (UPI)—The Tasmania Museum today appealed to Prime Minister John Gorton to ask the United States for a sample of the moon's surface if U.S. astronauts are successful in making a landing.

Pea Soup Fog Fare

LONDON (AP) — The London fog is disappearing, an expert said today, but the metropolis is getting noisier.

Dr. Basil Brown, scientific adviser to the Greater London Council, said in a report to the chief municipal authority that banning of coal fires from "smokeless zones" has made the city's traditional fog shroud a rarity.

But Brown said increasing night flights into London airport and a general rise in road traffic have made the city noisier.

NATO Warning

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would increase the danger of a relatively small incident in Europe escalating into a nuclear war, Adam Yarmolinsky, a former assistant secretary of defense under Robert S. McNamara said yesterday.

Yarmolinsky, since 1966 a professor at Harvard Law School, was speaking to a House of Commons committee on defense and foreign affairs. Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeu has said one result of a review of Canadian foreign policy his government now is conducting might be Canada's withdrawal from NATO.

Ireland Strike-Hit

DUBLIN (AP) — A strike by 3,000 industrial maintenance men virtually paralyzed the Irish Republic today, forcing 35,000 other persons out of work and depleting food supplies.

More than 200 factories, throughout the country were closed. Dublin holtels operated with skeleton staffs as strike pickets outside tried to stop customers entering.

Five large bakeries closed, causing an acute bread shortage. The stoppage hit the docks, closing the port of Cork in the southeast.

Three unions are directly involved — the National Engineering and electrical Trade Union, the Amalgamated Engineering and Foundry Workers Union and the Electrical Trade Union.

Lawmaker Puts Hold On Antimissile Sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman L. Mendel Rivers of the House Armed Services Committee has told the Defense Department his group will approve no construction plans for Sentinel antiballistic missile sites until the Nixon administration makes known its intentions about the program.

"It doesn't mean the committee is against the ABM, said a committee source who saw the letter Rivers has sent to Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird. "Mainly it's waiting to see what President Nixon and Mr. Laird want to do."

Both Laird and Rivers have been supporters of the Sentinel, a "thin" system proposed to blunt any nuclear missile attack Communist China might be able to mount during the 1970s. It is not designed to thwart a Soviet attack.

Nixon endorsed the proposed Sentinel shield during his campaign, but has made no comment on it since taking office.

It has come under increasingly heavy criticism, most recently from a bipartisan Senate group of Vietnam war dissenters led by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Residents of towns near areas under consideration for missile launchers or guidance radar installations also have voiced loud complaints when Army engineers showed up to check out possible sites. Congress authorized the beginning of site acquisition last year.

Even Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who pointed out that he voted for a token start on the system last year, said he thought "the time has come to take a cooler and more deliberate look at this proposal and I'm willing to do that."

Fulbright Sees Ratification Of Nuclear Pact By March

"I see no reason to delay", Fulbright said yesterday after President Nixon called for prompt Senate action.

Nixon said in a message to the Senate that "ratification of the treaty at this time would advance this administration's policy of negotiation rather than confrontation with the USSR."

The presidential message was the signal the committee had been awaiting to clear the treaty and send it to the floor for the two-thirds vote of approval needed for ratification.

After several weeks of indecision, the same committee approved the treaty last September.

But it was never brought to a vote.

The Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia turned many members against the idea of approving a pact to which Russia was also a party.

The President said in his message urging ratification that "my request at this time in no sense alters my condemnation of that Soviet action."

But, Nixon continued, "I believe the treaty can be an important step in our endeavor to curb the spread of nuclear weapons . . ."

Under the pact, nuclear powers would pledge that they would deliver neither atomic weapons nor the know-how for making them to nonnuclear powers.

The "have-not" countries would promise they would neither seek nor accept nuclear weapons.

Fulbright welcomed Nixon's call for prompt action.

He said he was particularly impressed by Nixon's emphasis on "negotiation rather than confrontation."

Superliner's Woes May Be Ironed Out

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's trouble-plagued Queen Elizabeth II may finally get to sea in late March, an engineering firm said yesterday.

The firm that built the turbine rotors that caused trouble on an unsuccessful voyage to the Canary Islands in December said its engineers had found the trouble.

Use Of Water Matches Income

PASADENA (AP)—A family's income determines its water consumption, a water consulting firm says.

"The higher the standard of living, the more water is used by the people," an engineer from James M. Montgomery Consulting Engineers Inc., said.

The firm's survey showed, for example, that residents of Beverly Hills, where per capita income is $4,929, used an average of 313 gallons of water a day, while residents of Compton, where per capita income is $1,727, used an average of 89 gallons a day.

Astronomers Take Picture Of A Pulsar

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — University of California astronomers have succeeded in photographing a pulsar—one of science's newest mysteries—in the act of flashing its beam of light more brightly than 50 suns.

One member of the staff at university's Lick Observatory yesterday called the achievement "a little as though a biologist had actually seen a real live unicorn and asked his colleagues to explain it."

Pulsars have been stirring the curiosity and imagination of scientists since their discovery in 1967 by radio astronomers at Cambridge University in England.

Since that time 27 similar objects have been discovered in various parts of the Milky Way.

One of the most widely held theories on the origin of pulsars is that they are "neutron stars"—the remnants of ordinary stars that exploded in monstrous bursts of energy eons ago.

The pulsar photographed by the U.C. staff is located in the Crab Nebula, some 6,500 light years away.

The scientists, headed by Dr. E. Joseph Wampler and Dr. Joseph S. Miller, attached a special image - intensifying television camera, supplied by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, to the 120-inch telescope at Lick Observatory.

To separate out visual pulses from steady star light, they used an ingenious rotating disc like the shutter on a stroboscopic light device.

As Wampler and Miller recorded the phenomonen, the pulsar flashed on and off once every 33 thousandths of a second. At its dimmest, the pulsar was essentially invisible. At its maximum it flared 50 times more brightly.

Flu Crisis Eases

TOKYO (UPI)—More than 222,780 persons have come down with the flu throughout Japan but the outbreak appears to have passed its peak at least in the Tokyo area, the Health and Welfare Ministry said yesterday.

Tobacco Industry Bracing For Fight On TV Ban Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The tobacco industry braced today for a fight to the death over a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposal to bar cigarette advertising from radio and television.

The impact—if the ban were to go into effect—was beyond immediate grasp. It raised questions as to what would happen to:

The nation's smokers, who light so many cigarettes it averages out to 4,195 for every man, woman and child each year.

The nation's health, for which there are government estimates that a third of all deaths of men between 35 and 69 are related to cigarettes.

The tobacco farmers, who raise the nation's No. 4 or 5 cash crop.

The radio-television industry, where tobacco firms spend $312 million a year in advertising.

Many barriers stood between the FCC proposal of Wednesday and the actual banning of cigarette advertising from the airwaves. First, Congress, which has a strong contingent of tobacco country congressmen, must let a 1965 law, which provides only for cigarette labeling, expire June 30. Then, the FCC must formally enact its proposal. And along the way at every stage, there was sure to be tremendous controversy.

Chairman Rosel H. Hyde told a news conference the FCC voted 6 to 1 in favor of the proposed restrictions on the ground that smoking causes "an epidemic of death and disabilities."

Hyde cited Health, Education and Welfare Department statistics showing there were 50,000 deaths a year from lung cancer.

Works Hard, Rests Hard, Lives To 105

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Ford, then chimed in with "he doesn't work too much any more, but he really rests." But he does walk the dog around the block almost daily.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The tobacco industry braced today for a fight to the death over a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposal to bar cigarette advertising from radio and television.

The impact—if the ban were to go into effect—was beyond immediate grasp. It raised questions as to what would happen to:

The nation's smokers, who light so many cigarettes it averages out to 4,195 for every man, woman and child each year.

The nation's health, for which there are government estimates that a third of all deaths of men between 35 and 60 are related to cigarettes.

The tobacco farmers, who raise the nation's No. 4 or 5 cash crop.

The radio-television industry, where tobacco firms spend $312 million a year in advertising.

Many barriers stood between the FCC proposal of Wednesday and the actual banning of cigarette advertising from the airwaves. First, Congress, which has a strong contingent of tobacco country congressmen, must let a 1965 law, which provides only for cigarette labeling, expire June 30. Then, the FCC must formally enact its proposal. And along the way at every stage, there was sure to be tremendous controversy.

Chairman Rosel H. Hyde told a news conference the FCC voted 6 to 1 in favor of the proposed restrictions on the ground that smoking causes "an epidemic of death and disabilities."

Hyde cited Health, Education and Welfare Department statistics showing there were 50,000 deaths a year from lung cancer.

Works Hard, Rests Hard, Lives To 105

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Ford, then chimed in with "he doesn't work too much any more, but he really rests." But he does walk the dog around the block almost daily.

AN OILY MESS — There's no fishing at Santa Barbara today as a thick carpet of heavy crude oil continues to gum beaches and everything on them. The boat is an example of the crisis caused by an oil slick flow. (UPI Telephoto)

House, Senate Press Probe Of Oil Slick

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Senate and House investigators are pressing their probes of the seeping mess of crude oil fouling the Santa Barbara coastline as the slick gums beaches and harbors.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on air and water pollution, said the current oil leak from a Union Oil Co. well is another justification for a broadening of federal legislation to handle such disasters.

He said he will visit the Santa Barbara area tomorrow to view the damage firsthand and confer with officials on the scene.

Union Oil president Fred Hartley, appearing before the subcommittee yesterday in Washington, said there was no way the eruption of the well could have been reasonably anticipated.

This was the first instance of such trouble in more than 6,000 drillings and it has given new information for future operations, Hartley told senators.

Muskie told the oil president it was clear the industry was not prepared to handle pollution from another leak if one occurs.

In Sacramento, Assembly Democratic Leader Jesse M. Unruh urged the federal government to order an immediate halt to the off-shore oil drilling.

Unruh said the drilling should be stopped until there are "firm guarantees" against such future incidents.

In remarks prepared for delivery at Mount San Antonio College, the Inglewood legislator also criticized what he called Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel's "hat in hand" attitude toward oil companies drilling in the channel.

"By his own statements Secretary Hickel has made it clear that he cares more about the sensibilities of the oil companies than he does about the dangers to California's beaches and ocean wildlife," Unruh said.

Railroad Fans' Outing Sold Out

The Bay Area Electric Railroad Association said today its special sleeping car train excursion Feb. 22-23 has been sold out but plans are underway for another one.

The brief revival of the sleeping car, once the nation's most sophisticated mode of travel but now rapidly moving towards extinction, will take train buffs on the two-day excursion up the Feather River Canyon and over the Inside Gateway route in Lassen and Plumas Counties.

Excursion manager John C. Plytnick said no firm dates have been set for a second excursion. Information on plans for the repeat of the special rail trip may be obtained by writing or calling Plytnick at 294 Union Street, San Rafael.

Gun Theft Denied

Paul Kenneth McSweeney, 21, of San Anselmo, accused of stealing a carbine from a car on April 29, 1968, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court. A preliminary hearing was set for March 4.

Enemy Fire Hits 1,000th U.S. Copter

SAIGON (UPI)—Ground fire downed the 1,000th U.S. helicopter lost in South Vietnam during the war, military spokesmen said today. American B52 bombers trying to prevent buildups for a new Communist offensive raided all four regions of the country.

In Saigon, the U.S. command announced American battlefield deaths last week were the greatest in seven weeks. And military spokesmen said Communist forces sustained their heaviest losses in four months.

198 U.S. DEATHS

During the week ending last Saturday, the spokesmen said, 198 Americans died on Vietnam battlefields and another 1,549 were wounded. The losses were the highest since the week ending Dec. 14 when 222 were killed. Communist losses last week were placed at 3,190, the largest number of killed since 3,398 died during the week ending Sept. 28, 1968.

Air Force B52s dropped at least 250,000 pounds of bombs on Communist base camps, suspected troop concentrations and weapons and storage sites last night and today. The bombers struck northern-most Quang Tri Province, Kontum Province in the Central Highlands, Vinh Long Province in the Mekong Delta and Tay Ninh Province 59 miles northwest of Saigon.

BASE BUILDING

At Tay Ninh, the province capital near the Cambodian border 50 miles northwest of Saigon, informed Allied military sources said today the North Vietnamese have started to build permanent, uncamouflaged base camps in Cambodia for the first time in the war.

Wednesday, American intelligence sources said captured Communist documents contained orders for major attacks during the Tet, or lunar new year holiday, which starts Feb. 17.

Inter-city Panel To Study Problems

The recently created Inter-city Committee in the Ross Valley will meet at 8 p.m. on March 6 in the San Anselmo council chamber at city hall to discuss mutual problems, including heavy equipment sharing or rental, animal control, trash disposal and traffic problems.

The study panel is composed of two members each from Ross, Fairfax and San Anselmo city councils.

LAND QUESTION

Railroad Leaves Tiburon Hanging

The fate of the abandoned but highly prized Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way in Tiburon is still up in the air because the railroad still hasn't indicated what it intends to do with the land, Tiburon Mayor William R. Bremer said last night.

The right-of-way is considered the keystone to projected development of an extensive parks, recreation and trails system on the Tiburon Peninsula.

Bremer told a joint session of the Tiburon City Council and the city's parks and recreation commission that despite promises of quick answers by rail officials, the railroad still has offered no clue to its plans for the right-of-way.

Specifically, he said, he had asked the railroad's real estate officer, attorney Vance Wolfe, how much the railroad wanted for the land. Wolfe, who assured Bremer "I'm the man to deal with," promised an answer several days ago but still hasn't called back, according to the mayor.

Nor has Wolfe given an answer on the conditions under which the city might use the land while Northwestern Pacific retains ownership, Bremer said.

He said any lease or rental arrangement for the right-of-way has definitely been ruled out. Apparently still a possibility is a plan under which the railroad would grant the city a license to use the land. Such an agreement, however, could be revoked at any time by the railroad, Bremer said.

The joint meeting was called to discuss priorities in the city's overall parks and recreation development plans. There was general agreement that acquisition of the right-of-way was the top priority although David Teather, park and recreation commissioner, suggested the so-called Paradise Drive Promenade was more important.

Teather said lack of pedestrian walkways along Paradise Drive is extremely dangerous to school children who must use it as well as other pedestrians. "It's just luck no one's been killed there," he told the joint session.

In another area, Bremer chided the commission for coming up with ideas for using lands for parks and recreation but offering no suggestions on how to get the land.

He said the commission's staff should study various methods of acquiring lands, then make recommendations on the best way to get it before it goes to the city council for action.

Commissioner Jeff Knight said the council should provide the commission with more "tools" — such as city ordinances — to facilitate its work, adding: "The commission shouldn't be required to draft ordinances. That's the council's job."

Commissioner Donald Loomis agreed that the parks panel could come up with suggestions, as Bremer wanted, but pointed out that it might take more money and staff than the commission has.

In other action, councilmen agreed in principle to a suggestion that a daylong seminar be held in late May or early June to involve the parks and recreations and planning commissions and the various other levels of the city government in putting together the city's budget.

Driver's Head Hurt

Retha E. Kunde, 65, of San Francisco, was treated for head injuries at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco after her car hit a guard rail at 9:10 a.m. yesterday on Richardson Bay bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Storm Front Poses A New Flood Peril

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern Californians, still reeling from last month's disastrous storms, evacuated hillside area homes today as new rainstorms revived threats of floods and mudslides.

In suburban Glendora, hardest hit by January's rains which caused 101 storm-related deaths and millions of dollars in damage, 10 families were awakened and evacuated to a nearby church, police said.

More than a dozen more households were alerted to prepare for evacuation as mud oozed through the streets, knocking down the barriers erected two weeks ago when the state's worst storms in 31 years struck.

County and city road crews worked feverishly in the predawn hours, reinforcing the barricades and constructing new ones. All of the Glendora area's police, firemen and sheriff's deputies were mobilized.

"We've got the same conditions now that we did last month," officer Erwin Fee said, "and we've been telling the people that. But most of them aren't evacuating yet. They're waiting to see what'll happen next."

Along the Los Angeles County coastline in the Malibu area, numerous roads were closed by flooding and mudslides. In the nearby Topanga Canyon area, also devastated by last month's storms, mud four feet deep covered the winding cliffside roads.

No homes in the area were immediately threatened, deputies said, but residents were being alerted to the hazardous road conditions and some were preparing to evacuate.

More than an inch of rain pelted the Los Angeles area in the early morning hours with no sign of slackening. Rain also battered Northern California but there were no reports of flooding or threatened damage.

Gale force winds reaching 50 miles per hour battered California's entire 1,000-mile coastline.

Walter Winchell Ends Column After 49 Years

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Walter Winchell, bereaved since his son's suicide at Christmastime, said yesterday he is giving up his Broadway column after 49 years.

Winchell, who stopped writing the column several weeks ago, said, "We've had a lot of heartaches and this is the time for me to step down. It's too much of a load to pick up again.

"I've been doing the column since 1920, and I'll be 72 in April."

Winchell, a former song and dance man, started writing for Vaudeville News. His column once appeared in nearly 1,000 papers, but recently has been down to about 100.

Winchell has been living in Scottsdale for several years with his wife, former Ziegfeld Follies girl June Magee, who suffers from a respiratory ailment.

Barrows read a letter from the board, terming the proposal "highly undesireable" and requesting the commission hold a hearing in Marin before taking final action.

At one time, acreage off the Marin shore was included in the staff's proposal to lease up to 15,000 acres of the 75,000-acre bay.

Last month, the commission's assistant executive, Donald J. Everitts reported the commission had dropped the Marin plans, but a later letter from Everitts to the county led officials to believe the commission still was eyeing the Marin shore.

Yesterday Hortig repeatedly said that only the east shore was being considered "at this time." If further studies or development indicate consideration should be given to drilling off Marin or Sonoma shores, hearings would be held in those counties, he said.

Hortig outlined steps leading up to issuance of drilling leases, showed favorable slides of such developments as mobile drilling platforms and screening of facilities, cited the commission's record of success on past leases and told of the dollar return to the state from the leases.

"The bay will not be turned into a forest of oil rigs," he assured the group.

But all 17 speakers indicated he had not convinced them the proposed drilling was a good idea.

Most frequent reasons for opposition were fear of oil leaks, interference with recreation, concern over disturbance of wildlife and "obnoxious" structures. Several also mentioned hazards presented by earthquake faults known to lie under the bay.

Among the opponents was a representative of a state agency, the Regional Water Quality Control board. He said the board's executive committee has opposed the plan unless applicants can satisfactorily prove there will be no problems.

John A. Nejedly, Contra Costa County district attorney, appeared as the county's representative and reported the chief reason for its opposition was pollution — in the bay and in the Sacramento-San Josquin Delta where, he said, water quality is directly related to the bay due to tidewater intrusion at times of low river flow.

Officials from Richmond, Berkeley and Pinole also spokes.

Eight conservation groups spoke against the plan, including Harold Gregg, president of the Marin Conservation League who urged counties to work together on such regional problems.

Speaking for the San Francisco Bay Chapter of the Sierra Club, Donald F. Anthrop, vice chairman of the executive committee, cited the Bay Conservation and Development Commission report which urges that structures be avoided in the bay.

"The BCDC report states, 'The value of the San Francisco Bay as a regional scenic resource outweighs the potential public benefits that might result from oil and gas exploration,'" he said.

Anthrop said the group "strongly opposes" the drilling, noting the lack of strong ocean current would make a leak difficult to clean up, a situation which would pose a major fire hazard.

Hortig, answering questions from the group of 40, said there is no specific request from any firm to explore the bay — the proposal came from the State Lands Commission staff.

Records of the hearing yesterday, along with a similar one Tuesday in Solano County, will be evaluated by the staff and submitted to the commission with a recommendation, probably in March.

have been exempt from burning controls since the district barred open burning in 1957. The vote yesterday eliminated this exemption.

Callaghan estimated last month that the ban will affect some 50,000 homeowners in Marin.

Of the 16 government agencies opposing the ban, 10 were from Marin, including the cities of San Rafael, Sausalito, San Anselmo, Mill Valley and Fairfax, the towns of Ross and Corte Madera, the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the Marin County Farm Bureau and the Novato Fire Protection District. None of the three government agencies favoring the ban was from Marin.

Of about 20 citizens or groups opposing the ban, either in written or oral testimony to the board, seven were from Marin.

Favoring the ban were the Marin Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, the county's health officer, and about a half dozen citizens. Dr. Albrecht, in a letter to the board, said she was arguing for the ban as a private person.

Fairfax City Councilman Frank J. Egger, noting the city is surrounded on three sides by open area, predicted that citizens will dump their rubbish in the hills and thus create "a serious fire hazard."

Enforcement of the ban, Administrative Officer Callaghan said, will require "the full cooperation of the fire departments in the district" to see that it is complied with.

William Peter Horen of San Anselmo objected that the ban was unnecessary because it involved only 90 tons of reactive gases that can become smog. But the district's engineer, Dr. Milton Feldstein of San Rafael, said these 90 tons accounted for 12 per cent of the 785 tons of gases a day that can become smog.

Edward W. Bullard Jr., president of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association, in a letter to the board, cited air pollution as "a major factor in the increasing incidence of emphysema — today's fastest growing cause of death.

The association's board of directors voted unanimously on Jan. 22 to support the ban, Bullard noted.

Also arguing for the ban was the Committee for Clean Air Now, a Palo Alto based citizens group promoting regulation of air pollution sources. Air pollution already costs a family of four $300 a year "in a million unnoticed ways," said the group's chairman, Mrs. Sarah L. Feldner.

Soot, smoke, dust, dirt and corrosion and sickness are some of the costs of air pollution, she said.

Robert B. St. Clair, a San Mateo County supervisor, said, as he successfully moved to adopt the staff's recommendation for a ban, "It's about time that the counties recognized that there is a solid waste disposal problem."

In other business, the board's executive committee voted before the hearing to seek legislation to pay directors $50 for each monthly meeting instead of the current $25. Callaghan said such a bill was "timely" because none of the state legislators "are running for election this year."

Deputy Sees Co-Eds Sharing Marijuana

Four 16-year-old East Bay high school girls were arrested at Stinson Beach Monday afternoon after a sheriff's deputy saw them sharing a marijuana cigarette on the beach.

One of the girls told the officer she had purchased three marijuana cigarettes but she would not say where. Officers said she still had one "roach" in her pocket as well as cigarette papers.

alcoholics should be treated as criminals, adding that alcoholism enters about one third of all criminal cases clogging the courts. An effective treatment program would also serve to remove more than half the overloaded jail population, he said.

Arguing that the present money bail system "inherently discriminates against the poor," Goldfarb suggested release without bail unless a person posed a danger to society. In such cases, "protective detention" may be necessary, he said, and the "constitutional propriety" of this approach should be explored.

The expanded use of citations also would help relieve police of their workload and free criminal courts of a huge volume of minor cases, he suggested. Citations replace the process of arrest, bail and jail with a simple notification to appear for trial.

To combat the failure of prisons to rehabilitate inmates, he proposed increased use of county jails and state subsidy to counties to rehabilitate jail inmates.

California's indeterminate sentence law, Goldfarb noted, is administered by unqualified paroling authorities. Also, "with increased public concern over rising crime waves, the Adult Authority is reportedly less ready to release men early. Officials quickly realize that they are not subjected to public pressure for keeping people in prison; only for the alternatives are they criticized," wrote Goldfarb.

Under civil justice, he proposed that compulsory insurance and comparative negligence could replace present systems of compensation for personal injury litigation, which he criticized as "costly and time-consuming."

Reforms also are overdue in the probate process and in the question of legal representation in civil cases for persons who cannot afford it. Small claims courts need, he said, to have simpler procedures, and poor persons should have access to arbitration and an ombudsman to assist them "with complaints against the bureaucracy."

His report also recommended a complete overhaul of court procedures to speed the administration of justice.

Goldfarb's report, noting its recommendations will require additional review by the Legislature before they could be carried out, suggested formation of a special joint legislative committee.

"Cooperation between both houses would be efficient and economic, as well as politically wise," he wrote, adding that existing committees and their staffs "are too overburdened with the regular business of the Legislature to undertake a new and major area of work."

He also proposed formation of a citizens advisory committee to work with the legislative committee.

Bagley, no longer a member of the Judiciary committee, reportedly may get the chairmanship of the special joint committee.

Hayakawa said the college can rehire all such faculty members as wish to be re-employed at their former rank and salary.

Meanwhile, the striking teachers faced deadline late today to let the administration know whether they will teach in the spring semester.

The teachers, members of Local 1352, had small picket lines up yesterday in defiance of the latest court injunction against their strike.

The injunction was issued by Judge Henry Rolph on Tuesday. He told the AFT that in the absence of any law specifically permitting it, public employes such as teachers "have no right to strike against the government."

On Jan. 8, two days before the strike began, he issued an earlier injunction which was ignored by the teachers.

Attorney Fights To Bar Court-Martial Tapes Use

The attorney defending a Airman 1/c Michael Locks at his court-martial for participating in uniform in a San Francisco peace march last year today strongly objected to a showing of a video tape of the demonstration to the trial panel.

It appeared almost certain, however, that attorney Richard J. Werthimer would lose his bid to keep the tape and voice recordings out of the trial.

Law officer Col. John H. Leonard, who serves as presiding judge at the court martial, said after viewing each of the four tapes that he thought they were "material and relevant."

He was expected to decide later today on whether the 90 minutes of tape will be shown to the seven-officer court which could give the 25-year-old airman four years in federal prison.

The trial panel was not in the courtroom this morning.

MICHAEL LOCKS
Airman on trial

The lean, bespectacled San Anselmo airman is charged with twice violating Air Force regulations forbidding airmen in uniform from participating in antiwar demonstrations.

Defense attorney Richard J. Werthimer objected to the tapes as "prejudicial" to Locks' case. The airman appeared in all four tapes but spoke only during the first one.

The court-martial entered its second day yesterday with the defense admitting Locks disobeyed an Air Force order by demonstrating Oct. 12 in uniform against the Vietnam war.

Defense attorney Richard J. Werthimer of San Anselmo, told the tribunal at Hamilton Air Force base that Locks did just that when he participated in an Oct. 12 antiwar rally in San Francisco.

During a recess in the trial, Locks indicated a possible line of defense when he told the Independent-Journal the Air Force was discriminating against him and other doves, when it banned his protesting in uniform while permitting uniformed hawks to speak for the war.

While handling the defense for Navy Lt. Susan Schnall, who was recently convicted of demonstrating in uniform, Werthimer attacked the legality of the order. She received a sentence of six months at hard labor which she was not required to serve.

Yesterday, the defense did succeed in knocking out a key prosecution witness. Special Air Force Investigator Gerald F. Barns started to tell the seven-member military court hearing the case that Locks had appeared on a television show in uniform in Washington D.C. prior to his antiwar activity in San Francisco.

Col. John H. Leonard, the law officer (judge) excused Barns, saying he did not want to hear evidence of an offense with which Locks is not charged.

When the prosecutor strongly objected, Leonard fired back: "I'm not trying to dictate how you try your case, but I am dictating what evidence you may bring in."

Locks, formerly of San Anselmo but who now lives in Richmond, faces a maximum sentence of four years imprisonment.

REAGAN

and continuing acts of violence, disorder and intimidation caused by a coalition of dissidents and criminal anarchists."

Reagan also proposed emergency legislation aimed at clamping down statewide on campus agitators,

The troopers will supplement local police. Alameda County Sheriff Frank I. Madigan, whose jurisdiction includes the campus, asked for the help of the riot-trained policemen.

University officials joined the sheriff in asking for state patrol help, but Chancellor Roger Heyns added that he regretted the emergency declaration was "required for technical reasons." He insisted that it "does not imply any change in our normal campus life."

Some 50 highway patrolmen joined 100 local police on campus yesterday to form a corridor for non-strikers to walk through Sather Gate, scene of most of Tuesday's violence.

The governor's legislative programs—much of which is already before the state's lawmakers—would:

Make it a crime for any student expelled or suspended from a state college, university, junior college or high school to enter the property without permission.

Provide that any student of a public educational institution convicted of a criminal offense arising out of a campus disturbance "shall be dismissed from that institution and shall be ineligible for admission or readmission to any state school or college for at least one year.

Provide that any faculty member or any other employee of a school convicted of an offense arising from a campus disturbance "shall be dismissed and ineligible for further employment in a state school or college without specific review and authorization by the governing body of such institution."

Call for a measure to prohibit a person from "bringing or possessing a loud speaker system or voice amplifier on the premise of an educational institution without permission."

The association's board of directors voted unanimously on Jan. 22 to support the ban, Bullard noted.

Also arguing for the ban was the Committee for Clean Air Now, a Palo Alto based citizens group promoting regulation of air pollution sources. Air pollution already costs a family of four $300 a year "in a million unnoticed ways," said the group's chairman, Mrs. Sarah L. Feldner.

Soot, smoke, dust, dirt and corrosion and sickness are some of the costs of air pollution, she said.

Robert B. St. Clair, a San Mateo County supervisor, said, as he successfully moved to adopt the staff's recommendation for a ban, "It's about time that the counties recognized that there is a solid waste disposal problem."

In other business, the board's executive committee voted before the hearing to seek legislation to pay directors $50 for each monthly meeting instead of the current $25. Callaghan said such a bill was "timely" because none of the state legislators "are running for election this year."

Deputy Sees Co-Eds Sharing Marijuana

Four 16-year-old East Bay high school girls were arrested at Stinson Beach Monday afternoon after a sheriff's deputy saw them sharing a marijuana cigarette on the beach.

One of the girls told the officer she had purchased three marijuana cigarettes but she would not say where. Officers said she still had one "roach" in her pocket as well as cigarette papers.

REVAMP

alcoholics should be treated as criminals, adding that alcoholism enters about one third of all criminal cases clogging the courts. An effective treatment program would also serve to remove more than half the overloaded jail population, he said.

Arguing that the present money bail system "inherently discriminates against the poor," Goldfarb suggested release without bail unless a person posed a danger to society. In such cases, "protective detention" may be necessary, he said, and the "constitutional propriety" of this approach should be explored.

The expanded use of citations also would help relieve police of their workload and free criminal courts of a huge volume of minor cases, he suggested. Citations replace the process of arrest, bail and jail with a simple notification to appear for trial.

To combat the failure of prisons to rehabilitate inmates, he proposed increased use of county jails and state subsidy to counties to rehabilitate jail inmates.

California's indeterminate sentence law, Goldfarb noted, is administered by unqualified paroling authorities. Also, "with increased public concern over rising crime waves, the Adult Authority is reportedly less ready to release men early. Officials quickly realize that they are not subjected to public pressure for keeping people in prison; only for the alternatives are they criticized," wrote Goldfarb.

Under civil justice, he proposed that compulsory insurance and comparative negligence could replace present systems of compensation for personal injury litigation, which he criticized as "costly and time-consuming."

Reforms also are overdue in the probate process and in the question of legal representation in civil cases for persons who cannot afford it. Small claims courts need, he said, to have simpler procedures, and poor persons should have access to arbitration and an ombudsman to assist them "with complaints against the bureaucracy."

His report also recommended a complete overhaul of court procedures to speed the administration of justice.

Goldfarb's report, noting its recommendations will require additional review by the Legislature before they could be carried out, suggested formation of a special joint legislative committee.

"Cooperation between both houses would be efficient and economic, as well as politically wise," he wrote, adding that existing committees and their staffs "are too overburdened with the regular business of the Legislature to undertake a new and major area of work."

He also proposed formation of a citizens advisory committee to work with the legislative committee.

time their names would remain on the payroll because the provision which would oust them was considered legally shakey.

Hayakawa said the college can rehire all such faculty members as wish to be re-employed at their former rank and salary.

Meanwhile, the striking teachers faced deadline late today to let the administration know whether they will teach in the spring semester.

The teachers, members of Local 1352, had small picket lines up yesterday in defiance of the latest court injunction against their strike.

The injunction was issued by Judge Henry Rolph on Tuesday. He told the AFT that in the absence of any law specifically permitting it, public employes such as teachers "have no right to strike against the government."

On Jan. 8, two days before the strike began, he issued an earlier injunction which was ignored by the teachers.

Attorney Fights To Bar Court-Martial Tapes Use

The attorney defending a Airman 1/c Michael Locks at his court-martial for participating in uniform in a San Francisco peace march last year today strongly objected to a showing of a video tape of the demonstration to the trial panel.

It appeared almost certain, however, that attorney Richard J. Werthimer would lose his bid to keep the tape and voice recordings out of the trial.

Law officer Col. John H. Leonard, who serves as presiding judge at the court martial, said after viewing each of the four tapes that he thought they were "material and relevant."

He was expected to decide later today on whether the 90 minutes of tape will be shown to the seven-officer court which could give the 25-year-old airman four years in federal prison.

The trial panel was not in the courtroom this morning.

MICHAEL LOCKS
Airman on trial

The lean, bespectacled San Anselmo airman is charged with twice violating Air Force regulations forbidding airmen in uniform from participating in antiwar demonstrations.

Defense attorney Richard J. Werthimer objected to the tapes as "prejudicial" to Locks' case. The airman appeared in all four tapes but spoke only during the first one.

The court-martial entered its second day yesterday with the defense admitting Locks disobeyed an Air Force order by demonstrating Oct. 12 in uniform against the Vietnam war.

Defense attorney Richard J. Werthimer of San Anselmo, told the tribunal at Hamilton Air Force base that Locks did just that when he participated in an Oct. 12 antiwar rally in San Francisco.

During a recess in the trial, Locks indicated a possible line of defense when he told the Independent-Journal the Air Force was discriminating against him and other doves, when it banned his protesting in uniform while permitting uniformed hawks to speak for the war.

While handling the defense for Navy Lt. Susan Schnall, who was recently convicted of demonstrating in uniform, Werthimer attacked the legality of the order. She received a sentence of six months at hard labor which she was not required to serve.

Yesterday, the defense did succeed in knocking out a key prosecution witness. Special Air Force Investigator Gerald F. Barns started to tell the seven-member military court hearing the case that Locks had appeared on a television show in uniform in Washington D.C. prior to his antiwar activity in San Francisco.

Col. John H. Leonard, the law officer (judge) excused Barns, saying he did not want to hear evidence of an offense with which Locks is not charged.

When the prosecutor strongly objected, Leonard fired back: "I'm not trying to dictate how you try your case, but I am dictating what evidence you may bring in."

Locks, formerly of San Anselmo but who now lives in Richmond, faces a maximum sentence of four years imprisonment.

and continuing acts of violence, disorder and intimidation caused by a coalition of dissidents and criminal anarchists."

Reagan also proposed emergency legislation aimed at clamping down statewide on campus agitators,

The troopers will supplement local police. Alameda County Sheriff Frank I. Madigan, whose jurisdiction includes the campus, asked for the help of the riot-trained policemen.

University officials joined the sheriff in asking for state patrol help, but Chancellor Roger Heyns added that he regretted the emergency declaration was "required for technical reasons." He insisted that it "does not imply any change in our normal campus life."

Some 50 highway patrolmen joined 100 local police on campus yesterday to form a corridor for non-strikers to walk through Sather Gate, scene of most of Tuesday's violence.

The governor's legislative programs—much of which is already before the state's lawmakers—would:

Make it a crime for any student expelled or suspended from a state college, university, junior college or high school to enter the property without permission.

Provide that any student of a public educational institution convicted of a criminal offense arising out of a campus disturbance "shall be dismissed from that institution and shall be ineligible for admission or readmission to any state school or college for at least one year.

Provide that any faculty member or any other employee of a school convicted of an offense arising from a campus disturbance "shall be dismissed and ineligible for further employment in a state school or college without specific review and authorization by the governing body of such institution."

Call for a measure to prohibit a person from "bringing or possessing a loud speaker system or voice amplifier on the premise of an educational institution without permission."

Shoreline Trustees Review Procedures

Shoreline Unified School District trustees last night continued its review of the policies and procedures guide for the new school district, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

Policies reviewed included procedures for purchasing, accounting, auditing, transportation, food services and cafeteria. The board also discussed the use of district and facilities by the public, McCully said.

The board plans to have all of the policies prepared and adopted before the district takes over on July 1, McCully said.

The promotion parade and presentation of the achievement award begins at 3:15 p.m. and is open to the public.

One Poison Plant Victim Recovering

One of two San Francisco brothers still hospitalized after eating poisonous water hemlock Friday was reported improved and in fair condition today at Marin Genral Hospital.

Michael Breiding, 15, was taken off the serious list and removed from the intensive care unit where he had been since becoming ill after eating the herbs during an outing at Samuel P. Taylor State Park.

Wayne Paul Breiding, 14, remained in the intensive care unit in serious condition, hospital officals said.

Two other brothers, William Mark, 13, and Sutton, 17, also became ill from eating the hemlock but were released from the hospital Saturday afternoon.

Fair-Marin's Budget Predicted As $75,000

The first year's operating budget for Fair-Marin, which will run the new memorial auditorium and fairgrounds, will be about $75,000 "plus or minus $5,000" the Fair-Marin board of directors estimated last night.

President Harold Stockstad said the directors met at the Civic Center with Asst. Administrator Thomas F. Campanella to thrash out the budget for 1969-70 fiscal year. Campanella's tentative figures show an annual operating cost for Fair-Marin of $109,000, but that would be cut to about $75,000 the first year because the auditorium will not be operating until next January.

"Expected income from the auditorium is what we don't know yet," said Stockstad.

He said the directors from the auditorium if it were put to maximum commercial use seven days a week and what the local demands would be from various organizations such as the symphony guild, gallet and other groups, which cannot afford to pay full commercial prices for rent.

From these answers, said Stockstad, the directors will try to decide how the auditorium use will be apportioned — 75 per cent commerical and 25 per cent other, or 60-40 or 50-50.

Fair-Marin directors will meet again on the budget at 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the Civic Center.

Teen-Age GI Is Killed By 'Live' Bullet

FORT ORD (UPI) — A teen-age soldier was killed by a member of his unit yesterday when a live bullet was accidentally substituted for a blank during a training attack on a defense position.

The Army withheld both the name of the slain youth and identity of the trainee who fired the fatal shot, but did say the victim was from California. Both soldiers were in their sixth week of training.

A spokesman said the dead youth, part of an attacking force, was struck in the chest by a live bullet fired from an M-14 semiautomatic rifle.

Army authorities immediately launched a "full military investigation" into how the live round was mixed with blank bullets.

Apartments Hearing Set For Cotati

The Cotati Planning Commission last night questioned neighborhood compatibility of a proposed apartment building on Sierra Avenue and continued discussion to a public hearing Feb. 19.

Lester Petersen requested a zoning change on his property at 405 Sierra Avenue from single family residential to multifamily residential and presented plans for a two story building that would include 12 apartments.

In addition to questioning the compatibility of the apartments with surrounding single family homes, the commission also heard a protest from Mrs. Eva Bodessa who owns the adjoining property.

Mrs. Bodessa said she felt the building would lower the value of her property and that 12 apartments would cause a traffic problem.

The Cotati Planning Commission also:

USE PERMIT — Granted a use permit to Commissioner Kenneth Garner to construct three duplexes on West Cotati Avenue. Garner abstained from voting.

EXTENSION — Granted approval to plans of Archie Stewart to extend the garage at his home at 200 Valpariso Avenue with the condition that it be of the same material as the home.

Library Board Asking $14,096 Hike In Budget

Larkspur Library trustees have approved a 1969-70 budget of $45,124, a $14,096 increase over the current budget, librarian Richard A. Kilbourne reported today.

The increase, recommended to the Larkspur City Council, includes $5,000 for the library building fund and $4,000 for books. It also includes these proposed salary range increases: librarians, from $644-$782 to $727-$883; assistant librarian, from $485-$556 to $493-$598 and librarian aide, $385-$469 to $436-$530.

Current library tax rate is 10½ cents per $100 assessed valuation, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said. "It could result in a slight increase but it is too early to tell."

Kilbourne reported that January's circulation of 5,194 was highest in the library's history and a 19 per cent increase over January 1968.

The bald eagle mates for life and returns each year to its huge home in a tall treetop.

Fair-Marin's Budget Predicted As $75,000

The first year's operating budget for Fair-Marin, which will run the new memorial auditorium and fairgrounds, will be about $75,000 "plus or minus $5,000" the Fair-Marin board of directors estimated last night.

President Harold Stockstad said the directors met at the Civic Center with Asst. Administrator Thomas F. Campanella to thrash out the budget for 1969-70 fiscal year. Campanella's tentative figures show an annual operating cost for Fair-Marin of $109,000, but that would be cut to about $75,000 the first year because the auditorium will not be operating until next January.

"Expected income from the auditorium is what we don't know yet," said Stockstad.

He said the directors from the auditorium if it were put to maximum commercial use seven days a week and what the local demands would be from various organizations such as the symphony guild, gallet and other groups, which cannot afford to pay full commercial prices for rent.

From these answers, said Stockstad, the directors will try to decide how the auditorium use will be apportioned — 75 per cent commerical and 25 per cent other, or 60-40 or 50-50.

Fair-Marin directors will meet again on the budget at 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the Civic Center.

Teen-Age GI Is Killed By 'Live' Bullet

FORT ORD (UPI) — A teenage soldier was killed by a member of his unit yesterday when a live bullet was accidentally substituted for a blank during a training attack on a defense position.

The Army withheld both the name of the slain youth and identity of the trainee who fired the fatal shot, but did say the victim was from California. Both soldiers were in their sixth week of training.

A spokesman said the dead youth, part of an attacking force, was struck in the chest by a live bullet fired from an M-14 semiautomatic rifle.

Army authorities immediately launched a "full military investigation" into how the live round was mixed with blank bullets.

Apartments Hearing Set For Cotati

The Cotati Planning Commission last night questioned neighborhood compatibility of a proposed apartment building on Sierra Avenue and continued discussion to a public hearing Feb. 19.

Lester Petersen requested a zoning change on his property at 405 Sierra Avenue from single family residential to multifamily residential and presented plans for a two story building that would include 12 apartments.

In addition to questioning the compatibility of the apartments with surrounding single family homes, the commission also heard a protest from Mrs. Eva Bodessa who owns the adjoining property.

Mrs. Bodessa said she felt the building would lower the value of her property and that 12 apartments would cause a traffic problem.

The Cotati Planning Commission also:

USE PERMIT — Granted a use permit to Commissioner Kenneth Garner to construct three duplexes on West Cotati Avenue. Garner abstained from voting.

EXTENSION — Granted approval to plans of Archie Stewart to extend the garage at his home at 200 Valpariso Avenue with the condition that it be of the same material as the home.

Library Board Asking $14,096 Hike In Budget

Larkspur Library trustees have approved a 1969-70 budget of $45,124, a $14,096 increase over the current budget, librarian Richard A. Kilbourne reported today.

The increase, recommended to the Larkspur City Council, includes $5,000 for the library building fund and $4,000 for books. It also includes these proposed salary range increases: librarians, from $644-$782 to $727-$883; assistant librarian, from $485-$556 to $493-$598 and librarian aide, $385-$469 to $436-$530.

Current library tax rate is 10½ cents per $100 assessed valuation, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said. "It could result in a slight increase but it is too early to tell."

Kilbourne reported that January's circulation of 5,194 was highest in the library's history and a 19 per cent increase over January 1968.

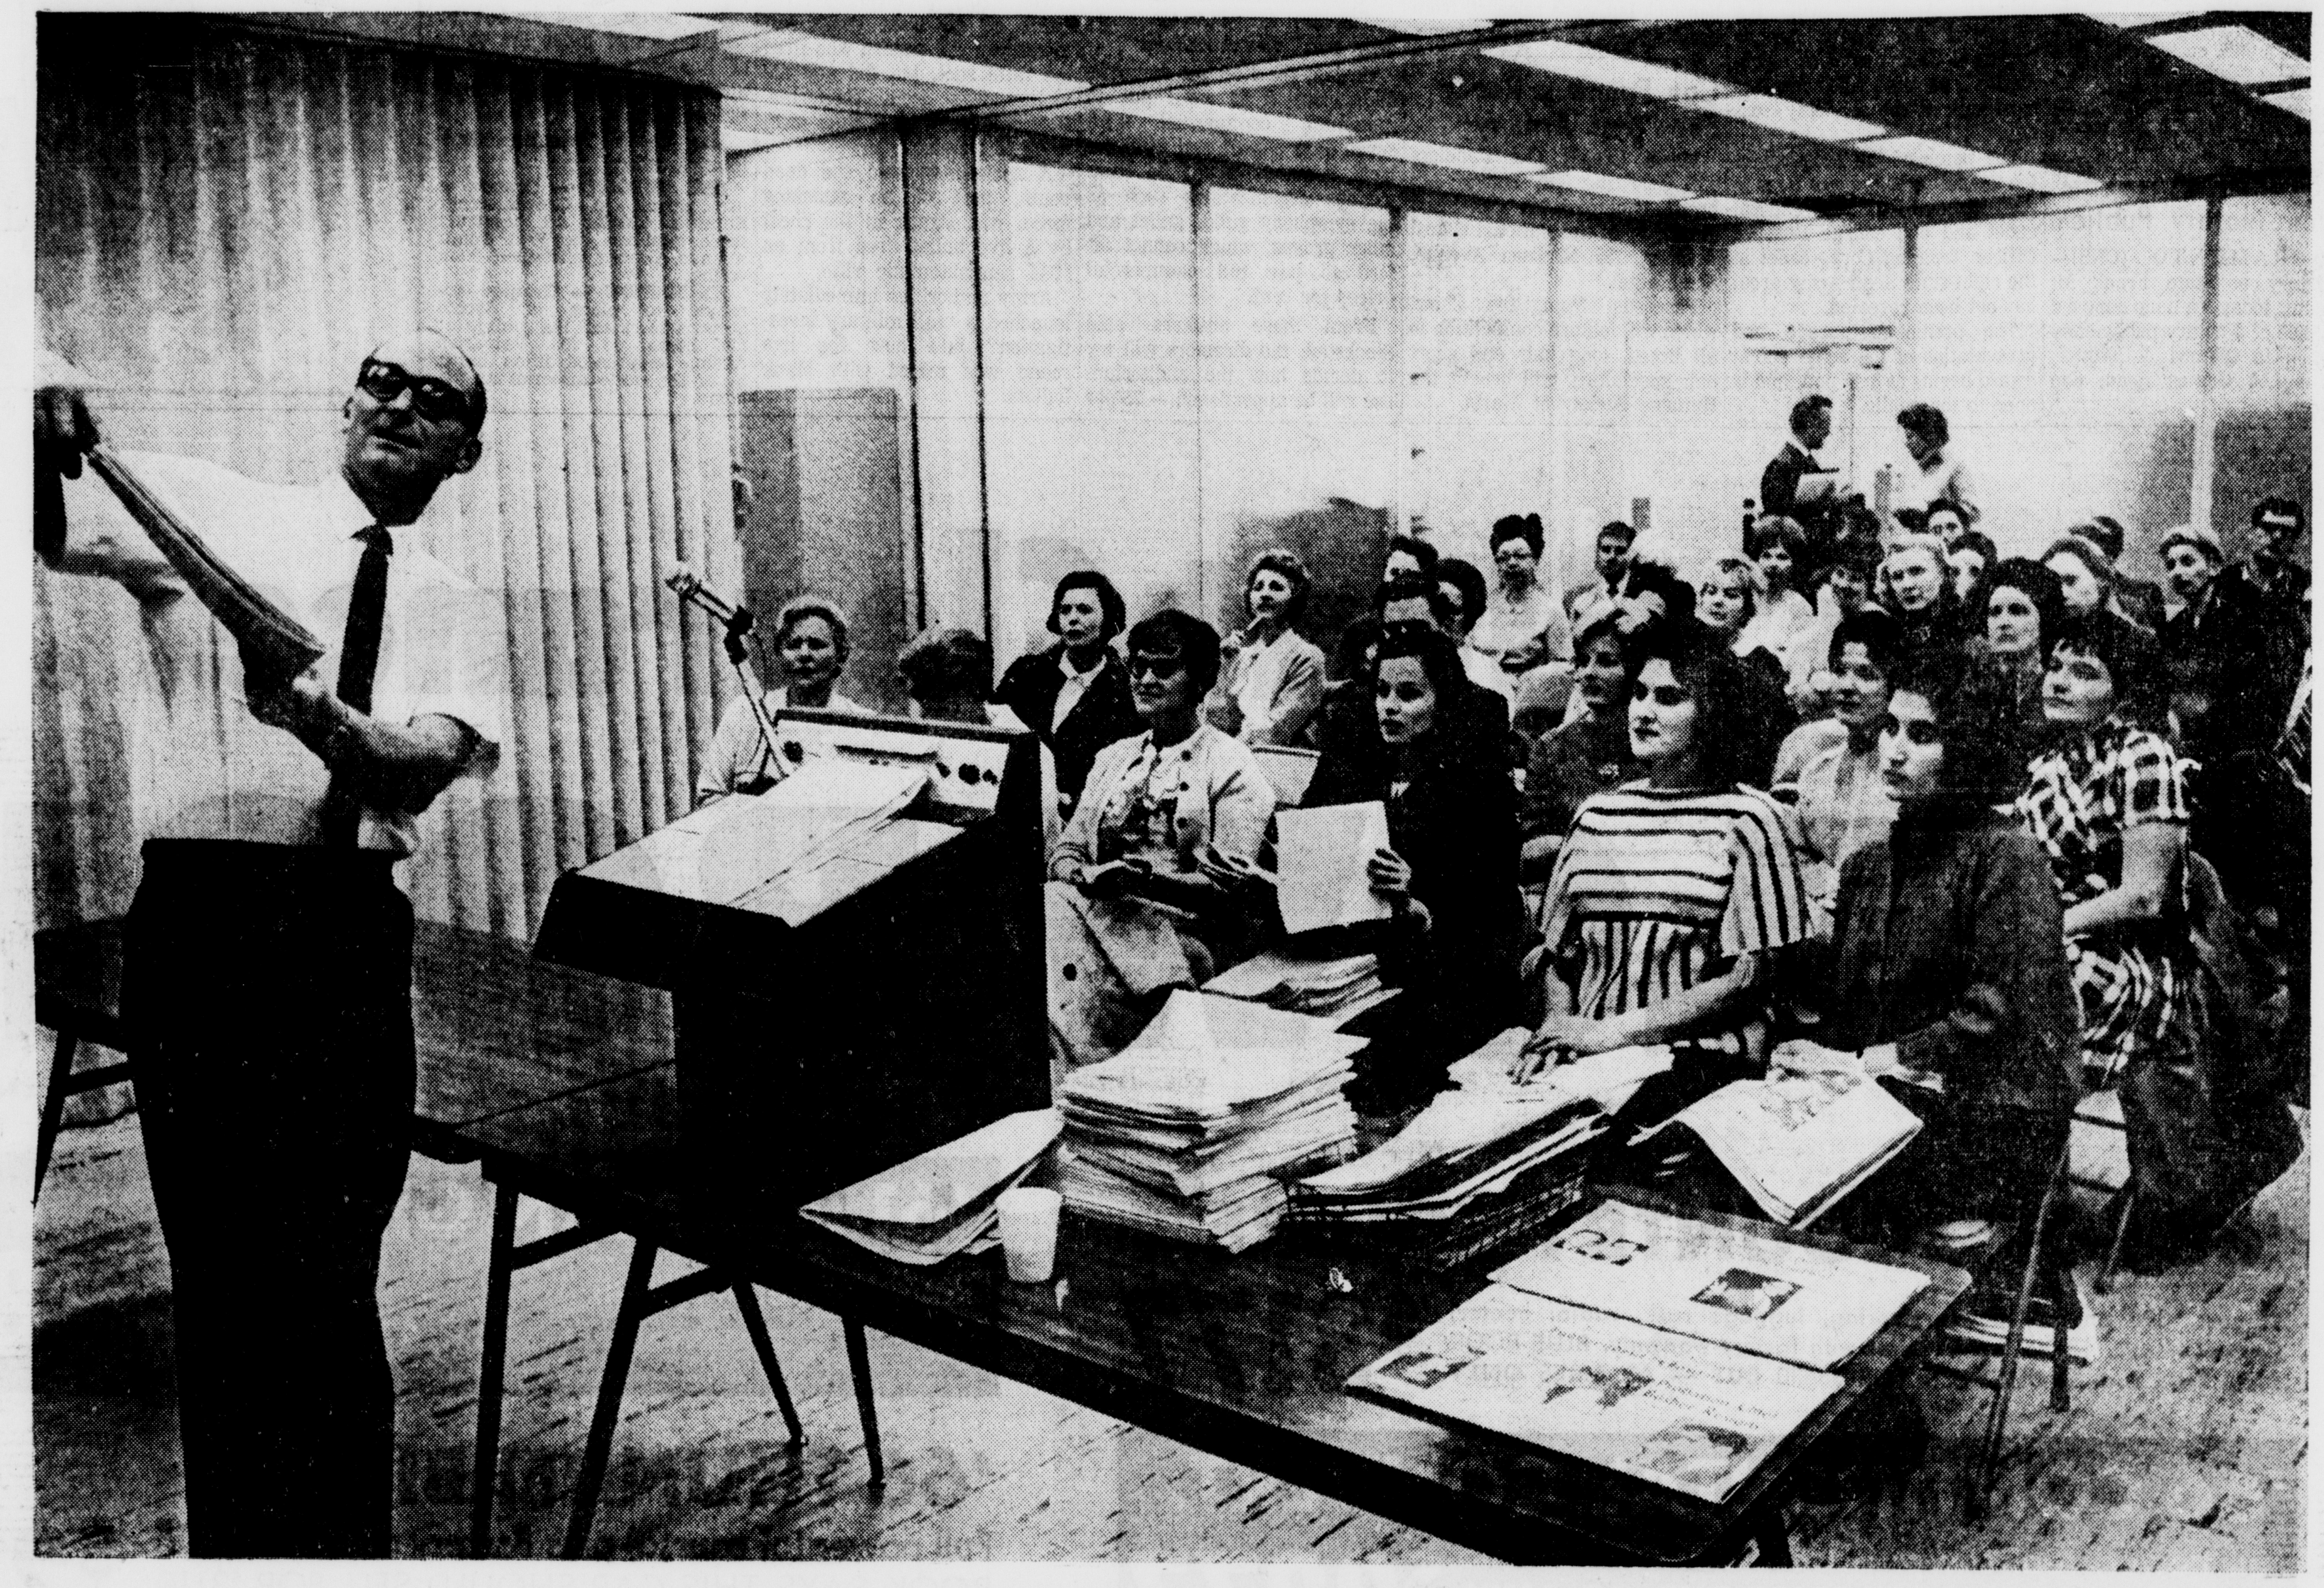
How Marin teachers set an academic "first" in the U.S. with a college-level, 2½-month course on the use of the newspaper in the classroom



1. New ideas, new approaches…in seminar sessions like this

2. Application in the classroom, like this

> "If anything stands higher than the press in its importance as a defender of our freedom and our free institutions, it is our school system. Indeed, I am not sure that such a distinction should be made between these two indispensable factors in a self-governing society."
>
> —Dwight D. Eisenhower

Warren Binzley, seminar coordinator, talks over project with a teacher

"By equipping teachers to use the newspaper in the classroom effectively, this project bears directly on a major objective of our educational system — namely, to prepare our youth to be good and effective citizens. For maintenance of a free society depends on an informed people and the newspaper is one of the principal ways in which people become informed. The project is a further step in opening up channels of communication and understanding between education and the press, and through them, new channels of enlightenment for our students."

The newspaper in the classroom as an instructional aid is not new. But the approach in learning how to use it has been given a new dimension by Marin County teachers working with the Marin County Superintendent of Schools Office and with Sonoma State College.

From September 25 through January 15, teachers completed, for three units credit, a college seminar devoted to effective ways of using the newspaper in the classroom. This is the first time in the United States (even though the newspaper is now used in more than 48,000 schools) that this LEVEL OF TEACHER INSTRUCTION has been adopted.

Drawing upon the talents of nationally and locally known authorities in the educational and newspaper fields, the course presented an in-depth study of the newspaper, and more especially, how this "living textbook" could be used to enrich the curriculum — and the minds of young people.

The point is that Marin County teachers have accomplished something of an educational break-through. At one time, through one college-level class, a sizable group of imaginative, forward-looking teachers is now prepared to use the newspaper as a practical, creative aid in advancing the cause of learning.

What the teachers say about the newspaper as an instructional aid

As an instructional aid the daily newspaper appears to have limitless applications in teaching — and in learning. Following are excerpts from papers prepared by teachers during the seminar. While they endorse the newspaper as an instrument of learning, teachers also brought high critical perspective to work in pointing out areas in which newspapers themselves could be more meaningful. Which proves that interchange of ideas between the education and newspaper worlds can be an education for both.

"As we have discovered in the past few months the daily newspaper has a veritable wealth of information for all of our classrooms. We are aware of the fact that newspapers inform, entertain, advise and help the reading public, including our students. However, one of the most accurate evaluations of the role of the newspaper in today's classroom is the following: 'In this 20th century, with news being made faster than textbooks can print it, the role of the newspaper as a medium of information has assumed greater proportions than ever before. If the textbook is deficient — if it is not up-to-date — where else may one go but to the newspaper to bridge the gap? It is little wonder, then, that educators today have termed the newspaper a "living textbook" and regularly use it as a part of their curriculum. They have found that it is an instructional aid which can be used to supplement the teaching in any subject'."

"The newspaper offers such a wealth of material for classroom use (history, geography, economics, language, current events, mathematics, etc.) that one of the immediate problems confronting the teacher is determining how she will guide her students in using the paper. (It is almost a question of too much material which is practically unheard of in education.) In my case, I decided to use the newspaper as an aid to my Individualized Reading Program. One of the basic ideas behind this is to allow a child to find material in which he is interested and from there develop the various comprehension and word study skills. What better material available than a newspaper about real people in real circumstances."

"Whereas a great many traditional sources, or texts, take the study of English out of any immediate or personal context for the student, the broad spectrum of news coverage can afford almost any student material that is at once interesting and meaningful to him, something he can become personally involved in. Once involved — hence motivated — will not a student be more apt to learn than if the learning activity source material has no relevance to him? It would seem to me, then, that the newspaper can be utilized as a powerful, general motivating device to underlie many diverse, detailed learning situations."

"The use of the newspaper for teaching language arts is as limitless as the individual teacher's imagination. Because of its versatility and adaptability, the newspaper is an excellent tool with which to work. Too often, when using a regular textbook, a teacher feels compelled to cover the book from start to finish. In the case of the newspaper, no one expects to use the entire paper in the course of a day and therefore only the best or most pertinent material is ever selected. The instructor chooses what will interest his class or what they can absorb on that grade level."

"The newspaper is a continuous medium for use in a classroom of hearing-handicapped children. It will supply much interesting material. It is easy to obtain daily for the classroom. It is meaningful to these children and will help them understand and learn to communicate with their world."

"The question which we wish to raise in this study is: Are the adults of America providing the youth with an up-to-date account of current events with which they can relate? Perhaps it is a means of communication between two generations far too often neglected. The advantages of the newspaper as such a medium are numerous. No other news media are more accessible to youth. No other is available at a more minimal price. Perhaps even more important, teenagers regard the newspaper as a symbol of the adult society with which they so desperately attempt to relate. Newspapers are written on a level far more sophisticated than children's literature, yet in a style easily understood by adolescents. The insatiable curiosity of youth cannot be denied, and should be encouraged rather than ignored!"

A PUZZLE

What Really Constitutes A Family?

Before the council was a proposed ordinance amendment defining a family for zoning purposes.

The need for a new definition arose last summer when the city was faced with "families" of hippies living in single-family homes.

Under the proposed law a family is defined as: "an individual or two or more persons related by blood, marriage or legal adoption, or a group not exceeding five persons, who need not be related, living together as a single housekeeping unit.

"A 'related' family may also include a maximum of two servants, but the 'unrelated' group shall in no event exceed five persons, including servants."

"What about in-laws?" asked Councilman William G. Fleckles.

The council set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a hearing on the proposed definition, which would be an amendment to the zoning ordinance.

Two Marinites On ABAG's Law Study Program

Two Marin men have been appointed to the Law Enforcement Task Force Unit of Associated Bay Area Governments.

Named from Marin were Austin J. Thompson, executive director of the human rights department and Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright.

The 11-member task force will study law enforcement in nine Bay Area counties, assisted by a subcommittee on police community relations expected to be named soon.

The first meeting of the group will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Sabella's of Marin.

Other members include police chiefs, city managers and educators from the nine Bay Area counties which belong to ABAG.

Larkspur Reaffairms Policy On Driveways

While heavy rain water ran in the streets, Larkspur City Council last night reaffirmed its stand that driveway construction in gutters must be removed.

Encroachments could be granted in cases where it would be impossible to use the driveway without the ramps, the council noted.

Public Works Director Warren Mistron asked the council to state its policy clearly because residents have the impression that if their ramps are not diverting water they can remain.

About 20 persons attended the session to hear plans for an access road to the Meadowood Subdivision, near Chanticleer Road.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst noted that access has been granted from Holcomb Avenue, with the plan to eventually provide access from Chanticleer.

A traffic count indicated that Chanticleer won't be able to carry all the cars expected when the third unit of the subdivision is constructed, he said.

Bathurst recommended that the city consider extending Ward Avenue to the subdivision, a project that would require construction of a bridge over Arroyo Holon Creek.

Councilmen referred the proposal to the planning commission to determine how it would fit in with the master plan for traffic circulation. They rescheduled the matter for their April 2 meeting.

Mayor Alfred Malvino reported that the Hillview Gardens Homeowners Association is interested in participating in development of a planted area along the east side of the Magnolia Avenue, scheduled to be widened in their area.

The council also said it would be willing to adopt Marin County's proposed uniform animal control ordinance if the county handles prosecution, the proposed additional men for the program were hired one at a time instead of five at once, and if the city-county services committee considers a bigger increase in the impounding fees.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

GLANDER LEAVING — Accepted the resignation of Ronald H. Glander, superintendent of building and planning, effective Feb. 21, with commendation for his four years of work with the city. Glander resigned to take a job with a Larkspur construction company.

PLANNING — Adopted an ordinance permitting planned districts, allowing cluster housing on parcels with a minimum size of 10 acres, and an ordinance permitting planned unit development on parcels with a minimum of four acres. Councilman Benton A. Sifford dissented, saying he favored the principle, but not the way the ordinance was drafted.

U-TURN BAN — Passed an emergency ordinance prohibiting u-turns on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at the entrance of Greenbrae Lanes, a bowling alley at 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, at the request of the California Highway Patrol, which noted there have been several accidents at that location.

VEHICLE CONTROL — Reintroduced an ordinance which enables the city to enforce the vehicle code on private property in the Bon Air commercial area. It was first introduced in November on an emergency basis.

LIVING IN CARS — Reintroduced an ordinance to prohibit people living in vans and cars on private property. It was aodpted in October on an interim basis to meet the problem of hippies sleeping in these vehicles on private property.

UNDERGROUND DISTRICT — Set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on establishing an underground utility district for the second phase of the Magnolia Avenue widening project, from Daly Swim School to Bon Air Road.

SUBDIVISION LAW — Set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the subdivision ordinance that would require all new subdivisions to have utility lines underground.

PLANNING COUNCIL — Postponed until May 7 discussion of whether the city should join the city-council planning council.

CLAIM DENIED — Denied a claim by Katherine F. Jacobs of 293 North Almenar Drive, Greenbrae, for $1,000 damage to her property allegedly caused by runoff waters from Cielo Drive in Larkspur.

ABATEMENT — Declared a building at 22 Heather Way, owned by Paul Keefer, a public nuisance and set a hearing at 8 p.m. March 5 to start abatement proceedings.

STUDENT REQUEST — Received a report from Police Chief Howard Clark that he had received a request from a group of Redwood High School students for permission to leave the school's closed campus during free periods. Malvino noted the students made the request on their own and the school's policy is still to have a closed campus.

FIRE EQUIPMENT — Authorized the purchase of nine voice amplifiers for smoke masks worn by firemen at the cost of $1,215. It was proposed that the city use a contribution of $365 from volunteer firemen toward the purchase, but councilmen felt the city should bear the full cost.

FOUNDATION PROPOSED — Postponed until Tuesday discussion of a proposal to form a Larkspur Foundation, a civic group which would assist the city.

TAX RELIEF — Authorized letters to State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and Assembleymen William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, urging legislation to provide tax relief for property owners.

HOUSING AUTHORITY — Set Tuesday to hear a presentation from representatives of the Marin County Housing Authority on the authority's housing programs, senior citizen and leased housing.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday at city hall, and scheduled a field trip starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday to the site of the planned Redwood Avenue widening project, near Oak Road.

Widow Of Heart Patient Facing House Eviction

SALINAS (UPI) — The widow and four children of the world's eighth heart transplant patient are being evicted from the house he built as "his insurance policy" to them.

Joseph Rizor, a carpenter, built the seven-room home and all of its furniture with his owm hands while suffering from heart trouble. He received a new heart at Stanford Medical Center last May 5, and died of lung disease a few days later.

Mrs. Eileen Rizor, 41, said her husband suffered a massive heart attack in June, 1966, a few weeks after finishing the home. She said, "Joe called this house his insurance policy for me in case anything happened."

Mrs. Rizor said the neat, four bedroom house had an $18,000 first mortgage and a $4,700 second mortgage. After she defaulted on payments, it was sold last month to the man who held the second mortgage.

Sirhan Trial Takes On A Calm Mood

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The murder trial of Jordanian immigrant Sirhan B. Sirhan seemed to take on a relaxed atmosphere once the jury was sworn in yesterday.

There were some lively exchanges as the defense and prosecution began the selection of alternate jurors.

Four alternates —two women and two men —tentatively were seated after the regular panel of eight men and four women was sworn in by Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker.

Near the end of yesterday's session, Grant B. Cooper, chief defense counsel, looked at Walker and said:

"Your honor, it's been pretty hot in this room today. I think it would be nice if we recessed."

The judge smiled and responded, "I like my weather hot."

Sirhan smiled broadly when he stood up to be introduced to 14 prospective alternate jurors. He grinned at his mother, Mrs. Mary Sirhan, and two brothers, Adel and Munir, who were sitting in the back row of the eighth floor courtroom in the Hall of Justice.

Sirhan stared repeatedly at a pretty blonde reporter and appeared to be trying to catch her eye.

Muggers Hit

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Assembly gave quick approval yesterday to an "antimugging" bill that would increase the maximum prison sentence from the present seven years to 15 years. It was passed, 143-5, and sent to the Senate.

$200,000 Damage By Freakish Wind In Redwood City

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — A violent, destructive wind ripped and area of Redwood City today, heavily damaging homes and industrial buildings and injuring at least one person.

The wild, freakish wind, developing amidst heavy rain, thunder and lightining, smashed at a section a mile and a half long and about two blocks wide.

Fire department authorities estimated damage as at least $200,000 to about 28 buildings.

Heavy structural damage was reported to both homes and business establishments.

Windows were knocked out, portions of roofs dismantled and street signs, loose objects and street signs, loose objects and garbage cans hurled through the air.

The powerful wind, which hit at 3 a.m., overturned a pickup truck loaded with metal and rolled it about 50 feet.

Crash Hurts Leg

"The newspaper is a continuous medium for use in a classroom of hearing-handicapped children. It will supply much interesting material. It is easy to obtain daily for the classroom. It is meaningful to these children and will help them understand and learn to communicate with their world."

"The question which we wish to raise in this study is: Are the adults of America providing the youth with an up-to-date account of current events with which they can relate? Perhaps it is a means of communication between two generations far too often neglected. The advantages of the newspaper as such a medium are numerous. No other news media are more accessible to youth. No other is available at a more minimal price. Perhaps even more important, teenagers regard the newspaper as a symbol of the adult society with which they so desperately attempt to relate. Newspapers are written on a level far more sophisticated than children's literature, yet in a style easily understood by adolescents. The insatiable curiosity of youth cannot be denied, and should be encouraged rather than ignored!"

A PUZZLE

What Really Constitutes A Family?

Larkspur City Council learned last night that defining a family can be complicated.

The need for a new definition arose last summer when the city was faced with "families" of hippies living in single-family homes.

Under the proposed law a family is defined as: "an "individual or two or more persons related by blood, marriage or legal adoption, or a group not exceeding five persons, who need not be related, living together as a single housekeeping unit.

"A 'related' family may also include a maximum of two servants, but the 'unrelated' group shall in no event exceed five persons, including servants."

"What about in-laws?" asked Councilman William G. Fleckles.

The council set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a hearing on the proposed definition, which would be an amendment to the zoning ordinance.

Two Marinites On ABAG's Law Study Program

Two Marin men have been appointed to the Law Enforcement Task Force Unit of Associated Bay Area Governments.

Named from Marin were Austin J. Thompson, executive director of the human rights department and Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright.

The 11-member task force will study law enforcement in nine Bay Area counties, assisted by a subcommittee on police community relations expected to be named soon.

The first meeting of the group will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Sabella's of Marin.

Other members include police chiefs, city managers and educators from the nine Bay Area counties which belong to ABAG.

Larkspur Reaffairms Policy On Driveways

While heavy rain water ran in the streets, Larkspur City Council last night reaffirmed its stand that driveway construction in gutters must be removed.

Encroachments could be granted in cases where it would be impossible to use the driveway without the ramps, the council noted.

Public Works Director Warren Mistron asked the council to state its policy clearly because residents have the impression that if their ramps are not diverting water they can remain.

About 20 persons attended the session to hear plans for an access road to the Meadowood Subdivision, near Chanticleer Road.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst noted that access has been granted from Holcomb Avenue, with the plan to eventually provide access from Chanticleer.

A traffic count indicated that Chanticleer won't be able to carry all the cars expected when the third unit of the subdivision is constructed, he said.

Bathurst recommended that the city consider extending Ward Avenue to the subdivision, a project that would require construction of a bridge over Arroyo Holon Creek.

Councilmen referred the proposal to the planning commission to determine how it would fit in with the master plan for traffic circulation. They rescheduled the matter for their April 2 meeting.

Mayor Alfred Malvino reported that the Hillview Gardens Homeowners Association is interested in participating in development of a planted area along the east side of the Magnolia Avenue, scheduled to be widened in their area.

The council also said it would be willing to adopt Marin County's proposed uniform animal control ordinance if the county handles prosecution, the proposed additional men for the program were hired one at a time instead of five at once, and if the city-county services committee considers a bigger increase in the impounding fees.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

GLANDER LEAVING — Accepted the resignation of Ronald H. Glander, superintendent of building and planning, effective Feb. 21, with commendation for his four years of work with the city. Glander resigned to take a job with a Larkspur construction company.

PLANNING — Adopted an ordinance permitting planned districts, allowing cluster housing on parcels with a minimum size of 10 acres, and an ordinance permitting planned unit development on parcels with a minimum of four acres. Councilman Benton A. Sifford dissented, saying he favored the principle, but not the way the ordinance was drafted.

U-TURN BAN — Passed an emergency ordinance prohibiting u-turns on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at the entrance of Greenbrae Lanes, a bowling alley at 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, at the request of the California Highway Patrol, which noted there have been several accidents at that location.

VEHICLE CONTROL — Reintroduced an ordinance which enables the city to enforce the vehicle code on private property in the Bon Air commercial area. It was first introduced in November on an emergency basis.

LIVING IN CARS — Reintroduced an ordinance to prohibit people living in vans and cars on private property. It was aodpted in October on an interim basis to meet the problem of hippies sleeping in these vehicles on private property.

UNDERGROUND DISTRICT — Set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on establishing an underground utility district for the second phase of the Magnolia Avenue widening project, from Daly Swim School to Bon Air Road.

SUBDIVISION LAW — Set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the subdivision ordinance that would require all new subdivisions to have utility lines underground.

PLANNING COUNCIL — Postponed until May 7 discussion of whether the city should join the city-council planning council.

CLAIM DENIED — Denied a claim by Katherine F. Jacobs of 293 North Almenar Drive, Greenbrae, for $1,000 damage to her property allegedly caused by runoff waters from Cielo Drive in Larkspur.

ABATEMENT — Declared a building at 22 Heather Way, owned by Paul Keefer, a public nuisance a nd set a hearing at 8 p.m. March 5 to start abatement proceedings.

STUDENT REQUEST — Received a report from Police Chief Howard Clark that he had received a request from a group of Redwood High School students for permission to leave the school's closed campus during free periods. Malvino noted the students made the request on their own and the school's policy is still to have a closed campus.

FIRE EQUIPMENT — Authorized the purchase of nine voice amplifiers for smoke masks worn by firemen at the cost of $1,215. It was proposed that the city use a contribution of $365 from volunteer firemen toward the purchase, but councilmen felt the city should bear the full cost.

FOUNDATION PROPOSED — Postponed until Tuesday discussion of a proposal to form a Larkspur Foundation, a civic group which would assist the city.

TAX RELIEF — Authorized letters to State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and Assembleymen William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, urging legislation to provide tax relief for property owners.

HOUSING AUTHORITY — Set Tuesday to hear a presentation from representatives of the Marin County Housing Authority on the authority's housing programs, senior citizen and leased housing.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday at city hall, and scheduled a field trip starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday to the site of the planned Redwood Avenue widening project, near Oak Road.

Widow Of Heart Patient Facing House Eviction

SALINAS (UPI) — The widow and four children of the world's eighth heart transplant patient are being evicted from the house he built as "his insurance policy" to them.

Joseph Rizor, a carpenter, built the seven-room home and all of its furniture with his owm hands while suffering from heart trouble. He received a new heart at Stanford Medical Center last May 5, and died of lung disease a few days later.

Mrs. Eileen Rizor, 41, said her husband suffered a massive heart attack in June, 1966, a few weeks after finishing the home. She said, "Joe called this house his insurance policy for me in case anything happened."

Mrs. Rizor said the neat, four bedroom house had an $18,000 first mortgage and a $4,700 second mortgage. After she defaulted on payments, it was sold last month to the man who held the second mortgage.

New Zealand is about the size of Colorado.

Sirhan Trial Takes On A Calm Mood

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The murder trial of Jordanian immigrant Sirhan B. Sirhan seemed to take on a relaxed atmosphere once the jury was sworn in yesterday.

There were some lively exchanges as the defense and prosecution began the selection of alternate jurors.

Four alternates —two women and two men —tentatively were seated after the regular panel of eight men and four women was sworn in by Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker.

Near the end of yesterday's session, Grant B. Cooper, chief defense counsel, looked at Walker and said:

"Your honor, it's been pretty hot in this room today. I think it would be nice if we recessed."

The judge smiled and responded, "I like my weather hot."

Sirhan smiled broadly when he stood up to be introduced to 14 prospective alternate jurors. He grinned at his mother, Mrs. Mary Sirhan, and two brothers, Adel and Munir, who were sitting in the back row of the eighth floor courtroom in the Hall of Justice.

Sirhan stared repeatedly at a pretty blonde reporter and appeared to be trying to catch her eye.

Muggers Hit

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Assembly gave quick approval yesterday to an "antimugging" bill that would increase the maximum prison sentence from the present seven years to 15 years. It was passed, 143-5, and sent to the Senate.

$200,000 Damage By Freakish Wind In Redwood City

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — A violent, destructive wind ripped and area of Redwood City today, heavily damaging homes and industrial buildings and injuring at least one person.

The wild, freakish wind, developing amidst heavy rain, thunder and lightining, smashed at a section a mile and a half long and about two blocks wide.

Fire department authorities estimated damage as at least $200,000 to about 28 buildings.

Heavy structural damage was reported to both homes and business establishments.

Windows were knocked out, portions of roofs dismantled and street signs, loose objects and street signs, loose objects and garbage cans hurled through the air.

The powerful wind, which hit at 3 a.m., overturned a pickup truck loaded with metal and rolled it about 50 feet.

Crash Hurts Leg

Iris Gist, 42, of 312 Cortez Drive, Petaluma, was treated at Petaluma General Hospital for an injury to her right leg, reportedly suffered in a one-car accident at 3:45 p.m. yesterday at the corner of Cortez and McKinsey Avenue. Police had no details of the mishap.

Big Brother In Sky Over Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Police Department wants a helicopter-mounted "eye in the sky," a flying television camera, so its tactical commanders can keep a close watch on "unusual occurences."

The city police commission asked the city council yesterday to obtain the $55,000 necessary. Besides giving a first-hand view of emergencies, official say, the system would also provide video tapes for later study.

Marinwood Addresses Will Glow

Street addresses on the curbs in Marinwood will be re-painted with reflectorized paint, the Marinwood Firemen's Association decided Tuesday night.

"We plan to do it during the first two weekends in May as a service to the community and as an aid the fire department," said Irving L. Schwartz, president of the firemen's group.

The Marinwood Firemen's Association also:

YOUTH ACTIVITY — Appointed volunteer James Miller to investigate fund raising and promotional activities that would interest teen-agers in the community.

FIREMEN'S GEAR — Asked Henry Fuqua to check with the fire commission to see if safety equipment can be obtained for four willing volunteers. Volunteers cannot become members of the department until they have such gear.

BADGES — Decided to buy eight firemen's badges for new volunteers.

Sewer District Approves Trade

San Rafael Sanitation District directors yesterday approved a land swap with a subdivider which gives the district more land for its Glenwood pump station at San Pedro Road and Main Drive.

Norris M. Rawles, district administrator, reported that the district received 1,600 square feet from the Galli Co. in exchange for 600 square feet. The switch enabled both the district and the subdivider to square off their land, he said.

Directors adjourned until 5 p.m. Feb. 19 at San Rafael City Hall.

'Seed Money' Favored To Aid Youth Causes

A county program to provide up to $2,000 per year in "seed money" to help new youth programs such as coffee houses won unanimous approval of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

On a motion by Elizabeth Davies, the commission recommended the new program to the board of supervisors and asked for $3,000 to finance the program through June.

The program is an outgrowth of a series of meetings on youth recreation, sparked last year by Commissioner Lothar Salin. The "seed money" program will operate in this way:

The county will help new programs or facilities sponsored by local governmental bodies and responsible local organizations for a maximum of three years on a 50 per cent matching basis, and up to a maximum of $2,000 per entity per year.

Some of the criteria that must be met are that the activity, equipment or facility must be requested of the city, district, or local organization by a responsible locally recognized group of youths, the youth group must make a reasonable contribution to the activity in kind or cash, and no similar activity or facility must not be available in the community at the time the request is made. For example, seed money would not be granted to expand a basketball league.

Commission chairman Melton Ferris said the three-year limit was placed on the program because the "intent is to encourage and stimulate new programs and not to expand existing facilities."

Strep Cases Number 38 During Week

Thirty-eight cases of streptacoccus infections were reported in Marin County during the week ending Feb. 1, county health officials have reported.

Officials also reported, 16 cases of gonorrhea, nine of infectious hepatitis, including five at San Quentin, 2 cases of mumps and one each of tuberculosis and German measles.

Angel Island Stand Drawn For Marin

The state should not install "urban type hotels" on Angel Island, but overnight facilities should be available under "carefully controlled" conditions, the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission decided yesterday.

This is one of the provisions in a policy statement on Angel Island development which the commissioners formed after a long discussion. The statement will go to the board of supervisors for adoption as the county's official position.

Other provisions approved yesterday included:

Visitor conveniences should be concentrated on the east shores so that the rest of the island could be reserved for hiking, etc.

A capacity of 10,000 visitors per day can be used for planning purposes, but the maximum should not be decided upon until the "impact of visitors on the landscape and on each other" has been ascertained.

Concessions on the island are not acceptable unless they meet these criteria:

1. Must provide only facilities directly related to the park which cannot be better located on the periphery of the bay, and services which are necessary to park visitors.
2. Must not be the type that would destroy the natural or historical values to be preserved on the island.
3. Must be located on the eastern side of the island.
4. Must blend with its surrounding areas and protect and enhance the environment.

The County of Marin, spurred by conservation groups, has opposed extensive recreational development of Angel Island, as proposed by the state.

Salin New County Rec Chairman

Lothar Salin, owner of a printing and advertising firm in San Rafael, was elected chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

He will serve for one year, succeeding Melton Ferris, who has been chairman the past two years.

Albert J. Boro of San Rafael was elected vice chairman and Herber C. Leney as secretary.

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission also:

LOGGING — Heard from Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, that the director of the State Division of Beaches and Parks had written Dr. Ethel Righetti, who owns 1,800 acres of timberland on Bolinas Ridge, asking her to spare the ridge tops from the logger's ax. A Coos Bay firm last year bought timbering rights on the Righetti Ranch.

CAPITAL — Criticized cuts recommended by the county administrator in the parks capital improvement program but decided to yield slightly on requests for 1970-71. For 1969-70, the total request will remain the same, $280,000. For 1970-71, the commissioners reduced the request from $1,115,000 to $530,000 by spreading the financing of three major projects into subsequent years. The projects are the acquisition of San Geronimo redwoods, Manzanita Marina Green, and a tennis and swim club.

ANNIVERSARY — Asked Joske to explore the possibility of a dinner to observe the 10th anniversary of the commission, which is this month.

San Pedro Collision Hurts Motorcyclist

Louis Nichols Leone, 16, of 233 Alpine Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital Tuesday for multiple bruises sustained when his motorcycle struck the rear of a car driven by Valerie Joyce Bell, 24, of Vallejo, on San Pedro Road at Porto Bello Way, police reported.

Leone told police his throttle stuck and he was unable to stop when the Bell car slowed for a construction area.

Big Brother In Sky Over Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Police Department wants a helicopter-mounted "eye in the sky," a flying television camera, so its tactical commanders can keep a close watch on "unusual occurences."

The city police commission asked the city council yesterday to obtain the $55,000 necessary. Besides giving a first-hand view of emergencies, official say, the system would also provide video tapes for later study.

Chamber To Relocate Rohnert Park Office

Monday will be moving day for the Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce when its office will be relocated to 7300 Commerce Boulevard, the directors announced yesterday.

At a breakfast meeting, the directors voted to accept the rent-free offer of director Bart C. Mitchell to move to Suite No. 2 in his building. Mitchell operates a realty firm.

The directors said that after many moves in the past few years, they view this change as "permanent." The office is presently located in the shopping mall on Southwest Boulevard.

The office phone number and mailing address, Box 1062, will not be changed, they said.

The Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce directors also:

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY — Appointed Mitchell, Maurice Fredericks, Peter M. Callinan and R. Allan Forsyth to a committee to update the standard industrial survey the chamber uses in attracting industry.

AWARDS — Reported nominations are still being accepted for "man and woman of the year" awards to be presented at the annual chamber dinner Feb. 28 at Chesney's Carriage House. The event had been scheduled for March 1.

EQUIPMENT — Voted to meet with city officials to discuss a chamber contribution for equipment at the new community and recreation center.

LIGHTS — Voted to study the possibility of providing lights for the Rohnert Park signs on Highway 101.

SPEAKER — Announced that Harold V. Pederson, Sonoma County economic development director, will be the guest speaker at the Feb. 19 chamber meeting at 8 a.m. at Chesney's Carriage House.

$1.8 Million Recreation Plan Studied

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission last night discussed means of financing a 10-year capital improvement program with a price tag of $1,800,950. (See Petaluma City Council story, page 1.)

Richard W. Schollenberger, department director, said the plans could be financed through the regular department budget to be reviewed in April; through a possible bond issue, or by levying a tax on subdividers according to the number of bedrooms constructed.

Schollenberger suggested the commission make allowances in the 1969-70 budget to permit land purchase for parks in the event a bond issue is not included in the June election, or in case the issue should fail.

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission also:

PURCHASE — Heard a suggestion from Robert Koenitzer, planning commissioner, that the commission purchase two lots in the Ely Boulevard subdivision planned by Arthur Condiotti. Koenitzer said coupled with the 5.3 acres Condiotti is donating to the city, the adjoining lots would bring the park site to nearly eight acres at a cost of $11,000.

BASEBALL — Heard report from Shollenberger that new lights at McNear Field are ready to put in place when weather conditions improve.

HIGH SCHOOL — Granted use of the McNear Park baseball diamond to the Petaluma Senior High School baseball team. It was explained that the school diamond will not be ready for play this year.

SWIM CLUB — Heard report that the Petaluma Swim Club will invite Debbie Meyer, three Gold Medal Olympic winner, to the March 19 opening of the swim club meet season.

During the 18th and 19 centuries, only the wealthy took overseas holidays.

Five More Seek Labor Offices

Five new nominations for officers were accepted last night at a meeting of the Marin Labor Council, the nominees to run for election Feb. 19.

Nominated were Albert Heinrich as trustee; Ray Manley, sergeant-of-arms and Stanley Dentkos, B.V. Chiaravalle and Thomas McCarthy, executive board members.

Other nominations, previously made, are Charles Weers for president; Mike Pechina, vice president; Leighton Youngclaus, Paul Crumley, trustee; James Smith and Peter Petrakis, secretary-treasurer; Charles Smith, John Irwin, John Strong, Howard Crowell and Nick Georgedes, executive board members.

Smith reported that Charles Richardson, a teacher and member of the American Federation of Teachers Local 1352, San Francisco State College, spoke to the council on the college's strike situation.

Marinwood Addresses Will Glow

Street addresses on the curbs in Marinwood will be re-painted with reflectorized paint, the Marinwood Firemen's Association decided Tuesday night.

"We plan to do it during the first two weekends in May as a service to the community and as an aid the fire department," said Irving L. Schwartz, president of the firemen's group.

The Marinwood Firemen's Association also:

YOUTH ACTIVITY — Appointed volunteer James Miller to investigate fund raising and promotional activities that would interest teen-agers in the community.

FIREMEN'S GEAR — Asked Henry Fuqua to check with the fire commission to see if safety equipment can be obtained for four willing volunteers. Volunteers cannot become members of the department until they have such gear.

BADGES — Decided to buy eight firemen's badges for new volunteers.

Sewer District Approves Trade

San Rafael Sanitation District directors yesterday approved a land swap with a subdivider which gives the district more land for its Glenwood pump station at San Pedro Road and Main Drive.

Norris M. Rawles, district administrator, reported that the district received 1,600 square feet from the Galli Co. in exchange for 600 square feet. The switch enabled both the district and the subdivider to square off their land, he said.

Directors adjourned until 5 p.m. Feb. 19 at San Rafael City Hall.

'Seed Money' Favored To Aid Youth Causes

A county program to provide up to $2,000 per year in "seed money" to help new youth programs such as coffee houses won unanimous approval of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

On a motion by Elizabeth Davies, the commission recommended the new program to the board of supervisors and asked for $3,000 to finance the program through June.

The program is an outgrowth of a series of meetings on youth recreation, sparked last year by Commissioner Lothar Salin. The "seed money" program will operate in this way:

The county will help new programs or facilities sponsored by local governmental bodies and responsible local organizations for a maximum of three years on a 50 per cent matching basis, and up to a maximum of $2,000 per entity per year.

Some of the criteria that must be met are that the activity, equipment or facility must be requested of the city, district, or local organization by a responsible locally recognized group of youths, the youth group must make a reasonable contribution to the activity in kind or cash, and no similar activity or facility must not be available in the community at the time the request is made. For example, seed money would not be granted to expand a basketball league.

Commission chairman Melton Ferris said the three-year limit was placed on the program because the "intent is to encourage and stimulate new programs and not to expand existing facilities."

Strep Cases Number 38 During Week

Thirty-eight cases of streptacoccus infections were reported in Marin County during the week ending Feb. 1, county health officials have reported.

Officials also reported, 16 cases of gonorrhea, nine of infectious hepatitis, including five at San Quentin, 2 cases of mumps and one each of tuberculosis and German measles.

Angel Island Stand Drawn For Marin

The state should not install "urban type hotels" on Angel Island, but overnight facilities should be available under "carefully controlled" conditions, the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission decided yesterday.

This is one of the provisions in a policy statement on Angel Island development which the commissioners formed after a long discussion. The statement will go to the board of supervisors for adoption as the county's official position.

Other provisions approved yesterday included:

Visitor conveniences should be concentrated on the east shores so that the rest of the island could be reserved for hiking, etc.

A capacity of 10,000 visitors per day can be used for planning purposes, but the maximum should not be decided upon until the "impact of visitors on the landscape and on each other" has been ascertained.

Concessions on the island are not acceptable unless they meet these criteria:

1. Must provide only facilities directly related to the park which cannot be better located on the periphery of the bay, and services which are necessary to park visitors.
2. Must not be the type that would destroy the natural or historical values to be preserved on the island.
3. Must be located on the eastern side of the island.
4. Must blend with its surrounding areas and protect and enhance the environment.

The County of Marin, spurred by conservation groups, has opposed extensive recreational development of Angel Island, as proposed by the state.

Salin New County Rec Chairman

Lothar Salin, owner of a printing and advertising firm in San Rafael, was elected chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

He will serve for one year, succeeding Melton Ferris, who has been chairman the past two years.

Albert J. Boro of San Rafael was elected vice chairman and Herber C. Leney as secretary.

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission also:

LOGGING — Heard from Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, that the director of the State Division of Beaches and Parks had written Dr. Ethel Righetti, who owns 1,800 acres of timberland on Bolinas Ridge, asking her to spare the ridge tops from the logger's ax. A Coos Bay firm last year bought timbering rights on the Righetti Ranch.

CAPITAL — Criticized cuts recommended by the county administrator in the parks capital improvement program but decided to yield slightly on requests for 1970-71. For 1969-70, the total request will remain the same, $280,000. For 1970-71, the commissioners reduced the request from $1,115,000 to $530,000 by spreading the financing of three major projects into subsequent years. The projects are the acquisition of San Geronimo redwoods, Manzanita Marina Green, and a tennis and swim club.

ANNIVERSARY — Asked Joske to explore the possibility of a dinner to observe the 10th anniversary of the commission, which is this month.

San Pedro Collision Hurts Motorcyclist

Louis Nichols Leone, 16, of 233 Alpine Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital Tuesday for multiple bruises sustained when his motorcycle struck the rear of a car driven by Valerie Joyce Bell, 24, of Vallejo, on San Pedro Road at Porto Bello Way, police reported.

Leone told police his throttle stuck and he was unable to stop when the Bell car slowed for a construction area.

War Bride Is San Rafael's 'First Lady'

By GRACE HENDERSON

It was a typical English day, gray and dismal, the fog hanging low over Mt. Tamalpais and water dripping from the green shrubs that surround the house on Chestnut Avenue in San Rafael. A warm greeting met me at the door and I was ushered inside to a cheery fire. My hostess, Mrs. C. Paul Bettini, wife of San Rafael's mayor, settled back in her chair ready for our scheduled interview.

MARGARET BETTINI, familiar with English weather, people and customs, had come to America as a war bride following her marriage to M/Sgt. C. Paul Bettini. The wedding took place in her home town of Bristol, England, May 28, 1945. At the time her thoughts were on coming to California but the idea of being the wife of a mayor with a city like San Rafael, population 34,200, never crossed her mind.

There was time for reflection on her decision to leave England as she strolled the decks of the Queen Mary ocean liner those ten days crossing the Atlantic, then more time on the train ride across the nation. She compares this now with the 12 hours total traveling time it takes to return to her native country for visits.

THE NEXT TRIP, possibly the most outstanding planned in the family's vacation agenda, will be on the 25th wedding anniversary of the couple, when they return to Bristol and a celebration.

Margaret's American influence brought her sister, Christine Alford, for a six-month visit which led to another marriage. Christine became Mrs. Raymond Rossi and they make their home in San Rafael as do the girls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percival Alford. Mrs. Rossi is employed with the San Rafael Police Department where she is an office secretary.

The Bettini name has long been familiar in Marin County, Margaret told me, a relative newcomer to California. Mr. Bettini's mother, Mrs. Ceasar Bettini, lives on Ross Street and her other four children are nearby. Ray Bettini resides in San Anselmo and Richard in San Rafael. There are two daughters, Mrs. Willard Hall of Marinwood and Mrs. Albert Frasier in San Rafael. Their children join forces with the Paul Bettini boys to campaign when Paul runs for election. First it was the Board of Education where he served 10 years, then the successful mayorship contest in 1965.

THE FOUR SONS of Paul and Margaret Bettini are Richard, 22, a senior at San Jose State College, majoring in business administration; David, 19, a freshman at Marin Junior College who works weekends at the city yards; Brian, 17, a senior at San Rafael High School who hopes to attend Chico State College next year; and Roger, 9, a fourth grader at Sun Valley Elementary School looking forward to his 10th birthday this month.

Margaret is an accomplished knitter having learned in school, as is tradition there. Both she and Paul enjoy bowling and play in a mixed league. "Nothing interferes with this time," Margaret explained, adding that she bowls with a group during the day as well.

"WE HAVE never discussed Mr. Bettini's trying for a higher office," said his attractive blonde wife. But she thought he probably would never be interested due to his business, the insurance brokerage firm of Allen, Bettini and Carter in San Anselmo.

Margaret, her mother and sister organized a group of Marin women, formerly of England, into a social group that meets the third Friday of each month. "It's just a little get-together," Margaret clarified.

What does Margaret miss most about her home country? First, she told me, it would be her relatives, particularly her other sister, who is in England, then it would be the green fields and miles and miles of beautiful beaches. "Our seaside is wonderful," she added before continuing on to say this (America) is now her country and she is a citizen of the United States. "This is where I want to be," she declared.

THE MAYOR'S WIFE does no political entertaining and the bulk of his mail goes to City Hall. But the pair keeps the especially nice pieces of correspondence. "We need a new desk to put some of his things in," she said, adding she hopes to insert everything into a scrapbook eventually.

"It's been 20 years since I left England, you know," Margaret recalled. And on her biennial visits it usually takes her two weeks to become oriented again and it is "like I never left home," she commented. That she has become a full-fledged American is evident in her lack of her native country's accent, now her words are of the western United States.

WHAT WOULD Mrs. Bettini tell a child of hers contemplating marrying someone from another country and going to live there? Even though she doesn't expect to be confronted with the question it wouldn't bother her at all, she exclaimed, saying there is no really remote place left in the world with travel as it is today.

And I said goodbye to the gracious first lady of San Rafael who had given me a look into the life of His Honor and the family that makes his house a home.

"I HOPE TO GET all the clippings pasted into a scrapbook someday," says Mrs. C. Paul Bettini in discussing the San Rafael mayor's busy life. The four sons of the couple plus several nephews assist with campaigns for the mayor who has served on the Board of Education 10 years and is completing his second term as mayor. Mrs. Bettini came to the United States from England following the ceremony that made her the bride of M/Sgt. Bettini in 1945. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

WOMEN HISTORY-MAKERS

Female Combat Soldier Served Continental Army

American women have made their own challenge in their own way in American society. Some lesser known achievers, challengers and characters are subjects of this series on American "woman history."

By BARBARA HOSMER

Perhaps it was the same spirit that was later to cause young boys to run away and join the circus that impelled a 22-year-old woman to become America's only female combat soldier.

SHE ENLISTED as a man, not once, but twice; fought as a man, and in her later years as wife, mother and town matriarch drew a soldier's pension from the federal government.

Perhaps the Revolutionary times had something to do with it. Whatever her reason, Deborah Sampson added a footnote to American history as the only woman to fight in the regular Continental Army.

A descendant of Capt. Myles Standish, John Alden and William Bradford, she was born to poor parents in Plympton, Mass., near Plymouth. After a bit of schooling she became a hired girl for a Bay Colony family. Tiring of her chores, she cut her hair, borrowed a suit and went to Middleboro to enlist. The year was 1782 and in those days enlistment bounties were paid. The young woman collected her bounty under the name of Timothy Thayer and made haste to the local tavern to spend some. But there she was reported as behaving in a noisy and indecent manner and the soldiering fun was quickly over. Deborah's bounty money was confiscated, and she was returned to her hired girl chores in disgrace. The town was shocked, and her church voted to "withdraw fellowship."

BUT WHILE THE church folk debated her fate the determined girl had other ideas. She spun and wove suit cloth and had a local clothesmaker cut a man's suit about her size. One night she donned the coat and trousers, left her shed-home and walked to Worcester, some 75 miles. When the Army recruiting office opened she entered and reappeared as Pvt. Robert Shurtleff, assigned to the 4th Massachusetts Regiment of Foot, commanded by Capt. George Webb. She skipped the tavern this time and went on to pass without suspicion as a model soldier, binding her chest and allowing the shapeless homespun garments to do the rest.

The new recruit had little time for training, for in a few short weeks her regiment made a week long, dusty march to West Point. Not long after her arrival there Deborah saw action at Tappan Bay, getting slashed by a saber, and later at Eastchester she took a musket ball in the side. But she got up quickly and kept moving, not wanting the medics to notice. Then she hid in the woods for several days alone to dress her wounds and recuperate from battle. She carried the musket ball to the day she died, however.

Soon Private Shurtleff was sent in a small detachment to Ft. Ticonderoga and then western New York. Eventually she was made an orderly on General Paterson's staff in Philadelphia. When fever hit the city, Deborah, as Private Shurtleff, was put into the "hopeless" ward of an Army hospital, unconscious. Making rounds, the doctor routinely checked the patient for a heartbeat and raced off to report to the head nurse that the soldier was a woman.

The jig was up, and Deborah, as Private Sampson this time, was moved from the ward immediately. General Paterson took the surprising news about his staff orderly with humor, and when Deborah recovered he sent her to West Point, where in woman's clothes she paraded down the ranks of her former company of the 4th Massachusetts Regiment of Foot. Story has it that not one of her former comrades recognized the girl as the former Private Shurtleff.

SHE HAD served nearly a year and a half and was given an honorable discharge in November, 1783, with a record of decorous behavior and good soldiering. Nine years later she received a 34 pounds veterans pension from the Massachusetts legislature, and later the federal pension office granted her a lifetime pension.

Her war had ended, but Deborah Sampson didn't entirely retire to home and hearth. Married to Benjamin Gannett, she moved to Sharon, Mass., where the couple reared three children. But in 1802 their mother decided to become probably the first woman lecturer in the United States. She would harangue audiences from Boston to Albany with noble words about liberty and the rigors of war. And then, nearly 20 years after her discharge, she would end the program in military uniform, reviewing the Manual of Arms drill with regulation Army musket, smartly rapping the rifle butt to the platform floor with a thud. She also recorded the details of this tour in a diary.

She died at about age 67 in the town of Sharon, where she had settled and became a local matriarch and was to be remembered by having a street named for her.

And 117 years later, during World War II, a Liberty ship was launched at Baltimore, the Deborah Sampson Gannett, honoring America's only female regular soldier.

Novato Couple Acquire Mexican Style Adobe Home With A View

By MOLLY MARIN

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Davies of Novato have recently purchased another home on Indian Valley Ranch and have sold their home on Squaw Peak. Their new home has an extensive view of the hills and the lights of the valley below. The Mexican style adobe brick house has hand made tile floors throughout and beamed ceilings. A lily pond with water wall is in the enclosed entrance. Elizabeth Banning Davies is decorating their home.

Charles and Elizabeth are planning a trip to Australia and New Zealand and will return to the Kona Coast of Hawaii before coming home to Marin. They are planning to build another home in Hawaii.

THE NEWLYWEDS Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Loberg of San Rafael, were honored Saturday evening at a cocktail party at the Iron Horse Restaurant. Hosts were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin K. Musto of San Francisco. . . .

BETSY JEAN Black of Novato was honored on Sunday, when Mrs. O. W. Armstrong and Debbie were hostesses at a bridal shower.

Betty and Howard Lance Hopper will be married on Saturday at the First Baptist Church in Novato. Fourteen guests attended the shower including Betsy's mother, Mrs. Robert Lee Black, and her grandmother, Mrs. Hazel Matchura of Washington, D. C.

MRS. HOWARD C. Mulvany of Ross hosted a luncheon Monday at Oreste's Restaurant, in honor of her sister Mrs. Patrick K. Richard, who is leaving next week for Miami, Fla.

Colorful Scarves Are Dangerous

The newest signature scarves are six feet or more in length. Designer Adele Simpson, who showed them in her new collection, sees a big future for them.

Caution against freak accidents is in order when wearing same, however. In the thirties, an entertainer was fatally choked when the streamers of a long scarf caught in the wheel of a sportscar. Maybe you don't have to worry about sportscar wheels. But don't get stuck via scarf in bus or elevator door.

BY BEST-DRESSED

'Unisex' Fad Draws 'Ho-Hum'

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dress your age. The advice comes from some of the women on the international best-dressed list.

Asked to list the "cardinal sins" women commit in fashion, the women spoke of dressing to the dictates of the very young and of following the fashion of the moment too precisely.

Or, as Mrs. Harilaos Theodoracopulos, of New York and Athens, puts it, "Dressing too young for their age. With today's fashions, which are so becoming to teen-agers, the over-30 woman has to be more selective," Mrs. Theodoracopulos was the model Betsy Pickering until her marriage to the Greek shipping magnate.

"TRYING TO LOOK much younger than they are" was the cardinal sin Mrs. Gianni Uzielli listed. The blonde young beauty is the former Anne Ford, who one year was paired with her sister, Charlotte Ford Niarchos, on the best-dressed list. On the latest ratings, Mrs. Uzielli made it on her own.

The two were among five on the current list whom I cornered for a talk one early afternoon when all showed up to have their hair done by Marc Sinclaire, a Park Avenue hair stylist with a jet set following.

"Being too fashiony," was the sin Mrs. Liberman (Louise) Savitt listed.

"Following the fashion of the moment too precisely," said Mrs. Ahmet Etergun, whose husband owns a record company.

"THE WOMEN don't look in a three-way mirror before they go out the door," said Mrs. William (Chessy) Rayner.

I asked the women, all of whom can afford the couturiers of New York, Paris, and Rome, how much they figured they spend on their wardrobes each years.

All elected not to estimate, for as Mrs. Ertegun said, "No matter what you answer, it would be interpreted as incorrect." Mrs. Rayner said she spent "very little" on her clothes and when she did splurge it was on evening dresses.

The idea of man and woman dressing alike, or the fad for "unisex", drew only derision or a ho-hum reaction.

"IT'S RIDICULOUS," said Mrs. Ertegun. "I don't even know what it is," said Mrs. Savitt. "I haven't given it much thought," said Mrs. Theodoracopulos.

And as for their reaction to being named to the best-dressed ratings, all said they were "flattered". Or, they found it "amusing". But Mrs. Uzielli summed up the thinking when she commented, "It certainly is not the most important thing in my life."

Hail, Sir Knight!

Could you use a hand carved helmet and shield from Spain? Wall plaques of noble crests—a lion couchant, a unicorn or two or a German tapestry celebrating feats of valor in ancient times?

Or perhaps you can use a stray mermaid or ship's figurehead on your walls—we would be happy to accommodate you.

Chamber To Relocate Rohnert Park Office

Monday will be moving day for the Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce when its office will be relocated to 7300 Commerce Boulevard, the directors announced yesterday.

At a breakfast meeting, the directors voted to accept the rent-free offer of director Bart C. Mitchell to move to Suite No. 2 in his building. Mitchell operates a realty firm.

The directors said that after many moves in the past few years, they view this change as "permanent." The office is presently located in the shopping mall on Southwest Boulevard.

The office phone number and mailing address, Box 1062, will not be changed, they said.

The Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce directors also:

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY — Appointed Mitchell, Maurice Fredericks, Peter M. Callinan and R. Allan Forsyth to a committee to update the standard industrial survey the chamber uses in attracting industry.

AWARDS — Reported nominations are still being accepted for "man and woman of the year" awards to be presented at the annual chamber dinner Feb. 28 at Chesney's Carriage House. The event had been scheduled for March 1.

EQUIPMENT — Voted to meet with city officials to discuss a chamber contribution for equipment at the new community and recreation center.

LIGHTS — Voted to study the possibility of providing lights for the Rohnert Park signs on Highway 101.

SPEAKER — Announced that Harold V. Pederson, Sonoma County economic development director, will be the guest speaker at the Feb. 19 chamber meeting at 8 a.m. at Chesney's Carriage House.

$1.8 Million Recreation Plan Studied

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission last night discussed means of financing a 10-year capital improvement program with a price tag of $1,800,950. (See Petaluma City Council story, page 1.)

Richard W. Schollenberger, department director, said the plans could be financed through the regular department budget to be reviewed in April; through a possible bond issue, or by levying a tax on subdividers according to the number of bedrooms constructed.

Schollenberger suggested the commission make allowances in the 1969-70 budget to permit land purchase for parks in the event a bond issue is not included in the June election, or in case the issue should fail.

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission also:

PURCHASE — Heard a suggestion from Robert Koenitzer, planning commissioner, that the commission purchase two lots in the Ely Boulevard subdivision planned by Arthur Condiotti. Koenitzer said coupled with the 5.3 acres Condiotti is donating to the city, the adjoining lots would bring the park site to nearly eight acres at a cost of $11,000.

BASEBALL — Heard report from Shollenberger that new lights at McNear Field are ready to put in place when weather conditions improve.

HIGH SCHOOL — Granted use of the McNear Park baseball diamond to the Petaluma Senior High School baseball team. It was explained that the school diamond will not be ready for play this year.

SWIM CLUB — Heard report that the Petaluma Swim Club will invite Debbie Meyer, three Gold Medal Olympic winner, to the March 19 opening of the swim club meet season.

Five More Seek Labor Offices

Five new nominations for officers were accepted last night at a meeting of the Marin Labor Council, the nominees to run for election Feb. 19.

Nominated were Albert Heinrich as trustee; Ray Manley, sergeant-of-arms and Stanley Dentkos, B.V. Chiaravalle and Thomas McCarthy, executive board members.

Other nominations, previously made, are Charles Weers for president; Mike Pechina, vice president; Leighton Youngclaus, Paul Crumley, trustee; James Smith and Peter Petrakis, secretary-treasurer; Charles Smith, John Irwin, John Strong, Howard Crowell and Nick Georgedes, executive board members.

Smith reported that Charles Richardson, a teacher and member of the American Federation of Teachers Local 1352, San Francisco State College, spoke to the council on the college's strike situation.

Loving Makes Pauper Of Girl Subsidizing Boyfriend's Pool

DEAR HELEN:

I have liked Joe very much for over three years. He seems fond of me. The problem is he always bums money off me, not just a quarter but a dollar or more, and every day, so he can play pool with his friends.

As a result, I hardly ever see him, as he is playing pool on my money!

I don't want to hurt his feelings, and I don't want to drop him, so what can I do? — GONE BROKE OVER LOVE

DEAR GBOL:

This freeloader is playing two games: Pool and — you for a fool! You're not only broke but batty if you keep on subsidizing his nights out.

Send him a bill and his walking papers, and sign yourself "Former Miss Easymark, 1968."—H.

DEAR HELEN:

What can I do when I'm afraid, no matter which way I turn? I've been married two years. My husband knew the baby I was carrying wasn't his, but he said he'd love her anyway. Ever since she came, he's threatened to kill her if I go against him. He says if I leave him, he'll track me down and I won't have a daughter any more.

I reported this to the police, but they can't do anything about threats. So far, he has never harmed us, because I always give in to him.

His mother says to be patient as he has a problem, but he won't go to a doctor or psychiatrist. He says I'm the one to blame, not him.

My folks have begged me to bring the baby and come to live with them, but they'll probably be in danger if I do.

My husband has turned into a rotten no-good and I have learned to hate him. But I'm — PETRIFIED WITH FEAR

DEAR PETRIFIED:

You are more in danger if you stay than if you leave. Move in with your folks and turn your problem over to a good lawyer who will see to it you are protected.

I can't guarantee that your husband is more threat than action, but if he runs true to form, he'll cave in when faced with straight talk by authorities.

And I hope his protective mother will get him to a psychiatrist!—H.

DEAR HELEN:

We attend a State College where the ratio is one girl to eight men.

We're considered nice looking and the fraternity men always ask us over for informal, sort of unplanned, parties after the Friday night dances. But on Saturdays? They disappear. We are never asked on a real date.

Should we start being cagy about these parties, making excuses to avoid them, until the fellas realize we'd like to be asked out other times in the week? We'd like several sharp answers that would put them down a little bit, yet make us the Saturday night dates. — WAITING IMPATIENTLY

DEAR WAITING:

Don't push your luck! With a ratio of eight to one, you'd better shine brightly on Friday nights and hope the glow will soon extend to Saturdays. But remember this: College men prefer informal parties to dating these days. They're cheaper, safer, and less entangling for fellows who have several more years of books ahead.—H.

Before Painting

Enameling furniture? the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association suggests that you remove as much hardware as possible before painting. If you mount drawer pulls, knobs and other decorative pieces on a cardboard backing, you can quickly and easily enamel them with spray paint. Put masking tape on any pieces that cannot be removed to keep them from getting spattered.

War Bride Is San Rafael's 'First Lady'

By GRACE HENDERSON

It was a typical English day, gray and dismal, the fog hanging low over Mt. Tamalpais and water dripping from the green shrubs that surround the house on Chestnut Avenue in San Rafael. A warm greeting met me at the door and I was ushered inside to a cheery fire. My hostess, Mrs. C. Paul Bettini, wife of San Rafael's mayor, settled back in her chair ready for our scheduled interview.

MARGARET BETTINI, familiar with English weather, people and customs, had come to America as a war bride following her marriage to M/Sgt. C. Paul Bettini. The wedding took place in her home town of Bristol, England, May 28, 1945. At the time her thoughts were on coming to California but the idea of being the wife of a mayor with a city like San Rafael, population 34,200, never crossed her mind.

There was time for reflection on her decision to leave England as she strolled the decks of the Queen Mary ocean liner those ten days crossing the Atlantic, then more time on the train ride across the nation. She compares this now with the 12 hours total traveling time it takes to return to her native country for visits.

THE NEXT TRIP, possibly the most outstanding planned in the family's vacation agenda, will be on the 25th wedding anniversary of the couple, when they return to Bristol and a celebration.

Margaret's American influence brought her sister, Christine Alford, for a six-month visit which led to another marriage. Christine became Mrs. Raymond Rossi and they make their home in San Rafael as do the girls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percival Alford. Mrs. Rossi is employed with the San Rafael Police Department where she is an office secretary.

The Bettini name has long been familiar in Marin County, Margaret told me, a relative newcomer to California. Mr. Bettini's mother, Mrs. Ceasar Bettini, lives on Ross Street and her other four children are nearby. Ray Bettini resides in San Anselmo and Richard in San Rafael. There are two daughters, Mrs. Willard Hall of Marinwood and Mrs. Albert Frasier in San Rafael. Their children join forces with the Paul Bettini boys to campaign when Paul runs for election. First it was the Board of Education where he served 10 years, then the successful mayorship contest in 1965.

THE FOUR SONS of Paul and Margaret Bettini are Richard, 22, a senior at San Jose State College, majoring in business administration; David, 19, a freshman at Marin Junior College who works weekends at the city yards; Brian, 17, a senior at San Rafael High School who hopes to attend Chico State College next year; and Roger, 9, a fourth grader at Sun Valley Elementary School looking forward to his 10th birthday this month.

Margaret is an accomplished knitter having learned in school, as is tradition there. Both she and Paul enjoy bowling and play in a mixed league. "Nothing interferes with this time," Margaret explained, adding that she bowls with a group during the day as well.

"WE HAVE never discussed Mr. Bettini's trying for a higher office," said his attractive blonde wife. But she thought he probably would never be interested due to his business, the insurance brokerage firm of Allen, Bettini and Carter in San Anselmo.

Margaret, her mother and sister organized a group of Marin women, formerly of England, into a social group that meets the third Friday of each month. "It's just a little get-together," Margaret clarified.

What does Margaret miss most about her home country? First, she told me, it would be her relatives, particularly her other sister, who is in England, then it would be the green fields and miles and miles of beautiful beaches. "Our seaside is wonderful," she added before continuing on to say this (America) is now her country and she is a citizen of the United States. "This is where I want to be," she declared.

THE MAYOR'S WIFE does no political entertaining and the bulk of his mail goes to City Hall. But the pair keeps the especially nice pieces of correspondence. "We need a new desk to put some of his things in," she said, adding she hopes to insert everything into a scrapbook eventually.

"It's been 20 years since I left England, you know," Margaret recalled. And on her biennial visits it usually takes her two weeks to become oriented again and it is "like I never left home," she commented. That she has become a full-fledged American is evident in her lack of her native country's accent, now her words are of the western United States.

WHAT WOULD Mrs. Bettini tell a child of hers contemplating marrying someone from another country and going to live there? Even though she doesn't expect to be confronted with the question it wouldn't bother her at all, she exclaimed, saying there is no really remote place left in the world with travel as it is today.

And I said goodbye to the gracious first lady of San Rafael who had given me a look into the life of His Honor and the family that makes his house a home.

"I HOPE TO GET all the clippings pasted into a scrapbook someday," says Mrs. C. Paul Bettini in discussing the San Rafael mayor's busy life. The four sons of the couple plus several nephews assist with campaigns for the mayor who has served on the Board of Education 10 years and is completing his second term as mayor. Mrs. Bettini came to the United States from England following the ceremony that made her the bride of M/Sgt. Bettini in 1945. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

By MOLLY MARIN

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Davies of Novato have recently purchased another home on Indian Valley Ranch and have sold their home on Squaw Peak. Their new home has an extensive view of the hills and the lights of the valley below. The Mexican style adobe brick house has hand made tile floors throughout and beamed ceilings. A lily pond with water wall is in the enclosed entrance. Elizabeth Banning Davies is decorating their home.

Charles and Elizabeth are planning a trip to Australia and New Zealand and will return to the Kona Coast of Hawaii before coming home to Marin. They are planning to build another home in Hawaii.

THE NEWLYWEDS Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Loberg of San Rafael, were honored Saturday evening at a cocktail party at the Iron Horse Restaurant. Hosts were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin K. Musto of San Francisco. . . .

BETSY JEAN Black of Novato was honored on Sunday, when Mrs. O. W. Armstrong and Debbie were hostesses at a bridal shower.

Betty and Howard Lance Hopper will be married on Saturday at the First Baptist Church in Novato. Fourteen guests attended the shower including Betsy's mother, Mrs. Robert Lee Black, and her grandmother, Mrs. Hazel Matchura of Washington, D. C.

MRS. HOWARD C. Mulvany of Ross hosted a luncheon Monday at Oreste's Restaurant, in honor of her sister Mrs. Patrick K. Richard, who is leaving next week for Miami, Fla.

Colorful Scarves Are Dangerous

The newest signature scarves are six feet or more in length. Designer Adele Simpson, who showed them in her new collection, sees a big future for them.

Caution against freak accidents is in order when wearing same, however. In the thirties, an entertainer was fatally choked when the streamers of a long scarf caught in the wheel of a sportscar. Maybe you don't have to worry about sportscar wheels. But don't get stuck via scarf in bus or elevator door.

'Unisex' Fad Draws 'Ho-Hum'

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dress your age. The advice comes from some of the women on the international best-dressed list.

Asked to list the "cardinal sins" women commit in fashion, the women spoke of dressing to the dictates of the very young and of following the fashion of the moment too precisely.

Or, as Mrs. Harilaos Theodoracopulos, of New York and Athens, puts it, "Dressing too young for their age. With today's fashions, which are so becoming to teen-agers, the over-30 woman has to be more selective," Mrs. Theodoracopulos was the model Betsy Pickering until her marriage to the Greek shipping magnate.

"TRYING TO LOOK much younger than they are" was the cardinal sin Mrs. Gianni Uzielli listed. The blonde young beauty is the former Anne Ford, who one year was paired with her sister, Charlotte Ford Niarchos, on the best-dressed list. On the latest ratings, Mrs. Uzielli made it on her own.

The two were among five on the current list whom I cornered for a talk one early afternoon when all showed up to have their hair done by Marc Sinclaire, a Park Avenue hair stylist with a jet set following.

"Being too fashiony," was the sin Mrs. Liberman (Louise) Savitt listed.

"Following the fashion of the moment too precisely," said Mrs. Ahmet Etergun, whose husband owns a record company.

"THE WOMEN don't look in a three-way mirror before they go out the door," said Mrs. William (Chessy) Rayner.

I asked the women, all of whom can afford the couturiers of New York, Paris, and Rome, how much they figured they spend on their wardrobes each years.

All elected not to estimate, for as Mrs. Ertegun said, "No matter what you answer, it would be interpreted as incorrect." Mrs. Rayner said she spent "very little" on her clothes and when she did splurge it was on evening dresses.

The idea of man and woman dressing alike, or the fad for "unisex", drew only derision or a ho-hum reaction.

"IT'S RIDICULOUS," said Mrs. Ertegun. "I don't even know what it is," said Mrs. Savitt. "I haven't given it much thought," said Mrs. Theodoracopulos.

And as for their reaction to being named to the best-dressed ratings, all said they were "flattered". Or, they found it "amusing". But Mrs. Uzielli summed up the thinking when she commented, "It certainly is not the most important thing in my life."

WOMEN HISTORY-MAKERS

Female Combat Soldier Served Continental Army

American women have made their own challenge in their own way in American society. Some lesser known achievers, challengers and characters are subjects of this series on American "woman history."

By BARBARA HOSMER

Perhaps it was the same spirit that was later to cause young boys to run away and join the circus that impelled a 22-year-old woman to become America's only female combat soldier.

SHE ENLISTED as a man, not once, but twice; fought as a man, and in her later years as wife, mother and town matriarch drew a soldier's pension from the federal government.

Perhaps the Revolutionary times had something to do with it. Whatever her reason, Deborah Sampson added a footnote to American history as the only woman to fight in the regular Continental Army.

A descendant of Capt. Myles Standish, John Alden and William Bradford, she was born to poor parents in Plympton, Mass., near Plymouth. After a bit of schooling she became a hired girl for a Bay Colony family. Tiring of her chores, she cut her hair, borrowed a suit and went to Middleboro to enlist. The year was 1782 and in those days enlistment bounties were paid. The young woman collected her bounty under the name of Timothy Thayer and made haste to the local tavern to spend some. But there she was reported as behaving in a noisy and indecent manner and the soldiering fun was quickly over. Deborah's bounty money was confiscated, and she was returned to her hired girl chores in disgrace. The town was shocked, and her church voted to "withdraw fellowship."

BUT WHILE THE church folk debated her fate the determined girl had other ideas. She spun and wove suit cloth and had a local clothesmaker cut a man's suit about her size. One night she donned the coat and trousers, left her shed-home and walked to Worcester, some 75 miles. When the Army recruiting office opened she entered and reappeared as Pvt. Robert Shurtleff, assigned to the 4th Massachusetts Regiment of Foot, commanded by Capt. George Webb. She skipped the tavern this time and went on to pass without suspicion as a model soldier, binding her chest and allowing the shapeless homespun garments to do the rest.

The new recruit had little time for training, for in a few short weeks her regiment made a week long, dusty march to West Point. Not long after her arrival there Deborah saw action at Tappan Bay, getting slashed by a saber, and later at Eastchester she took a musket ball in the side. But she got up quickly and kept moving, not wanting the medics to notice. Then she hid in the woods for several days alone to dress her wounds and recuperate from battle. She carried the musket ball to the day she died, however.

Soon Private Shurtleff was sent in a small detachment to Ft. Ticonderoga and then western New York. Eventually she was made an orderly on General Paterson's staff in Philadelphia. When fever hit the city, Deborah, as Private Shurtleff, was put into the "hopeless" ward of an Army hospital, unconscious. Making rounds, the doctor routinely checked the patient for a heartbeat and raced off to report to the head nurse that the soldier was a woman.

The jig was up, and Deborah, as Private Sampson this time, was moved from the ward immediately. General Paterson took the surprising news about his staff orderly with humor, and when Deborah recovered he sent her to West Point, where in woman's clothes she paraded down the ranks of her former company of the 4th Massachusetts Regiment of Foot. Story has it that not one of her former comrades recognized the girl as the former Private Shurtleff.

SHE HAD served nearly a year and a half and was given an honorable discharge in November, 1783, with a record of decorous behavior and good soldiering. Nine years later she received a 34 pounds veterans pension from the Massachusetts legislature, and later the federal pension office granted her a lifetime pension.

Her war had ended, but Deborah Sampson didn't entirely retire to home and hearth. Married to Benjamin Gannett, she moved to Sharon, Mass., where the couple reared three children. But in 1802 their mother decided to become probably the first woman lecturer in the United States. She would harangue audiences from Boston to Albany with noble words about liberty and the rigors of war. And then, nearly 20 years after her discharge, she would end the program in military uniform, reviewing the Manual of Arms drill with regulation Army musket, smartly rapping the rifle butt to the platform floor with a thud. She also recorded the details of this tour in a diary.

She died at about age 67 in the town of Sharon, where she had settled and became a local matriarch and was to be remembered by having a street named for her.

And 117 years later, during World War II, a Liberty ship was launched at Baltimore, the Deborah Sampson Gannett, honoring America's only female regular soldier.

IN THE WEST:

Large and medium size eggs are lower in all western markets, and small eggs are lower in Los Angeles.

Wholesale prices on fresh pork loins are higher in California markets, and Boston butts are higher in San Francisco and Portland. Slab bacon is lower in Portland and sliced bacon is higher in Los Angeles. Smoked hams are higher in California.

LAMB IS HIGHER in Portland and in San Francisco.

Beef briskets are higher in California markets and ribs are higher in Portland. Arm chucks are higher in Los Angeles.

Broiler-fryer chickens are higher in all markets except San Francisco. Fryer-roaster turkeys are lower in Los Angeles.

FRUITS AND vegetables in best supply include: apples, bananas, grapefruit, emperor grapes, oranges, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, onions, and potatoes.

Fish buys to watch for in the West are canned Pacific shrimp, canned pink and chum salmon, Pacific oysters, dungeness crab, canned tuna, and frozen fish fillets.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Loving Makes Pauper Of Girl Subsidizing Boyfriend's Pool

DEAR HELEN:

I have liked Joe very much for over three years. He seems fond of me. The problem is he always bums money off me, not just a quarter but a dollar or more, and every day, so he can play pool with his friends.

As a result, I hardly ever see him, as he is playing pool on my money!

I don't want to hurt his feelings, and I don't want to drop him, so what can I do? — GONE BROKE OVER LOVE

DEAR GBOL:

This freeloader is playing two games: Pool and — you for a fool! You're not only broke but batty if you keep on subsidizing his nights out.

Send him a bill and his walking papers, and sign yourself "Former Miss Easymark, 1968."—H.

DEAR HELEN:

What can I do when I'm afraid, no matter which way I turn? I've been married two years. My husband knew the baby I was carrying wasn't his, but he said he'd love her anyway. Ever since she came, he's threatened to kill her if I go against him. He says if I leave him, he'll track me down and I won't have a daughter any more.

I reported this to the police, but they can't do anything about threats. So far, he has never harmed us, because I always give in to him.

His mother says to be patient as he has a problem, but he won't go to a doctor or psychiatrist. He says I'm the one to blame, not him.

My folks have begged me to bring the baby and come to live with them, but they'll probably be in danger if I do.

My husband has turned into a rotten no-good and I have learned to hate him. But I'm — PETRIFIED WITH FEAR

DEAR PETRIFIED:

You are more in danger if you stay than if you leave. Move in with your folks and turn your problem over to a good lawyer who will see to it you are protected.

I can't guarantee that your husband is more threat than action, but if he runs true to form, he'll cave in when faced with straight talk by authorities.

And I hope his protective mother will get him to a psychiatrist!—H.

DEAR HELEN:

We attend a State College where the ratio is one girl to eight men.

We're considered nice looking and the fraternity men always ask us over for informal, sort of unplanned, parties after the Friday night dances. But on Saturdays? They disappear. We are never asked on a real date.

Should we start being cagy about these parties, making excuses to avoid them, until the fellas realize we'd like to be asked out other times in the week? We'd like several sharp answers that would put them down a little bit, yet make us the Saturday night dates. — WAITING IMPATIENTLY

DEAR WAITING:

Don't push your luck! With a ratio of eight to one, you'd better shine brightly on Friday nights and hope the glow will soon extend to Saturdays. But remember this: College men prefer informal parties to dating these days. They're cheaper, safer, and less entangling for fellows who have several more years of books ahead.—H.

Before Painting

Enameling furniture? the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association suggests that you remove as much hardware as possible before painting. If you mount drawer pulls, knobs and other decorative pieces on a cardboard backing, you can quickly and easily enamel them with spray paint. Put masking tape on any pieces that cannot be removed to keep them from getting spattered.

ART REVIEW

Media Limits In Mill Valley Show Are Tossed Out Window

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Artists: Marin's show this month at the Mill Valley Library points out the uselessness of trying to isolate media within specific bounds anymore. Supposedly a print and drawing show, instead, it often integrates colorful bursts of collage, watercolor and gouache.

In pure print form, Eleanore Bender provides the most tantalizing idea with a cool crisp column of joined sections, reaching with classic elegance from floor to ceiling. Her other print from the new "Voyage to the Moon" series is equally arresting.

For pure delicacy and grace it would be difficult to match Mary Tift's plate of figs and mushroom-filled bowl. The elaborate decoration of the china against simply defined fruits and vegetables, plus her exquisite palette of deep blue, lavendar, rose and golds, add up to studies in serenity.

In abstract designs, Doris Morrison and Henry Rasmusen offer monoprints which are quite individual in exploring textural possibilities and color. While John Ihle, Ella Tamkin, Fred Berensmeier and Maggie Hazell-Rosen offer other techniques full or rich color, interesting surfaces and self-confident designs.

Mrs. Rosen's double collograph, "Doggie Diner Series — Two to Go," is also the lone humorous idea, its brick-toned top dog labled "Catsup" and the bottom olive-gold one, "Mustard."

The drawings are less easy to define.

With the exception of Elsie Pomeroy's and Leola Dixon's line drawings they are more like paintings. Such are Gwen Stone's tiny black and whites whose lacy details push and pulse in space, Helen Rich's combinations of opaque shapes with line in figure studies and Art Grant's wrinkled gray drips.

M. M. Horton's birds, animals and children fall through mad, bright-hued, polke-dotted space in what might pass as watercolor sketches for larger works. Ada Garfinkel uses collage, drawing and gouache in three handsome bi-leveled works that often read more as paintings than drawings. While Russell Chatham's paste-up figures can find little reasonable claim as drawing at all.

In effect, media limits just don't matter anymore. And while it is only sometimes true in this show, the most exciting things in most shows are often those facile combinations of various media that fit none or all of the recognized categories.

Plans On Fire Zone Revamping Reviewed

Sausalito should set some of its own fire zone requirements rather than rely entirely on the uniform fire code, th Sausalito Planning Commission agreed last night.

The commission ordered a report sent to the city council suggesting possible changes in fire zone requirements — among them a proposal the city buy downtown property to create small parks and open areas between commercial buildings as a fire retarding measure.

The commission also received a response from Sen. George Murphy R-California to its letter of last year objecting to Army plans for an antimissile base in Marin. Murphy wrote that the Army had told him of its plans. He said he would keep an eye on the situation, but took no stand in the matter.

The Sausalito Planning Commission Also:

EASEMENTS — Approved an amendment to city Ordinance 630 which will lessen allowable building area on lots with railroad easements. The amendment adds easements to that area which cannot be included in computing allowable building area.

MOBIL — Approved use permit and variance applications by Mobil Oil Corp. to rebuild and enlarge its service station at Second and Main Streets.

MARINA VISTA — Denied a use permit request by Henry Arana to build a three-unit structure on a lot in Marina Vista subdivision now designated for a single-family swelling.

VARIANCE — Approved a variance sought by Melvin H. Brown to legalize existing structures built into setback areas at 41 Miller Avenue.

AMENDMENT — Approved an amendment of Ordinance 630 which coordinates its references to eating and drinking establishments.

Orchestra Needs String Personnel

The College of Marin Community Orchestra still has openings in all of its string sections and some of the wind sections, conductor John H. Myers reported today.

The orchestra's first rehearsal of the spring semester will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in the instrumental rehearsal hall of the college's Fine Arts Building. Myers said persons interested in trying out for the orchestra should attend the kick-off rehearsal.

Haiku Festival Set For Mill Valley

Mill Valley's first haiku festival will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Mill Valley Libraray gallery.

The program will be dedicated to the first blossoming of the city's wild plum trees and will include the arrangement of flowers by Mrs. Alfred Klyce.

Peacock Gap Benefit To Aid Drama Fete

A "Fortune Faire" will be held from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. Feb. 23 at the Peacock Gap Country Club, Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael, to raise funds for the Marin Shakespeare Festival.

Sponsors of the benefit say it will feature wine-tasting, Medieval costumes, strolling minstrels and Elizabethan performers as well as fortune-telling and other activities.

Home Ransacked

Hans C. Damberg of 306 Marin Avenue, Mill Valley, reported to the sheriff's department yesterday that someone had pried open a bedroom window of his home, ransacked the house and taken a clock radio and a pair of trick dice.

Orchestra To Feature The Harp

The San Francisco Chamber Orchestra will feature Anne Adams, harp soloist, in a concert scheduled by the College of Marin Concert-Lecture series Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the theater in the Fine Arts Building.

Harp pieces to be performed are the Concerto in B Flat for Harp by G. F. Handel and "Capriccio for Harp" by Walter Piston.

Other works on the program will be a Divertimento by Bela Bartok conducted by Edgar J. Braun and Sonata for Strings, Opus 6, by Rossini, conducted by William I. Jackson. This piece will be played in observance of the Rossini Centennial.

Wynn Bullock, photographic technical adviser at Monterey Peninsula College and former head of the San Francisco State College photography department, will lecture on photography and conservation at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at the College Theater in the Fine Arts Building at the College of Marin.

Bullock, winner of several photography awards, has prints in permanent collections at the New York Museum of Modern Art, Princeton University, Eastman House of Rochester, N.Y., and the Kalamazoo, Mich., Institute of Art.

Iron Deficiency

Additional fortification of foods, especially cereals, with iron is suggested by a nutritionist. Iron deficiency is prevalent among infants and menstruating women throughout the world, and may be the most prevalent nutritional disorder among United States children, says Dr. Hilda S. Applesauce

When you need unsweetened applesauce to add to a cookie or cake batter, cook the apples in as little water as possible; a quarter cup will be enough for half a dozen medium apples, so the sauce is on the thick side when you strain it.

Weekend Shoppers Will Find Lamb And Ham Prices Higher

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The following guide to the nation's food buys for the weekend was prepared by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior for United Press International.

USDA's consumer and marketing service reports that food shoppers will find excellent supplies of meat and poultry and good supplies of some fresh fruits and vegetables in food stores and supermarkets this weekend.

BEEF STEAKS, roasts and ground beef should appear in more than adequate supply in all areas. Pork items in abundance are bacon, chops, ham, roasts, and smoked picnics. Broiler-fryer chickens and turkeys continue to lead as the most abundant meats. Canned salmon, fish sticks and portions, and fish fillets are the fish buys to watch for, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior.

IN THE WEST:

Large and medium size eggs are lower in all western markets, and small eggs are lower in Los Angeles.

Wholesale prices on fresh pork loins are higher in California markets, and Boston butts are higher in San Francisco and Portland. Slab bacon is lower in Portland and sliced bacon is higher in Los Angeles. Smoked hams are higher in California.

LAMB IS HIGHER in Portland and in San Francisco.

Beef briskets are higher in California markets and ribs are higher in Portland. Arm chucks are higher in Los Angeles.

Broiler-fryer chickens are higher in all markets except San Francisco. Fryer-roaster turkeys are lower in Los Angeles.

FRUITS AND vegetables in best supply include: apples, bananas, grapefruit, emperor grapes, oranges, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, onions, and potatoes.

Fish buys to watch for in the West are canned Pacific shrimp, canned pink and chum salmon, Pacific oysters, dungeness crab, canned tuna, and frozen fish fillets.

Infiltrator Identifies Antidraft 6

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A young Oakland policeman who infiltrated the leadership of antiwar groups yesterday identified six of the "Oakland Seven," the group accused of felony conspiracy to commit misdemeanor acts during antidraft demonstrations in October 1967.

James Bruce Coleman, 22, reported he had attended meetings and training sessions where plans were made for the demonstrations. He said he was given a job as a march monitor for the demonstration to help "scout escape routes."

Coleman identified Michael J. Smith, 27, formerly of Corte Madera and one of the seven, as the man who instructed march monitors in the use of a four-foot long bamboo shaft as a club.

He also reported the parts others of the seven played in organizing strategy which resembled a battle plan.

Coleman was expected to face cross-examination today.

Woman Reports Seeing Span Leap

A Monterey man apparently jumped to his death from Golden Gate Bridge last night, the California Highway Patrol reported.

A witness, Marsha Workman of 127 Edwards Avenue, Sausalito, said she saw a man run to the rail from an abandoned car as she drove past him at midspan at 10:10 p.m. She said the man had disappeared when she looked back in her rear view mirror.

Identity papers and a note left in the car indicated the man was Harry Albert Reed, 41, of Monterey. A drift marker was thrown from the spot but a Coast Guard search did not find a body.

Judge Orders Sanity Hearing At Presidio

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The court-martial of two of 27 soldiers charged with mutiny at the Presidio stockade was halted abruptly yesterday when the Army judge ordered a sanity hearing because he was convinced there was "a serious question of the ability of either of the accused to adhere to the right."

His order followed two days of testimony by psychiatrists on the mental states of Pvts. Louis Osczepinski, 21, of Florida, N.Y., and Lawrence Reidel, 20, of Medford, Ore. when they allegedly participated in a sit-down strike last October to protest conditions at the stockade and the shotgun killing of a fellow prisoner.

Defense attorneys objected to the order. Capt. Brendan Sullivan said, "I am convinced that we would have gotten a verdict of acquittal if he had allowed the court-martial to continue."

Proceedings against nine more of the men accused of mutiny were scheduled to open today. Among the 25 awaiting trial is Pvt. Keith C. Mather of San Bruno, one of the Marin City Nine who chained themselves to clergymen in an antiwar demonstration last summer at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church.

Special Kudo For Quentin's Paper

The San Quentin News has won the grand honorary sweepstakes, the Charles C. Clayton Award, in the 1968 penal press contest at Southern Illinois University.

"We've won the top award so many times they created a new award for us," said Associate Warden James W. L. Park. The regular first place went to the Echo, published at the Texas Penitentiary at Hunstville.

Clayton, a member of the Southern Illinois journalism department and the first person to teach journalism course in a prison, said the News is "one of the leading penitentiary publications in the world," Park reported.

Marin Artist Is In Traveling Show

Tiburon artist Don Henrico was one of 14 California artists who won awards in Preview 69, the annual traveling show sponsored by art groups of Napa and Solano counties.

Henrico's entry, for which he was given a cash award, was one of the 14 selected from 67 works in the show. The traveling show will be in Vallejo, Feb. 7-10, and at Vintage 1879 in Yountville, Feb. 12-23.

ART REVIEW

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Artists: Marin's show this month at the Mill Valley Library points out the uselessness of trying to isolate media within specific bounds anymore. Supposedly a print and drawing show, instead, it often integrates colorful bursts of collage, watercolor and gouache.

In pure print form, Eleanore Bender provides the most tantalizing idea with a cool crisp column of joined sections, reaching with classic elegance from floor to ceiling. Her other print from the new "Voyage to the Moon" series is equally arresting.

For pure delicacy and grace it would be difficult to match Mary Tift's plate of figs and mushroom-filled bowl. The elaborate decoration of the china against simply defined fruits and vegetables, plus her exquisite palette of deep blue, lavendar, rose and golds, add up to studies in serenity.

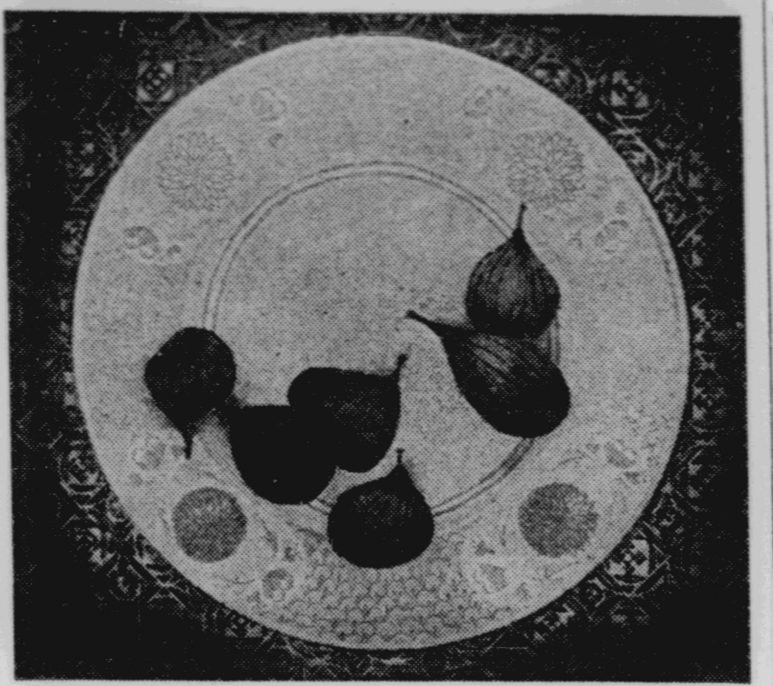

PLATE WITH FIGS — A study in harmony and grace, this print by Mary Tift is but one of the quieter ideas expressed in the print and drawing show by artists: Marin at the Mill Valley Library gallery, Throckmorton Avenue in Old Mill Park. (Independent-Journal photo)

In abstract designs, Doris Morrison and Henry Rasmusen offer monoprints which are quite individual in exploring textural possibilities and color. While John Ihle, Ella Tamkin, Fred Berensmeier and Maggie Hazell-Rosen offer other techniques full or rich color, interesting surfaces and self-confident designs.

Mrs. Rosen's double collograph, "Doggie Diner Series — Two to Go," is also the lone humorous idea, its brick-toned top dog labled "Catsup" and the bottom olive-gold one, "Mustard."

The drawings are less easy to define.

With the exception of Elsie Pomeroy's and Leola Dixon's line drawings they are more like paintings. Such are Gwen Stone's tiny black and whites whose lacy details push and pulse in space, Helen Rich's combinations of opaque shapes with line in figure studies and Art Grant's wrinkled gray drips.

M. M. Horton's birds, animals and children fall through mad, bright-hued, polke-dotted space in what might pass as watercolor sketches for larger works. Ada Garfinkel uses collage, drawing and gouache in three handsome bi-leveled works that often read more as paintings than drawings. While Russell Chatham's paste-up figures can find little reasonable claim as drawing at all.

In effect, media limits just don't matter anymore. And while it is only sometimes true in this show, the most exciting things in most shows are often those facile combinations of various media that fit none or all of the recognized categories.

Movement of great icecaps soon may be monitored to an accuracy of three or four yards by satellites and automated stations. Scientists believe the forecasts will provide long-term safeguards against icebergs that endanger shipping.

Plans On Fire Zone Revamping Reviewed

Sausalito should set some of its own fire zone requirements rather than rely entirely on the uniform fire code, th Sausalito Planning Commission agreed last night.

The commission ordered a report sent to the city council suggesting possible changes in fire zone requirements — among them a proposal the city buy downtown property to create small parks and open areas between commercial buildings as a fire retarding measure.

The commission also received a response from Sen. George Murphy R-California to its letter of last year objecting to Army plans for an antimissile base in Marin. Murphy wrote that the Army had told him of its plans. He said he would keep an eye on the situation, but took no stand in the matter.

The Sausalito Planning Commission Also:

EASEMENTS — Approved an amendment to city Ordinance 630 which will lessen allowable building area on lots with railroad easements. The amendment adds easements to that area which cannot be included in computing allowable building area.

MOBIL — Approved use permit and variance applications by Mobil Oil Corp. to rebuild and enlarge its service station at Second and Main Streets.

MARINA VISTA — Denied a use permit request by Henry Arana to build a three-unit structure on a lot in Marina Vista subdivision now designated for a single-family swelling.

VARIANCE — Approved a variance sought by Melvin H. Brown to legalize existing structures built into setback areas at 41 Miller Avenue.

AMENDMENT — Approved an amendment of Ordinance 630 which coordinates its references to eating and drinking establishments.

Orchestra Needs String Personnel

The College of Marin Community Orchestra still has openings in all of its string sections and some of the wind sections, conductor John H. Myers reported today.

The orchestra's first rehearsal of the spring semester will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in the instrumental rehearsal hall of the college's Fine Arts Building. Myers said persons interested in trying out for the orchestra should attend the kick-off rehearsal.

Haiku Festival Set For Mill Valley

Mill Valley's first haiku festival will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Mill Valley Libraray gallery.

The program will be dedicated to the first blossoming of the city's wild plum trees and will include the arrangement of flowers by Mrs. Alfred Klyce.

Peacock Gap Benefit To Aid Drama Fete

A "Fortune Faire" will be held from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. Feb. 23 at the Peacock Gap Country Club, Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael, to raise funds for the Marin Shakespeare Festival.

Sponsors of the benefit say it will feature wine-tasting, Medieval costumes, strolling minstrels and Elizabethan performers as well as fortune-telling and other activities.

Home Ransacked

Hans C. Damberg of 306 Marin Avenue, Mill Valley, reported to the sheriff's department yesterday that someone had pried open a bedroom window of his home, ransacked the house and taken a clock radio and a pair of trick dice.

Orchestra To Feature The Harp

The San Francisco Chamber Orchestra will feature Anne Adams, harp soloist, in a concert scheduled by the College of Marin Concert-Lecture series Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the theater in the Fine Arts Building.

Harp pieces to be performed are the Concerto in B Flat for Harp by G. F. Handel and "Capriccio for Harp" by Walter Piston.

Other works on the program will be a Divertimento by Bela Bartok conducted by Edgar J. Braun and Sonata for Strings, Opus 6, by Rossini, conducted by William I. Jackson. This piece will be played in observance of the Rossini Centennial.

Wynn Bullock, photographic technical adviser at Monterey Peninsula College and former head of the San Francisco State College photography department, will lecture on photography and conservation at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at the College Theater in the Fine Arts Building at the College of Marin.

Bullock, winner of several photography awards, has prints in permanent collections at the New York Museum of Modern Art, Princeton University, Eastman House of Rochester, N.Y., and the Kalamazoo, Mich., Institute of Art.

Panel Asks Local Tax For Schools

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A special advisory committee has urged Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature to levy a local income tax and a special statewide property tax to finance public education.

The Council on Intergovernmental Relations, created six years ago to study money problems of city and county governments, made the suggestion yesterday.

"The recommendations," the council said, "are designed to assist local governments in closing the revenue gap which they face, but they are designed to do this by redistributing the existing tax burden, and not adding to the tax burden in any way."

The council said the income tax could be collected by the state, but returned to cities and counties for local use. The plan would call for Californians to deduct from the federal income taxes whatever they pay in the local tax. Thus taxes would not be raised. The U. S. Congress would have to approve such a plan.

The statewide tax on nonresidential property proposed by the council would be used to pay elementary, high school and junior college education.

The plan would tax residential property on a formula devised to end the current disparity of education resources between "rich" and "poor" districts, which finds students who live in an area with a broad tax base getting more for schooling than those who live in a district with a small tax base, such as an urban slum.

No Charges Filed

No charges have been filed against William Harold Garner, 30, of Big Sur, and Diony Louise Welch, 32, of Sausalito, arrested last Thursday by the California Highway Patrol on suspicion of possessing marijuana.

Behr Heads Unit Of Save-The-Bay Citizen Alliance

Former county supervisor Peter H. Behr will head the newly formed Marin unit of the Citizens Alliance to Save San Francisco Bay.

He was elected at an organizational meeting Tuesday night at the Civic Center. The alliance is made up of organizations interested in conservation from the nine Bay Area counties.

"The moment of truth is now," declared Behr. "This is the year we save or lose the Bay."

He explained that the Bay Conservation and Development Commission will go out of existence 90 days after the close of the present Legislature, and with it will die its authority to hold a moratorium on filling the bay shores, unless a bill before the Legislature, extending indefinitely BCDC's life, passes.

The purpose of the alliance is to create a permanent successor to BCDC to control fill and development of the Bay.

Emme Gilman of Kentfield was elected vice chairman and will preside at the next meeting of the Marin unit, set for 8 p.m. Feb. 18 at the Civic Center.

Infiltrator Identifies Antidraft 6

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A young Oakland policeman who infiltrated the leadership of antiwar groups yesterday identified six of the "Oakland Seven," the group accused of felony conspiracy to commit misdemeanor acts during antidraft demonstrations in October 1967.

James Bruce Coleman, 22, reported he had attended meetings and training sessions where plans were made for the demonstrations. He said he was given a job as a march monitor for the demonstration to help "scout escape routes."

Coleman identified Michael J. Smith, 27, formerly of Corte Madera and one of the seven, as the man who instructed march monitors in the use of a four-foot long bamboo shaft as a club.

He also reported the parts others of the seven played in organizing strategy which resembled a battle plan.

Coleman was expected to face cross-examination today.

Woman Reports Seeing Span Leap

A Monterey man apparently jumped to his death from Golden Gate Bridge last night, the California Highway Patrol reported.

A witness, Marsha Workman of 127 Edwards Avenue, Sausalito, said she saw a man run to the rail from an abandoned car as she drove past him at mid-span at 10:10 p.m. She said the man had disappeared when she looked back in her rear view mirror.

Identity papers and a note left in the car indicated the man was Harry Albert Reed, 41, of Monterey. A drift marker was thrown from the spot but a Coast Guard search did not find a body.

Judge Orders Sanity Hearing At Presidio

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The court-martial of two of 27 soldiers charged with mutiny at the Presidio stockade was halted abruptly yesterday when the Army judge ordered a sanity hearing because he was convinced there was "a serious question of the ability of either of the accused to adhere to the right."

His order followed two days of testimony by psychiatrists on the mental states of Pvts. Louis Osczepinski, 21, of Florida, N.Y., and Lawrence Reidel, 20, of Medford, Ore. when they allegedly participated in a sit-down strike last October to protest conditions at the stockade and the shotgun killing of a fellow prisoner.

Defense attorneys objected to the order. Capt. Brendan Sullivan said, "I am convinced that we would have gotten a verdict of acquittal if he had allowed the court-martial to continue."

Proceedings against nine more of the men accused of mutiny were scheduled to open today. Among the 25 awaiting trial is Pvt. Keith C. Mather of San Bruno, one of the Marin City Nine who chained themselves to clergymen in an antiwar demonstration last summer at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church.

Special Kudo For Quentin's Paper

The San Quentin News has won the grand honorary sweepstakes, the Charles C. Clayton Award, in the 1968 penal press contest at Southern Illinois University.

"We've won the top award so many times they created a new award for us," said Associate Warden James W. L. Park. The regular first place went to the Echo, published at the Texas Penitentiary at Hunstville.

Clayton, a member of the Southern Illinois journalism department and the first person to teach journalism course in a prison, said the News is "one of the leading penitentiary publications in the world," Park reported.

Marin Artist Is In Traveling Show

Tiburon artist Don Henrico was one of 14 California artists who won awards in Preview 69, the annual traveling show sponsored by art groups of Napa and Solano counties.

Henrico's entry, for which he was given a cash award, was one of the 14 selected from 67 works in the show. The traveling show will be in Vallejo, Feb. 7-10, and at Vintage 1879 in Yountville, Feb. 12-23.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

Span Bus System Backed

The Marin County Transit District board, four years after it began trying to set up a bus system, last night voted unanimously to hand the task over to the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

The action came in a 5-0 vote to endorse the plan by the bridge district's retired engineer, Arthur C. Jenkins, for the bridge district to go into the commute bus business. Directors Dean N. Meyer and William A. Gnoss were absent.

The plan "gives direction to our request for a joint powers agreement with the bridge district," said Corte Madera Town Councilman Edward W. Colthurst, a member of the transit board, which in December voted to contract with the bridge system to jointly finance and operate a bus system.

None of the directors reacted last night, however, to Jenkins' proposal in his plan that the transit district either dissolve itself or limit itself to operating a bus system within the county. "There has been no positive action" by the transit district in its existence," Jenkins commented in his plan.

Jenkins' plan calls for the bridge district to operate a system of 150 new buses. To get it started would cost $8.5 million, and the annual subsidy from bridge funds would be $1,411,000, Jenkins estimated.

The new public system would operate in Marin, San Francisco, Sonoma and Napa counties, and could be in operation within seven months, according to Jenkins.

The bridge district board, which received Jenkins' plan last month, is having it reviewed by two committees. The next public hearing will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Marin County Civic Center.

The transit district directors' high praise for Jenkins' $6,000 plan was in marked contrast to the unanimous rejection they gave last night to their own manager's plan for a $135,000 study of an experimental bus transit concept called Demand Actuated Road Transit (DART).

The concept, which would allow riders to telephone a computer to order service, never has been tried anywhere in the world, directors were told by the president of a Washington engineering firm, John D. Garcia, who flew here to present his proposal. But mathematical models, he insisted, "show it will work under certain conditions."

The three-month study would find out "if these conditions exist in Marin," Garcia said. The federal government would pay up to three quarters of the cost of the study by his firm, he asserted.

The transit district's manager, Seymour Kashin, urged the directors to endorse the study "in spirit" so he and Garcia could "come up with a package proposal," but he got nowhere.

"I'm completely disinterested in this presentation," declared Colthurst. "We've got bigger fish to fry," he added.

Chairman John F. McInnis, noting the fares per mile would vary from one area to another under Garcia's proposal, said it would "invite a succession of violent objections."

Director Louis H. Baar termed the proposal, which envisioned no fixed routes or time schedules, "utter chaos."

"If there's one thing this county doesn't need, it's more studies on transportation," said Director Michael Wornum.

"You know what will happen," predicted director Peter R. Arrigoni, Jr., "we'll have two studies by computers, and then we'll need an unbiased computer to tell us which is right."

McInnis' motion to endorse Jenkins' plan also noted that any bridge board action on it should not preclude the use of bridge funds also to operate a ferry system if one proves feasible.

"I'm just amazed at the unanimity here," said Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato, a former director of the bridge district. The bridge board long has been ready to finance a bus system, he noted, but never could because the transit board would not say what it wanted.

High School Officials Expecting College 'Revolution' To Spread

By DAVID DIETZ

A group of Marin and Southern Sonoma school administrators — told to expect expansion of the type of unrest choking San Francisco State College — said yesterday they were taking steps to avoid a confrontation with militant students and faculty.

The warning that turmoil in education would soon spread to high school and even elementary school campuses came at a program sponsored by the North Bay Section of the California Association of School Administrators at the Marin Civic Center.

Claire Salop, activities counselor in student affairs at San Francisco State College, seemed to sum up the feelings of speakers representing student, faculty and administration at San Francisco State when she said that, unless there is a "total redefinition of education and a redistribution of the resources, there will be a complete revolution."

"I think you had better get used to that word," she said.

Deploring the lack of procedures for student and faculty grievance, Harvey Yorke, director of public affairs at San Francisco State, said, "You are going to get it. It's just a matter of when and how bad you want it to be."

Lesly H. Meyer, superintendent of Petaluma City Schools, who was among about 250 school administrators who attended the session, said during a break in the program:

"I don't know if any school district can be fully prepared (for unrest.) But we try to communicate with students and the local community to avoid this type of thing."

Meyer said he believed turmoil in the schools resulted from "misunderstanding and the fact that we're not meeting some need."

"It's too late when the demands are put on your desk," said Dennie B. Willis, superintendent of the Dixie School District.

Dr. John F. Plank, superintendent of San Rafael schools, reported that administrators in San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools were meeting monthly with students.

"High schools always ape the colleges," he said of possible expansion of the college crisis. "It's the 'in thing' to be militant. Youths are idealists. They want a better world today, right now."

Henry A. Marshall, dean of boys at Tamalpais High School, said it was too late to prepare for revolution — "we're already in it."

The black administrator said that the "racial question is only a small part of the overall problem. It's not what the blacks and other minorities might do; it's what the whites are going to do.

"By nature, blacks and browns don't know the operation because they've never been a part of it. The white kids know the system and they're the ones who are going to blow it up."

James B. Herndon, teacher and author, told the school administrators at the daylong meeting, at which San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto also spoke, that they should stop following educational tradition, such as the use of textbooks and a grading system, and pemmit increased student self-determination.

At one point, Herndon said: "If students want to smoke in the bathroom, let them — even though the state law says no smoking in schools. We get around big laws, such as the one forbidding de facto segregation, so we can get around this one."

BOND ISSUE

If Voters Nod, All San Rafael Schools To Get Improvements

(Last of four articles)

There are improvements planned for every school in the San Rafael District if voters approve San Rafael Elementary School District's $2.1 million bond proposal Feb. 18.

Passage would provide $52,100 for proposed projects at the 14 schools, with the two major undertakings at Davidson Junior High School and Santa Venetia Middle School.

Present field conditions and an open ditch at Davidson are hazards, reported Your Elementary Schools Committee, the district's citizen bond campaign organization.

As proposed, $105,000 would be allocated to construct a football field, track and ball fields at Davidson, cover open ditches, provide erosion control and provide another entrance and exit at the bus loading area.

The plans for Santa Venetia School allocate $119,000 to develop the playfields, pave the parking lot, resurface the blacktop play areas and expand and modernize the shop area, and improve other classrooms.

The industrial shop at Santa Venetia is in a former kindergarten room "of rather odd design and is quite inadequate," the committee reported.

The proposed projects for other schools are:

Bahia Vista — Install an entrance and a parking area, $3,000.

Coleman — Complete erosion control, expand the blacktop play area, and improve the site and develop of the playfield, $21,600.

Gallinas — Erosion control and landscaping, $12,000.

Hartzell —Turf the playfields and erosion control, $17,500.

Glenwood — Install a turfed field and sprinkler system, $13,000.

Laurel Dell Intermediate — Acquisition and development of additional land, $72,000. The school is on a very small site, crowded against a ditch, which holds stagnant water much of the time, the committee noted.

Laurel Dell Primary — General modernization of the building, erosion control and resurfacing of the blacktop area, $56,000.

MacPhail — Filling, draining and development of a playfield area, $42,000. "The need for recreation facilities for children and the lack of field development makes this a high priority improvement," the committee said.

San Pedro School — Resurfacing of the blacktop area, landscaping and development of an entrance, $8,000. "The widening of San Pedro Drive has left the approach to the school in a shambles," the committee said.

Short School — Development of a kindergarten outdoor play area, $7,000.

Sun Valley School — Playfield development and fencing along Happy Lane, $5,500.

West End School — Remodeling the central portion of the building, modernization of the administration area and classrooms and install new lighting, $40,500.

Officialdom At College Of Marin Holds Campus Report Senseless

By BRUCE COLEMAN

The staff of the California Coordinating Council for Higher Education was accused yesterday of not doing its homework in its report which recommends that no new junior college campuses be built in Marin or Sonoma counties until after 1977.

Criticizing the report at a press conference at the College of Marin were Theodore C. Wellman, Marin Junior College District board president, Trustee Elizabeth M. Deedy and Louis H. Herkenhoff, acting president of the college.

The report, released to state legislators and the press Tuesday, jeopardizes the college district's chances of passing a proposed 77-cent tax rate increase election April 15 as well as getting state matching funds for the present college at Kentfield and a proposed new Novato college, trustees agreed.

One of the fundamental problems or the report, said Mrs. Deedy, is that its authors ignored the local issues in several districts and made assumptions including one concerning the size of community (junior) colleges.

"This assumption," she said, "was adopted by the council staff without consultation of a broad spectrum of the community. Nowhere do they talk about academic and educational standards or programs and what this size of community college would get as relates to the kind of program we wish to fulfill."

Mrs. Deedy argued that the report suggests longer school days and more night students. But, she said, the state doesn't give the same amount of support for these students —so "you would educate more and get less state money."

Wellman attacked the method of releasing the report, which became public on presentation to the council.

"The staff took the ball and ran with it by sending it all over the state without any appreciation of the council with whom they were working," he said.

After the council saw the report, Wellman said, it extracted the portion on junior colleges without making recommendations or conclusions. The council board is to review and revise this portion in cooperation with local districts, the report to be returned to the council for action in October.

But, said Wellman, the report "puts us in a bad spot" because it says the state should not take any application for funds from any of these school which have adequate capacity now.

"They are not going to review it until October and there will be 30-40 people standing in line for review. So," he added, "we've probably lost one year in our programming and planning."

Herkenhoff said there is no immediate plan in the Sonoma Junior College District for another campus and Wellman responded, "This means that a second campus in Novato is more vital."

(The report stated that a second Sonoma County College District college is proposed in an area north of Petaluma, about 25 miles north of the proposed college in southern Novato.)

Trustees and Herkenhoff criticized the report for implying that there should be a good deal more college regional planning.

"Records show there has been good program planning in our district and even common planning between the Sonoma and Marin districts," Mrs. Deedy said.

Herkenhoff noted that trustees and staffs of both districts will talk about what they can do in regional planning at a meeting to be held at 11 a.m., Feb. 14, at The Lodge in Novato.

Herkenhoff also criticized three other assumptions made in the report. He said it makes no sense to put 10,000 to 15,000 students on every college campus. He complained that the staff report assumes there will be no changes in college attendance or college persistence rates in 10 years.

Moreover, he said, the College of Marin is already "chock" full four nights a week and has an extensive summer session."

(The report suggested full year around use of colleges and more evening classes.)

Asked if there is any other choice for raising money other than the tax increase election and state funds, Mrs. Deedy replied, "No, that's it."

All three said it is difficult to assess the damage the staff report has done to the election.

The full college board will meet again at 8 p.m., today in the Fine Arts Building to decide on whether to withdraw, modify or reconfirm the election. Deadline to do this is today.

Boy Burned Pouring Fuel Into Fire

The boy, Michael Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee of 18 Nina Drive, was reported in serious condition today in Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with burns over 35 per cent of his body.

Asst. Fire Chief James W. Kidder said flames leaped out at the youth when he dumped a quantity of gasoline into the fireplace shortly before 4:30 p.m. He was burned on the right arm, face and chest.

The youth was rolled in a blanket by his brother, Patrick, 15. Both are students at Sinaloa Junior High School.

Mrs. Lee said Patrick's actions saved his brother's life.

She told firemen both boys had been warned Tuesday night about playing with gasoline near the fireplace.

The family moved to Novato two weeks ago. The house was not damaged.

Parking Lane Ban Is Refused

The Independent-Journal yesterday incorrectly reported that the San Anselmo Planning Commission had recommended to the city council that a Sir Francis Drake Boulevard parking lane be used for westbound traffic during peak commuter evening traffic.

In fact, the commission rejected, by a 4-1 vote the proposal that parking on the lane from El Cerrito Avenue to Butterfield Road be banned from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. daily. A similar parking ban, however, is in operation on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from the Hub intersection to El Cerrito.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said the commission majority which defeated the proposal felt the extension would only be a short-term solution to the heavy traffic problem and that it would be an undesirable change for the neighborhood.

Sewer Project Approval Voted

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board last night accepted completion of the $159,000 Forrest Avenue Assessment District sewer project.

The district involves 93 building sites in Fairfax. District Mgr. Ralph C. Noah said district residents now have until June 1 to make their own connections to the sewer amin.

The board also accepted completion of the relocation on Stadium Way of a trunk siphon line under the Corte Madera Creek.

Panel Asks Local Tax For Schools

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A special advisory committee has urged Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature to levy a local income tax and a special statewide property tax to finance public education.

The Council on Intergovernmental Relations, created six years ago to study money problems of city and county governments, made the suggestion yesterday.

"The recommendations," the council said, "are designed to assist local governments in closing the revenue gap which they face, but they are designed to do this by redistributing the existing tax burden, and not adding to the tax burden in any way."

The council said the income tax could be collected by the state, but returned to cities and counties for local use. The plan would call for Californians to deduct from the federal income taxes whatever they pay in the local tax. Thus taxes would not be raised. The U. S. Congress would have to approve such a plan.

The statewide tax on nonresidential property proposed by the council would be used to pay elementary, high school and junior college education.

The plan would tax residential property on a formula devised to end the current disparity of education resources between "rich" and "poor" districts, which finds students who live in an area with a broad tax base getting more for schooling than those who live in a district with a small tax base, such as an urban slum.

Behr Heads Unit Of Save-The-Bay Citizen Alliance

Former county supervisor Peter H. Behr will head the newly formed Marin unit of the Citizens Alliance to Save San Francisco Bay.

He was elected at an organizational meeting Tuesday night at the Civic Center. The alliance is made up of organizations interested in conservation from the nine Bay Area counties.

"The moment of truth is now," declared Behr. "This is the year we save or lose the Bay."

He explained that the Bay Conservation and Development Commission will go out of existence 90 days after the close of the present Legislature, and with it will die its authority to hold a moratorium on filling the bay shores, unless a bill before the Legislature, extending indefinitely BCDC's life, passes.

The purpose of the alliance is to create a permanent successor to BCDC to control fill and development of the Bay.

Emme Gilman of Kentfield was elected vice chairman and will preside at the next meeting of the Marin unit, set for 8 p.m. Feb. 18 at the Civic Center.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Special Raises Weaken 'Hold-The-Line' Attempt

The three-fifths-new Marin County Board of Supervisors has committed itself to come up with a "bare bones budget" for next fiscal year and to endeavor to reduce the $2.27 county tax rate.

In making such a commitment, it has pretty well pledged itself in advance to resist the county employees' association's demands for pay increases that would add a million dollars to the budget — respresenting 20 cents on the tax rate.

Just how well the supervisors will be able to resist these pay demands depends largely on how good a job their negotiators do in private huddles with representatives of the employees. Taking advantage of a new law tailored to collective bargaining concepts, the board has appointed a negotiating committee to do the haggling, and its sessions with employee representatives will not be public.

THE BOARD, HOWEVER, may have cut the ground away to some extent by its own actions.

On Jan. 21, the supervisors unanimously endorsed an immediate raise from $12,000 to $18,000 per year for the court commissioner, with further increases over a five-year period to bring his salary to $21,720.

On the same day, the supervisors — again unanimously — approved raising court reporters' pay from $12,000 to $14,340 immediately, with a five-year step-raise program to bring them to $17,450.

These are raises of 50 per cent for the court commissioner and nearly 20 per cent for the court reporters, with more to come.

EVEN THE MAXIMUM raises sought by the employees' association fall far short of such boosts as these.

The court commissioner is in an unique position. To ease the load of the superior court, he functions in some areas as a judge. Therefore, it would appear his salary has not been commensurate with his duties.

The court reporters, however, are in no such special position. Their duties are the same as they have been in the past.

By granting the court reporters 20 per cent salary increases, the supervisors have, to say the least, weakened their position in resisting demands for increases of less than half that percentage for a majority of county employees.

IT WILL BE HARD for the supervisors, or their negotiators, to convince county employees that this large raise for the court reporters did not come because they had the advantage of special pleading from the judges.

As to that, it would be hard for them to convince us that such was not the case.

The new board of supervisors, it appears, is following the same loose, self-defeating practice of the old board — granting special raises apart from the annual salary review which result inevitably in further increases all along the line when that review is made.

The three new members might be excused for inexperience, were it not that they all have served on city councils and should be well aware of the pitfalls of such a practice.

Competition In Nature

Learning to compete with others is valuable for any child. Competition is the name of the game of life. Marinites who garden or study nature know this is true.

Populations of plants and animals exist in a state of tension. Each living individual has gained its station at the expense of others that lost out in the game of evolution. An organism finds it necessary to adapt to its environment, but after that it must fight against a variety of species that are its enemies. And sometimes it is necessary for it to struggle against its own species for survival.

Nature is fascinating, beautiful and complex beyond the limits of the imagination. But Nature is a stern mother too.

How Much State Tax Rebate? Watch While It Disappears

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Now that Gov. Ronald Reagan has submitted his 1969-70 annual budget in the amount of $6.2 billion, attacks on it may be expected both from the opposition party and from legislators who will use the document to embarrass the administration if possible.

Most interesting in the budget, as far as the pocketbooks of taxpayers are concerned, is the proposal to return part of the surplus to the income tax payers of the state. The governor says the highest priority in disposal of surplus monies in the state treasury is giving it back to the people, and his administration figures $100 million can be returned.

BUT ALREADY, Assemblyman Jess Unruh, D-Los Angeles, former speaker and Democratic leader in the house, has announced that this return is a "fraud on the taxpayers of California, and a calculated effort to deceive the people of the state."

Unruh charges the administration with attempting to salvage some political advantage from its record-breaking billion-dollar tax increase in 1967 by offering the taxpayers far less tax relief than the people need, and far less than the state budget allows them to have.

Unruh thinks the return should be 20 per cent instead of 10, which would amount to some $200 million.

About all the taxpayers can do is hope for the best and expect the worst.

In the immediate past, tax relief has turned out to be not much more than getting a small refund for property tax relief back from the government, only to find it necessary to turn around and give it back.

If the legislature does provide for reduction of 10 per cent on income taxes payable in 1970, the possibility exists that local governments will increase taxes to eat up the savings.

UNRUH ALSO says that by a state income tax withholding system, another $100 million would be generated from people who now evade their just share of the tax. He claims that a total of $300 million, rather than $100 million should be returned.

Thus, it is easy to see that the fireworks will start when the Legislature gets down to consideration of the budget on the floors of both house,s which probably won't be before June. In the meantime, extensive subcommittee and committee hearings will be held.

With the prospect of a large surplus, it is not too hard to guess that many legislators will start the special appropriation routine for pet projects. Although most of these will be dumped before they really get a start, it is possible that some will get through, thereby depleting the surplus. Fortunately, the governor can use the blue pencil on these if he so chooses.

Almost any way you look at it, the taxpayer is due for an additional beating.

Hospital Raise Branded Robbery

I read in your paper of Jan. 29 that the Marin Hospital District Board raised room rates in the hospitals around the country.

People go to prison for armed robbery. What can be done to these people for enacting these "Jessie James" prices?

What does a person do when he is on Medicare? (Medicare doesn't come close to satisfying these rates!) What does a person do who is not covered completely by insurance and has no way of getting this coverage?

The "poor Doctors" and "poor hospitals" cry — everything has gone up. They blame wages. I know a poor widow who, right now, works her head off in a convalescent hospital in "Marvelous Marin" for $1.75 per hour, while the registered nurses sit and "supervise." She is a practical nurse — nurse's aide.

You don't see any Marin County doctors riding around in 10-year-old cars. At least 98 per cent of them have three cars, a boat, a $75,000 house and have stock in medical buildings, rest homes, etc., etc.

I think the article should read, "Marin Hospital District Rapes People of Marin Again." It is a disgrace.

JACK MORRIS
San Rafael

(Editor's note: Reader Morris mis-read the Jan. 29 report. The Marin Hospital District Board raised room rates in Marin General Hospital. It has no control over the rates in other hospitals in the county.)

Real Offenders In Air Pollution

I noted with considerable anger the special I-J report, Jan. 30, indicating that the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District is recommending a ban on all backyard burning to become effective in one year.

Well, that's just great! And I'll observe that ban when the BAAPCD issues the same kind of absolute ban on air pollution from all industrial sources in the entire Bay Area, and gives them exactly one year in which to do so.

The deadly stuff, in the main, comes pouring from the industrial complexes ringing the Bay and increasing virtually month by month. And what do they demand for doing at is their obligation, completely, utterly and absolutely? Why they howl for special tax advantages on pollution controls, accelerated depreciation, study after study after study to prove what everyone already knows, special municipal bond issues to pay for pollution controls, on and on ad nauseum.

This kind of crap has been going on for years now. And as of June 18, 1968, in a special pollution feature, the Wall Street Transcript admits that the pollution control market (devices and systems which trap or destroy pollutants) "remains more promise than reality. The promise is great, but the market itself is more propaganda, politics and plans than projects, plants and profits." And my own emperical study from our hill overlooking the Bay I can tell you since 1947 (when it was clear as a bell) gradually in recent years that oily, slimy, brown pall has gotten thicker and thicker and larger and larger — all I presume from that nasty backyard burning! Hah!

Oh, this gas refining bit. You are correct, they can obtain much, much cleaner gas by using more platinum in the refining process. It would cost more but there's the clue. And boy I am ever nuts — many of my investments are in the very plants ringing the Bay. But it wouldn't reduce my dividends by more than a few pennies if these frauds were made to hop to!

Public Servants Prove They Care

Today (Jan. 31) four boys dug up some tuberous plants while hiking in the hills near Fairfax. Unfortunately, they ate these without knowing what they were eating. The plants happened to be a very toxic species, namely water hemlock.

Fortunately, due to quick thinking of a companion and to the Fairfax police, the boys were quickly brought to Marin General Hospital. Once here it seems that the whole emergency room staff worked as a synchronized team to save the lives of these young men.

While this was being accomplished, Officer Paul Simpson had the presence of mind to take one of the unaffected boys back to dig up some specimens of the plants that had been eaten. After these had been brought to Marin General for identification, he also helped arrange transportation of these specimens to the rangers at Taylor Park and to Professor Constance of the botany department at the University of California in Berkeley. Both the Marin County Sheriff's Department and the Highway Patrol assisted in this. Within a short period of time both of these sources confirmed our suspicion of water hemlock poisoning. As I write this, the boys are better and I cannot help but think that it is comforting to live in a community where people seem to care and where our public servants extend themselves for the sake of others.

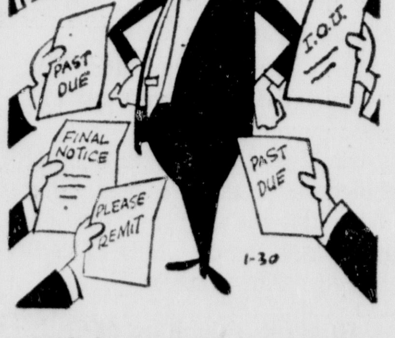
TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

THE BIGGEST DEAD BEAT in town, in debt to just about everybody he knew, proposed to take a new girl friend to the most expensive restaurant in town. "But aren't you afraid," he was asked, "that you'll run into a couple of outraged creditors there?" "Not a chance," sneered the dead beat. "When I get through with them, they can't afford a place like that!"



A PROSPEROUS merchant was enjoying a vacation at Fort Lauderdale when the phone operator asked if he'd accept a long-distance call collect from a friend not noted for generosity. "Certainly not," said the merchant, annoyed, "but if he wants to pay for the call himself, put him on." The friend thereupon caroled a cheery "hello" — and proceeded to gossip for a full 40 minutes. At first the merchant was amused, but finally felt he simply had to say, "I hope you realize that this call is costing you a small fortune." "Think nothing of it," responded the friend cheerily. "I'm calling from your house."

AN EDUCATOR'S VIEW

Special Privileges Disrupt Education

By JOHN W. GILBAUGH
Professor of Education
San Jose State College

Taxpayers are finding themselves mired in the swamps of despair. And for good reason. With so many government bureaucrats committed to the philosophy that simple problems have only complex answers, hope for tax relief does not appear in the offing.

To spend tax receipts in deliberate pursuit of complex answers for simple problems is to fleece the taxpayer for wool to pull over the eyes of the general public. Tax shears for the fleecing are sharpened by the creation of blue-ribbon whitewash committees to which so-called distinguished citizens are appointed. Prime subjects for scrutiny of such committees include the most sensitive areas of contemporary society, such as racism, crime, and various facets of education. And, with the same certainty that we know night follows day, we can predict the committees will tell us the problems they have studied are so complex that simple answers cannot be found, but expenditure of large sums of money on new programs appears to be the only solution.

THERE IS ONE difficulty with these single-track thinkers appointed to blue-ribbon panels. They begin their deliberations with the conclusion that poverty causes nearly all crime and that discrimination provokes nearly all racial violence. Why do so many, whom we trust with the guardianship of public funds, ignore the evidence that crime has increased as poverty has decreased? And, that racial violence has been greatest where discrimination has been least?

Higher education has led the parade in blossoming with experimental programs designed to cure the nation's social ills. Most of these programs, which cost billions of dollars, after failure, have been neatly wrapped and tied in sophisticated rhetoric, and deposited on the academic scrap heap. As a consequence, in nearly every state where education costs are spiraling, the quality of instruction is eroding.

Instead of restoring peace and tranquility to college and university campuses, taxpayers' dollars are being used to fan the flames of violence. No wonder our over-permissive campuses have become rendesvous for agitators, arsonists, burglars, degenerates, rapists and pot-pushers!

ONE EXPLOSIVE area in which eruptions are already convulsing is the enforced special privileges for blacks. Instead of demanding equality of opportunity, leaders of militant Negro pressure groups are insisting on and obtaining legislation which assures special privileges. While most whites subscribe to the principle that blacks, like other Americans, are entitled to equality under the law and equality of opportunity, they also believe that they, like other Americans, are entitled to nothing more.

By enforced special privilege, many unqualified Negroes across the nation have been admitted to college and university programs which require higher admittance standards for whites than for blacks. And, after being admitted they are often permitted to continue on in such programs at academic levels lower than those required for other students — levels of performance by which white students are normally disqualified.

Ironically, militant blacks who fail to meet admission and academic standards required of other students frequently disrupt the instructional programs of all other students by militant confrontation, or by seizing and forcibly occupying campus buildings. And, in some instances, holding hostage members of the college administration or faculty.

THE INSISTENT pressure by militant Negroes, to which school officials are yielding, can lead to similar demands by other ethnic and racial groups. And why not? If such programs, financed by the taxpayer, are provided for blacks, on what basis can they be refused for Mexican-Americans, Irish, Japanese, Chinese, Italians, French, Russians, Jews, or any other ethnic or racial group?

Currently, in some of California's state colleges, teaching positions are being allocated to departments for the employment of blacks or Mexican-Americans only. In most instances, if qualified blacks are not available, positions remain unfilled, though qualified white applicants may have applied. The same true for employment of student assistants, graduate assistants and teaching assistants.

This flagrant violation of American tradition of fair competition and impartial regard on the basis of merit. generates deep-seated antagonism among white people who support the principle of equality of opportunity for all.

Franco's Edict Reverses Spain's Trend To Freedom

By PHIL NEWSOM

Generalissimo Francisco Franco has called at least a temporary halt to the slow progress of the people of Spain toward new freedoms.

Just how temporary will be seen at the end of three months when a "state of exception" granting Spanish police almost unlimited rights of search and seizure and imposing full censorship on Spanish newspapers is supposed to end.

Imposition of the state of exception, short of martial law and similar to a state of siege, followed months of mounting opposition to the Franco regime among students, workers and young Roman Catholic priests.

IN VIOLENT outbreaks, demonstrators have burned the Spanish flag, trampled the portrait of Franco, and even threatened to throw the rector of Barcelona University out of his office window.

Young priests have freely criticized the church hierarchy, demanded closer identification with underpaid workers and encouraged church sit-ins by the wives and relatives of workers jailed as political prisoners.

Leaders of labor groups within Catholic Action, a church-based lay organization, have charged that "Spanish workers are abandoned materially, culturally and spiritually" and have no other recourse than illegal strikes.

Workers and students alike have demanded their own "free" organization not under government control.

IMPOSITION of the new government controls, while not unexpected, came as a defeat for for the young technocrats with whom Franco sprinkled his cabinet prior to 1966 and to Franco himself.

Franco, perhaps not wholly trusting the move toward a relaxation of totalitarian rule, nonetheless had permitted his young cabinet members to relax press laws, to write a new law permitting a degree of freedom of religion and to write into the new constitution a guaranty of freedom of expression.

The last is now wiped out, and whether it will be restored depends upon the old Falangists who formed the political backbone of Franco's support in the Spanish Civil War and upon the army.

PARTICULARLY it must be regarded as a defeat for the man most active in bringing about the relaxation of censorship and the law governing religious worship.

He is Manuel Fraga Irbarne, minister of information and tourism.

Span Bus System Backed

The Marin County Transit District board, four years after it began trying to set up a bus system, last night voted unanimously to hand the task over to the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

The action came in a 5-0 vote to endorse the plan by the bridge district's retired engineer, Arthur C. Jenkins, for the bridge district to go into the commute bus business. Directors Dean N. Meyer and William A. Gnoss were absent.

The plan "gives direction to our request for a joint powers agreement with the bridge district," said Corte Madera Town Councilman Edward W. Colthurst, a member of the transit board, which in December voted to contract with the bridge system to jointly finance and operate a bus system.

None of the directors reacted last night, however, to Jenkins' proposal in his plan that the transit district either dissolve itself or limit itself to operating a bus system within the county. "There has been no positive action" by the transit district in its existence," Jenkins commented in his plan.

Jenkins' plan calls for the bridge district to operate a system of 150 new buses. To get it started would cost $8.5 million, and the annual subsidy from bridge funds would be $1,411,000, Jenkins estimated.

The new public system would operate in Marin, San Francisco, Sonoma and Napa counties, and could be in operation within seven months, according to Jenkins.

The bridge district board, which received Jenkins' plan last month, is having it reviewed by two committees. The next public hearing will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Marin County Civic Center.

The transit district directors' high praise for Jenkins' $6,000 plan was in marked contrast to the unanimous rejection they gave last night to their own manager's plan for a $135,000 study of an experimental bus transit concept called Demand Actuated Road Transit (DART).

The concept, which would allow riders to telephone a computer to order service, never has been tried anywhere in the world, directors were told by the president of a Washington engineering firm, John D. Garcia, who flew here to present his proposal. But mathematical models, he insisted, "show it will work under certain conditions."

The three-month study would find out "if these conditions exist in Marin," Garcia said. The federal government would pay up to three quarters of the cost of the study by his firm, he asserted.

The transit district's manager, Seymour Kashin, urged the directors to endorse the study "in spirit" so he and Garcia could "come up with a package proposal," but he got nowhere.

"I'm completely disinterested in this presentation," declared Colthurst. "We've got bigger fish to fry," he added.

Chairman John F. McInnis, noting the fares per mile would vary from one area to another under Garcia's proposal, said it would "invite a succession of violent objections."

Director Louis H. Baar termed the proposal, which envisioned no fixed routes or time schedules, "utter chaos."

"If there's one thing this county doesn't need, it's more studies on transportation," said Director Michael Wornum.

"You know what will happen," predicted director Peter R. Arrigoni, Jr., "we'll have two studies by computers, and then we'll need an unbiased computer to tell us which is right."

McInnis' motion to endorse Jenkins' plan also noted that any bridge board action on it should not preclude the use of bridge funds also to operate a ferry system if one proves feasible.

"I'm just amazed at the unanimity here," said Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato, a former director of the bridge district. The bridge board long has been ready to finance a bus system, he noted, but never could because the transit board would not say what it wanted.

If Voters Nod, All San Rafael Schools To Get Improvements

(Last of four articles)

There are improvements planned for every school in the San Rafael District if voters approve San Rafael Elementary School District's $2.1 million bond proposal Feb. 18.

Passage would provide $52,100 for proposed projects at the 14 schools, with the two major undertakings at Davidson Junior High School and Santa Venetia Middle School.

Present field conditions and an open ditch at Davidson are hazards, reported Your Elementary Schools Committee, the district's citizen bond campaign organization.

As proposed, $105,000 would be allocated to construct a football field, track and ball fields at Davidson, cover open ditches, provide erosion control and provide another entrance and exit at the bus loading area.

The plans for Santa Venetia School allocate $119,000 to develop the playfields, pave the parking lot, resurface the blacktop play areas and expand and modernize the shop area, and improve other classrooms.

The industrial shop at Santa Venetia is in a former kindergarten room "of rather odd design and is quite inadequate," the committee reported.

The proposed projects for other schools are:

Bahia Vista — Install an entrance and a parking area, $3,000.

Coleman — Complete erosion control, expand the blacktop play area, and improve the site and develop of the playfield, $21,600.

Gallinas — Erosion control and landscaping, $12,000.

Hartzell —Turf the playfields and erosion control, $17,500.

Glenwood — Install a turfed field and sprinkler system, $13,000.

Laurel Dell Intermediate — Acquisition and development of additional land, $72,000. The school is on a very small site, crowded against a ditch, which holds stagnant water much of the time, the committee noted.

Laurel Dell Primary — General modernization of the building, erosion control and resurfacing of the blacktop area, $56,000.

MacPhail — Filling, draining and development of a playfield area, $42,000. "The need for recreation facilities for children and the lack of field development makes this a high priority improvement," the committee said.

San Pedro School — Resurfacing of the blacktop area, landscaping and development of an entrance, $8,000. "The widening of San Pedro Drive has left the approach to the school in a shambles," the committee said.

Short School — Development of a kindergarten outdoor play area, $7,000.

Sun Valley School — Playfield development and fencing along Happy Lane, $5,500.

West End School — Remodeling the central portion of the building, modernization of the administration area and classrooms and install new lighting, $40,500.

Officialdom At College Of Marin Holds Campus Report Senseless

By BRUCE COLEMAN

The staff of the California Coordinating Council for Higher Education was accused yesterday of not doing its homework in its report which recommends that no new junior college campuses be built in Marin or Sonoma counties until after 1977.

Criticizing the report at a press conference at the College of Marin were Theodore C. Wellman, Marin Junior College District board president, Trustee Elizabeth M. Deedy and Louis H. Herkenhoff, acting president of the college.

The report, released to state legislators and the press Tuesday, jeopardizes the college district's chances of passing a proposed 77-cent tax rate increase election April 15 as well as getting state matching funds for the present college at Kentfield and a proposed new Novato college, trustees agreed.

One of the fundamental problems or the report, said Mrs. Deedy, is that its authors ignored the local issues in several districts and made assumptions including one concerning the size of community (junior) colleges.

"This assumption," she said, "was adopted by the council staff without consultation of a broad spectrum of the community. Nowhere do they talk about academic and educational standards or programs and what this size of community college would get as relates to the kind of program we wish to fulfill."

Mrs. Deedy argued that the report suggests longer school days and more night students. But, she said, the state doesn't give the same amount of support for these students —so "you would educate more and get less state money."

Wellman attacked the method of releasing the report, which became public on presentation to the council.

"The staff took the ball and ran with it by sending it all over the state without any appreciation of the council with whom they were working," he said.

After the council saw the report, Wellman said, it extracted the portion on junior colleges without making recommendations or conclusions. The council board is to review and revise this portion in cooperation with local districts, the report to be returned to the council for action in October.

But, said Wellman, the report "puts us in a bad spot" because it says the state should not take any application for funds from any of these school which have adequate capacity now.

"They are not going to review it until October and there will be 30-40 people standing in line for review. So," he added, "we've probably lost one year in our programming and planning."

Herkenhoff said there is no immediate plan in the Sonoma Junior College District for another campus and Wellman responded, "This means that a second campus in Novato is more vital."

(The report stated that a second Sonoma County College District college is proposed in an area north of Petaluma, about 25 miles north of the proposed college in southern Novato.)

Trustees and Herkenhoff criticized the report for implying that there should be a good deal more college regional planning.

"Records show there has been good program planning in our district and even common planning between the Sonoma and Marin districts," Mrs. Deedy said.

Herkenhoff noted that trustees and staffs of both districts will talk about what they can do in regional planning at a meeting to be held at 11 a.m., Feb. 14, at The Lodge in Novato.

Herkenhoff also criticized three other assumptions made in the report. He said it makes no sense to put 10,000 to 15,000 students on every college campus. He complained that the staff report assumes there will be no changes in college attendance or college persistence rates in 10 years.

Moreover, he said, the College of Marin is already "chock" full four nights a week and has an extensive summer session."

(The report suggested full year around use of colleges and more evening classes.)

Asked if there is any other choice for raising money other than the tax increase election and state funds, Mrs. Deedy replied, "No, that's it."

All three said it is difficult to assess the damage the staff report has done to the election.

The full college board will meet again at 8 p.m., today in the Fine Arts Building to decide on whether to withdraw, modify or reconfirm the election. Deadline to do this is today.

Boy Burned Pouring Fuel Into Fire

The boy, Michael Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee of 18 Nina Drive, was reported in serious condition today in Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with burns over 35 per cent of his body.

Asst. Fire Chief James W. Kidder said flames leaped out at the youth when he dumped a quantity of gasoline into the fireplace shortly before 4:30 p.m. He was burned on the right arm, face and chest.

The youth was rolled in a blanket by his brother, Patrick, 15. Both are students at Sinaloa Junior High School.

Mrs. Lee said Patrick's actions saved his brother's life.

She told firemen both boys had been warned Tuesday night about playing with gasoline near the fireplace.

The family moved to Novato two weeks ago. The house was not damaged.

Parking Lane Ban Is Refused

The Independent-Journal yesterday incorrectly reported that the San Anselmo Planning Commission had recommended to the city council that a Sir Francis Drake Boulevard parking lane be used for westbound traffic during peak commuter evening traffic.

In fact, the commission rejected, by a 4-1 vote the proposal that parking on the lane from El Cerrito Avenue to Butterfield Road be banned from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. daily. A similar parking ban, however, is in operation on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from the Hub intersection to El Cerrito.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said the commission majority which defeated the proposal felt the extension would only be a short-term solution to the heavy traffic problem and that it would be an undesirable change for the neighborhood.

Sewer Project Approval Voted

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board last night accepted completion of the $159,000 Forrest Avenue Assessment District sewer project.

The district involves 93 building sites in Fairfax. District Mgr. Ralph C. Noah said district residents now have until June 1 to make their own connections to the sewer amin.

The board also accepted completion of the relocation on Stadium Way of a trunk siphon line under the Corte Madera Creek.

Auto Stolen

Mildred Paquette of 320 Cascade Drive, Mill Valley, told police someone stole her 1967 Ford Mustang, license UGS 887, at 6:30 p.m. yesterday from in front of her home.

High School Officials Expecting College 'Revolution' To Spread

By DAVID DIETZ

A group of Marin and Southern Sonoma school administrators — told to expect expansion of the type of unrest choking San Francisco State College — said yesterday they were taking steps to avoid a confrontation with militant students and faculty.

The warning that turmoil in education would soon spread to high school and even elementary school campuses came at a program sponsored by the North Bay Section of the California Association of School Administrators at the Marin Civic Center.

Claire Salop, activities counselor in student affairs at San Francisco State College, seemed to sum up the feelings of speakers representing student, faculty and administration at San Francisco State when she said that, unless there is a "total redefinition of education and a redistribution of the resources, there will be a complete revolution."

"I think you had better get used to that word," she said.

Deploring the lack of procedures for student and faculty grievance, Harvey Yorke, director of public affairs at San Francisco State, said, "You are going to get it. It's just a matter of when and how bad you want it to be."

Lesly H. Meyer, superintendent of Petaluma City Schools, who was among about 250 school administrators who attended the session, said during a break in the program:

"I don't know if any school district can be fully prepared (for unrest.) But we try to communicate with students and the local community to avoid this type of thing."

Meyer said he believed turmoil in the schools resulted from "misunderstanding and the fact that we're not meeting some need."

"It's too late when the demands are put on your desk," said Dennie B. Willis, superintendent of the Dixie School District.

Dr. John F. Plank, superintendent of San Rafael schools, reported that administrators in San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools were meeting monthly with students.

"High schools always ape the colleges," he said of possible expansion of the college crisis. "It's the 'in thing' to be militant. Youths are idealists. They want a better world today, right now."

Henry A. Marshall, dean of boys at Tamalpais High School, said it was too late to prepare for revolution — "we're already in it."

The black administrator said that the "racial question is only a small part of the overall problem. It's not what the blacks and other minorities might do; it's what the whites are going to do.

"By nature, blacks and browns don't know the operation because they've never been a part of it. The white kids know the system and they're the ones who are going to blow it up."

James B. Herndon, teacher and author, told the school administrators at the daylong meeting, at which San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto also spoke, that they should stop following educational tradition, such as the use of textbooks and a grading system, and pemmit increased student self-determination.

At one point, Herndon said: "If students want to smoke in the bathroom, let them — even though the state law says no smoking in schools. We get around big laws, such as the one forbidding de facto segregation, so we can get around this one."

Alas! Even Hitchhikers Don't Have Proper Manners Any More

They just don't take pride any more in bumming rides.

Sitting on Marin's curbs with limp thumbs extended. Leaning against sign posts. Perched on bridge railings. Hardly bothering to look at the motorist as he passes. And all this at the worst likely section of road or overpass! Sometimes in the middle of the night.

It makes you wonder where they're going, how much it matters if they get the ride, and if they even care after having gotten there.

ANY HITCHHIKING veteran knows an elemental rule of the road is to expect a driver to halt only in locations of minimum traffic danger. Roads with broad aprons for safe stopping, intersections with sufficient traffic lights to provide time to communicate with a beckoning motorist, or tops of hills with clear views front and aft aren't asking too much.

And if they must have rides at night, surely the walk to the nearest lightpole isn't overtaxing. The motorist has a right to know for whom he's stopping —maybe no longer the right to know for sure whether it's a boy or girl, but at least to discern that it isn't an escaped orangutan, or a tobacco store wooden Indian someone has stashed beside the road for laughs.

And even the amateur should know the need to be alert of eye, friendly and anxious, an earnest thumb snapping up and a smile that cracks the parchment of dust on the teeth. And when and if the vehicle does halt, the need to scramble into that car like a bagful of cats so the driver won't be inconvenienced.

ALL THESE little pre-requisites seem to be largely ignored by the new breed. Neither, apparently, are they aware of motorist — reluctance to halt for two or more persons. What rightly cautious driver is going to put strangers in the seat beside him, and then let more get in behind him, there to be in wonderfully good position to pummel him about the head and shoulders until he surrenders his wallet and car and his senses? Freeways are dangerous enough, as it is.

The lack of luggage bit is baffling, too. Of course many hitchhikers are going only a few miles to classes, job or home. And certainly a few just haven't any belongings. But it seems incomplete, somehow, like checking into a hotel without a suitcase.

Certainly you can't expect them all to have grips plastered with college sticker's and maybe even the proverbial "L.A. or Bust" sign (which does at least show decision and determination) But a show of possessions does go a long way in convincining the motorist that he isn't likely to be thank-you'd in less than a mile and have to go through the whole stopping procedure at a dark intersection so soon to discharge the rider at a destination he could well have walked to, anyway.

Wonderful Commands In Navy In Days Of Peace And Love

WASHINGTON — "Commander, we've got a wonderful assignment for you."

"Yes, sir. What is it?"

"The Navy wants you to take command of a ship, sail it up the Yangtze River, and take mud samples and depth readings of the river bed. We'll give you the latest top-secret equipment for the job."

"That's great, sir. What kind of ship will I have to do this with?"

"WE'RE CONVERTING a sardine trawler into a man-of-war. It will be a top-class ship that anyone would be proud to command."

"What kind of guns will she have, admiral?"

"What do you mean, guns?"

"If I'm sailing up the Yangtze, shouldn't I have some guns on the ship in case anybody wanted to attack me?"

"Why would anyone want to attack you?"

"No reason that I can think of. I just thought if it was a Navy ship it should have some guns on it."

"THE NAVY doesn't have guns to spare for every ship in the fleet. Besides, it might look provocative if you were carrying all that secret equipment and guns, too."

"But suppose I'm attacked?"

"Why would anyone want to attack you? After all, you're only looking for mud samples. Look, commander, if you don't want the assignment, we can always find somebody else."

"Oh, I want the assignment, sir. I just wanted to be clear as to what I was to do."

"Well, we've got the whole thing worked out. You sail up to Shanghai from Formosa, make a sharp left and head straight for Nanking."

"That's the entire plan?"

"Why, what else do you have to know?"

"I'M NOT TRYING to make waves, admiral, but there could be some resistance on the part of the Chinese to my sailing up the Yangtze, even if it's for mud samples."

"The Chinese would never dare attack a U.S. naval vessel. If they did, they know we'd retaliate immediately."

"That brings me to another question, sir. In case I am challenged, will I get aid from any naval vessels?"

"Of course. The Sixth Fleet will be available to give you full protection."

"But the Sixth Fleet is stationed in the Mediterranean."

"I know where the Sixth Fleet is stationed. We can't give you cover from the Seventh Fleet because they're involved in Vietnam; the Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor will be on maneuvers. So the only ones available for contingency are ships from the Mediterranean Fleet. You may have to hold off your attackers until they get there."

"WITH WHAT, sir?"

"We're issuing all the officers sabers, and the enlisted men will have cutlasses."

"That's different then, sir. I thought we were going in unarmed."

"If anything happens, commander, all you have to do is give me a ting-a-ling and we'll be there."

"It's good to know I can count on you, admiral. Sir, I know this is probably a stupid question, but is there any way I can scuttle the ship in case you can't get to me in time?"

"WHY WOULD you want to scuttle a good Navy ship?"

"Let's cross that bridge when we come to it. The next thing you'll be asking me is what are you supposed to do if you're captured. Ho, ho, ho; ha, ha, ha; ho, ho. That would be a good one, wouldn't it?

"Commander, you're not laughing."

Teen Driver Faces Marijuana Charges

A 16-year-old Terra Linda High School student was booked at Juvenile Hall Tuesday on suspicion of having marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia after five plastic bags, each holding a one-ounce "lid" of suspected marijuana, were found in his car, the California Highway Patrol said.

The patrol said an officer sighted the boy's car weaving on Highway 101 in Terra Linda at 6:30 p.m. and followed it, stopping it in the Northgate shopping center. A search produced a pipe which smelled of burnt marijuana, one bag in the glove box and four bags under the driver's seat, the patrol said.

Dr. Steinman Will Head Panel On Mental Health

Dr. Paul A. Steinman of Ross has been named chairman of Marin County Mental Helath Advisory Board to succeed Dr. Gerald Hill and will chair his first meeting Feb. 20.

Steinman reported today that the board, expanded from seven to 13 by a recent State law, has now been filled.

Members are: Donald Barksdale, Julie Bloomfield, Mrs. Sally Mishkind, Peter W. Palmer, Martha Valliant and Jack D. Williams, new members; and Dr. Richard W. Brunstetter, Dr. Gerald Hill, Mrs. Daniel Collins, Judge Joseph G. Wilson, Ernest N. Kettenhofen and Steinman, continuing members.

Steinman reported that the board has recommended to the Marin County Board of Supervisors that people picked up by police as possibly mentally disturbed be screened for hospitalization at Marin Community Mental Health Center, rather than being sent directly to Napa State Hospital. After July 1 this will be a law, Steinman said, but the board asks that the change be effected as soon as possible.

Arkansas House Passes Bill Easing Abortion Rules

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas House yesterday passed a bill that would clarify and liberalize the state's 100-year-old abortion law.

The measure would make abortions legal in cases where the continuing of the pregnancy would threaten the life or health of the woman (the only provision of the old law), or if there was strong evidence that the unborn child would be mentally or physically defective, or if the pregnancy resulted from incest or rape.

The bill requires a woman to live in the state four months before an abortion can be performed except in cases where the woman's life is in danger.

Special Raises Weaken 'Hold-The-Line' Attempt

The three-fifths-new Marin County Board of Supervisors has committed itself to come up with a "bare bones budget" for next fiscal year and to endeavor to reduce the $2.27 county tax rate.

In making such a commitment, it has pretty well pledged itself in advance to resist the county employees' association's demands for pay increases that would add a million dollars to the budget — respresenting 20 cents on the tax rate.

Just how well the supervisors will be able to resist these pay demands depends largely on how good a job their negotiators do in private huddles with representatives of the employees. Taking advantage of a new law tailored to collective bargaining concepts, the board has appointed a negotiating committee to do the haggling, and its sessions with employee representatives will not be public.

THE BOARD, HOWEVER, may have cut the ground away to some extent by its own actions.

On Jan. 21, the supervisors unanimously endorsed an immediate raise from $12,000 to $18,000 per year for the court commissioner, with further increases over a five-year period to bring his salary to $21,720.

On the same day, the supervisors — again unanimously — approved raising court reporters' pay from $12,000 to $14,340 immediately, with a five-year step-raise program to bring them to $17,450.

These are raises of 50 per cent for the court commissioner and nearly 20 per cent for the court reporters, with more to come.

EVEN THE MAXIMUM raises sought by the employees' association fall far short of such boosts as these.

The court commissioner is in an unique position. To ease the load of the superior court, he functions in some areas as a judge. Therefore, it would appear his salary has not been commensurate with his duties.

The court reporters, however, are in no such special position. Their duties are the same as they have been in the past.

By granting the court reporters 20 per cent salary increases, the supervisors have, to say the least, weakened their position in resisting demands for increases of less than half that percentage for a majority of county employees.

IT WILL BE HARD for the supervisors, or their negotiators, to convince county employees that this large raise for the court reporters did not come because they had the advantage of special pleading from the judges.

As to that, it would be hard for them to convince us that such was not the case.

The new board of supervisors, it appears, is following the same loose, self-defeating practice of the old board — granting special raises apart from the annual salary review which result inevitably in further increases all along the line when that review is made.

The three new members might be excused for inexperience, were it not that they all have served on city councils and should be well aware of the pitfalls of such a practice.

Competition In Nature

Learning to compete with others is valuable for any child. Competition is the name of the game of life. Marinites who garden or study nature know this is true.

Populations of plants and animals exist in a state of tension. Each living individual has gained its station at the expense of others that lost out in the game of evolution. An organism finds it necessary to adapt to its environment, but after that it must fight against a variety of species that are its enemies. And sometimes it is necessary for it to struggle against its own species for survival.

Nature is fascinating, beautiful and complex beyond the limits of the imagination. But Nature is a stern mother too.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Now that Gov. Ronald Reagan has submitted his 1969-70 annual budget in the amount of $6.2 billion, attacks on it may be expected both from the opposition party and from legislators who will use the document to embarrass the administration if possible.

Most interesting in the budget, as far as the pocketbooks of taxpayers are concerned, is the proposal to return part of the surplus to the income tax payers of the state. The governor says the highest priority in disposal of surplus monies in the state treasury is giving it back to the people, and his administration figures $100 million can be returned.

BUT ALREADY, Assemblyman Jess Unruh, D-Los Angeles, former speaker and Democratic leader in the house, has announced that this return is a "fraud on the taxpayers of California, and a calculated effort to deceive the people of the state."

Unruh charges the administration with attempting to salvage some political advantage from its record-breaking billion-dollar tax increase in 1967 by offering the taxpayers far less tax relief than the people need, and far less than the state budget allows them to have.

Unruh thinks the return should be 20 per cent instead of 10, which would amount to some $200 million.

About all the taxpayers can do is hope for the best and expect the worst.

In the immediate past, tax relief has turned out to be not much more than getting a small refund for property tax relief back from the government, only to find it necessary to turn around and give it back.

If the legislature does provide for reduction of 10 per cent on income taxes payable in 1970, the possibility exists that local governments will increase taxes to eat up the savings.

UNRUH ALSO says that by a state income tax withholding system, another $100 million would be generated from people who now evade their just share of the tax. He claims that a total of $300 million, rather than $100 million should be returned.

Thus, it is easy to see that the fireworks will start when the Legislature gets down to consideration of the budget on the floors of both house,s which probably won't be before June. In the meantime, extensive subcommittee and committee hearings will be held.

With the prospect of a large surplus, it is not too hard to guess that many legislators will start the special appropriation routine for pet projects. Although most of these will be dumped before they really get a start, it is possible that some will get through, thereby depleting the surplus. Fortunately, the governor can use the blue pencil on these if he so chooses.

Almost any way you look at it, the taxpayer is due for an additional beating.

Hospital Raise Branded Robbery

I read in your paper of Jan. 29 that the Marin Hospital District Board raised room rates in the hospitals around the country.

People go to prison for armed robbery. What can be done to these people for enacting these "Jessie James" prices?

What does a person do when he is on Medicare? (Medicare doesn't come close to satisfying these rates!) What does a person do who is not covered completely by insurance and has no way of getting this coverage?

The "poor Doctors" and "poor hospitals" cry — everything has gone up. They blame wages. I know a poor widow who, right now, works her head off in a convalescent hospital in "Marvelous Marin" for $1.75 per hour, while the registered nurses sit and "supervise." She is a practical nurse — nurse's aide.

You don't see any Marin County doctors riding around in 10-year-old cars. At least 98 per cent of them have three cars, a boat, a $75,000 house and have stock in medical buildings, rest homes, etc., etc.

I think the article should read, "Marin Hospital District Rapes People of Marin Again." It is a disgrace.

(Editor's note: Reader Morris mis-read the Jan. 29 report. The Marin Hospital District Board raised room rates in Marin General Hospital. It has no control over the rates in other hospitals in the county.)

Real Offenders In Air Pollution

I noted with considerable anger the special I-J report, Jan. 30, indicating that the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District is recommending a ban on all backyard burning to become effective in one year.

Well, that's just great! And I'll observe that ban when the BAAPCD issues the same kind of absolute ban on air pollution from all industrial sources in the entire Bay Area, and gives them exactly one year in which to do so.

The deadly stuff, in the main, comes pouring from the industrial complexes ringing the Bay and increasing virtually month by month. And what do they demand for doing at is their obligation, completely, utterly and absolutely? Why they howl for special tax advantages on pollution controls, accelerated depreciation, study after study after study to prove what everyone already knows, special municipal bond issues to pay for pollution controls, on and on ad nauseum.

This kind of crap has been going on for years now. And as of June 18, 1968, in a special pollution feature, the Wall Street Transcript admits that the pollution control market (devices and systems which trap or destroy pollutants) "remains more promise than reality. The promise is great, but the market itself is more propaganda, politics and plans than projects, plants and profits." And my own emperical study from our hill overlooking the Bay I can tell you since 1947 (when it was clear as a bell) gradually in recent years that oily, slimy, brown pall has gotten thicker and thicker and larger and larger — all I presume from that nasty backyard burning! Hah!

Oh, this gas refining bit. You are correct, they can obtain much, much cleaner gas by using more platinum in the refining process. It would cost more but there's the clue. And boy I am ever nuts — many of my investments are in the very plants ringing the Bay. But it wouldn't reduce my dividends by more than a few pennies if these frauds were made to hop to!

Public Servants Prove They Care

Today (Jan. 31) four boys dug up some tuberous plants while hiking in the hills near Fairfax. Unfortunately, they ate these without knowing what they were eating. The plants happened to be a very toxic species, namely water hemlock.

Fortunately, due to quick thinking of a companion and to the Fairfax police, the boys were quickly brought to Marin General Hospital. Once here it seems that the whole emergency room staff worked as a synchronized team to save the lives of these young men.

While this was being accomplished, Officer Paul Simpson had the presence of mind to take one of the unaffected boys back to dig up some specimens of the plants that had been eaten. After these had been brought to Marin General for identification, he also helped arrange transportation of these specimens to the rangers at Taylor Park and to Professor Constance of the botany department at the University of California in Berkeley. Both the Marin County Sheriff's Department and the Highway Patrol assisted in this. Within a short period of time both of these sources confirmed our suspicion of water hemlock poisoning. As I write this, the boys are better and I cannot help but think that it is comforting to live in a community where people seem to care and where our public servants extend themselves for the sake of others.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

THE BIGGEST DEAD BEAT in town, in debt to just about everybody he knew, proposed to take a new girl friend to the most expensive restaurant in town. "But aren't you afraid," he was asked, "that you'll run into a couple of outraged creditors there?" "Not a chance," sneered the dead beat. "When I get through with them, they can't afford a place like that!"

A PROSPEROUS merchant was enjoying a vacation at Fort Lauderdale when the phone operator asked if he'd accept a long-distance call collect from a friend not noted for generosity. "Certainly not," said the merchant, annoyed, "but if he wants to pay for the call himself, put him on." The friend thereupon caroled a cheery "hello" — and proceeded to gossip for a full 40 minutes. At first the merchant was amused, but finally felt he simply had to say, "I hope you realize that this call is costing you a small fortune." "Think nothing of it," responded the friend cheerily. "I'm calling from your house."

AN EDUCATOR'S VIEW

Special Privileges Disrupt Education

By JOHN W. GILBAUGH
Professor of Education
San Jose State College

Taxpayers are finding themselves mired in the swamps of despair. And for good reason. With so many government bureaucrats committed to the philosophy that simple problems have only complex answers, hope for tax relief does not appear in the offing.

To spend tax receipts in deliberate pursuit of complex answers for simple problems is to fleece the taxpayer for wool to pull over the eyes of the general public. Tax shears for the fleecing are sharpened by the creation of blue-ribbon whitewash committees to which so-called distinguished citizens are appointed. Prime subjects for scrutiny of such committees include the most sensitive areas of contemporary society, such as racism, crime, and various facets of education. And, with the same certainty that we know night follows day, we can predict the committees will tell us the problems they have studied are so complex that simple answers cannot be found, but expenditure of large sums of money on new programs appears to be the only solution.

THERE IS ONE difficulty with these single-track thinkers appointed to blue-ribbon panels. They begin their deliberations with the conclusion that poverty causes nearly all crime and that discrimination provokes nearly all racial violence. Why do so many, whom we trust with the guardianship of public funds, ignore the evidence that crime has increased as poverty has decreased? And, that racial violence has been greatest where discrimination has been least?

Higher education has led the parade in blossoming with experimental programs designed to cure the nation's social ills. Most of these programs, which cost billions of dollars, after failure, have been neatly wrapped and tied in sophisticated rhetoric, and deposited on the academic scrap heap. As a consequence, in nearly every state where education costs are spiraling, the quality of instruction is eroding.

Instead of restoring peace and tranquility to college and university campuses, taxpayers' dollars are being used to fan the flames of violence. No wonder our over-permissive campuses have become rendesvous for agitators, arsonists, burglars, degenerates, rapists and pot-pushers!

ONE EXPLOSIVE area in which eruptions are already convulsing is the enforced special privileges for blacks. Instead of demanding equality of opportunity, leaders of militant Negro pressure groups are insisting on and obtaining legislation which assures special privileges. While most whites subscribe to the principle that blacks, like other Americans, are entitled to equality under the law and equality of opportunity, they also believe that they, like other Americans, are entitled to nothing more.

By enforced special privilege, many unqualified Negroes across the nation have been admitted to college and university programs which require higher admittance standards for whites than for blacks. And, after being admitted they are often permitted to continue on in such programs at academic levels lower than those required for other students — levels of performance by which white students are normally disqualified.

Ironically, militant blacks who fail to meet admission and academic standards required of other students frequently disrupt the instructional programs of all other students by militant confrontation, or by seizing and forcibly occupying campus buildings. And, in some instances, holding hostage members of the college administration or faculty.

THE INSISTENT pressure by militant Negroes, to which school officials are yielding, can lead to similar demands by other ethnic and racial groups. And why not? If such programs, financed by the taxpayer, are provided for blacks, on what basis can they be refused for Mexican-Americans, Irish, Japanese, Chinese, Italians, French, Russians, Jews, or any other ethnic or racial group?

Currently, in some of California's state colleges, teaching positions are being allocated to departments for the employment of blacks or Mexican-Americans only. In most instances, if qualified blacks are not available, positions remain unfilled, though qualified white applicants may have applied. The same true for employment of student assistants, graduate assistants and teaching assistants.

This flagrant violation of American tradition of fair competition and impartial regard on the basis of merit. generates deep-seated antagonism among white people who support the principle of equality of opportunity for all.

Franco's Edict Reverses Spain's Trend To Freedom

By PHIL NEWSOM

Generalissimo Francisco Franco has called at least a temporary halt to the slow progress of the people of Spain toward new freedoms.

Just how temporary will be seen at the end of three months when a "state of exception" granting Spanish police almost unlimited rights of search and seizure and imposing full censorship on Spanish newspapers is supposed to end.

Imposition of the state of exception, short of martial law and similar to a state of siege, followed months of mounting opposition to the Franco regime among students, workers and young Roman Catholic priests.

IN VIOLENT outbreaks, demonstrators have burned the Spanish flag, trampled the portrait of Franco, and even threatened to throw the rector of Barcelona University out of his office window.

Young priests have freely criticized the church hierarchy, demanded closer identification with underpaid workers and encouraged church sit-ins by the wives and relatives of workers jailed as political prisoners.

Leaders of labor groups within Catholic Action, a church-based lay organization, have charged that "Spanish workers are abandoned materially, culturally and spiritually" and have no other recourse than illegal strikes.

Workers and students alike have demanded their own "free" organization not under government control.

IMPOSITION of the new government controls, while not unexpected, came as a defeat for for the young technocrats with whom Franco sprinkled his cabinet prior to 1966 and to Franco himself.

Franco, perhaps not wholly trusting the move toward a relaxation of totalitarian rule, nonetheless had permitted his young cabinet members to relax press laws, to write a new law permitting a degree of freedom of religion and to write into the new constitution a guaranty of freedom of expression.

The last is now wiped out, and whether it will be restored depends upon the old Falangists who formed the political backbone of Franco's support in the Spanish Civil War and upon the army.

PARTICULARLY it must be regarded as a defeat for the man most active in bringing about the relaxation of censorship and the law governing religious worship.

He is Manuel Fraga Irbarne, minister of information and tourism.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By ROSS DAVIS

Alas! Even Hitchhikers Don't Have Proper Manners Any More

They just don't take pride any more in bumming rides.

Sitting on Marin's curbs with limp thumbs extended. Leaning against sign posts. Perched on bridge railings. Hardly bothering to look at the motorist as he passes. And all this at the worst likely section of road or overpass! Sometimes in the middle of the night.

It makes you wonder where they're going, how much it matters if they get the ride, and if they even care after having gotten there.

ANY HITCHHIKING veteran knows an elemental rule of the road is to expect a driver to halt only in locations of minimum traffic danger. Roads with broad aprons for safe stopping, intersections with sufficient traffic lights to provide time to communicate with a beckoning motorist, or tops of hills with clear views front and aft aren't asking too much.

And if they must have rides at night, surely the walk to the nearest lightpole isn't overtaxing. The motorist has a right to know for whom he's stopping —maybe no longer the right to know for sure whether it's a boy or girl, but at least to discern that it isn't an escaped orangutan, or a tobacco store wooden Indian someone has stashed beside the road for laughs.

And even the amateur should know the need to be alert of eye, friendly and anxious, an earnest thumb snapping up and a smile that cracks the parchment of dust on the teeth. And when and if the vehicle does halt, the need to scramble into that car like a bagful of cats so the driver won't be inconvenienced.

ALL THESE little pre-requisites seem to be largely ignored by the new breed. Neither, apparently, are they aware of motorist — reluctance to halt for two or more persons. What rightly cautious driver is going to put strangers in the seat beside him, and then let more get in behind him, there to be in wonderfully good position to pummel him about the head and shoulders until he surrenders his wallet and car and his senses? Freeways are dangerous enough, as it is.

The lack of luggage bit is baffling, too. Of course many hitchhikers are going only a few miles to classes, job or home. And certainly a few just haven't any belongings. But it seems incomplete, somehow, like checking into a hotel without a suitcase.

Certainly you can't expect them all to have grips plastered with college sticker's and maybe even the proverbial "L.A. or Bust" sign (which does at least show decision and determination) But a show of possessions does go a long way in convincining the motorist that he isn't likely to be thank-you'd in less than a mile and have to go through the whole stopping procedure at a dark intersection so soon to discharge the rider at a destination he could well have walked to, anyway.

Wonderful Commands In Navy In Days Of Peace And Love

WASHINGTON — "Commander, we've got a wonderful assignment for you."

"Yes, sir. What is it?"

"The Navy wants you to take command of a ship, sail it up the Yangtze River, and take mud samples and depth readings of the river bed. We'll give you the latest top-secret equipment for the job."

"That's great, sir. What kind of ship will I have to do this with?"

"WE'RE CONVERTING a sardine trawler into a man-of-war. It will be a top-class ship that anyone would be proud to command."

"What kind of guns will she have, admiral?"

"What do you mean, guns?"

"If I'm sailing up the Yangtze, shouldn't I have some guns on the ship in case anybody wanted to attack me?"

"Why would anyone want to attack you?"

"No reason that I can think of. I just thought if it was a Navy ship it should have some guns on it."

"THE NAVY doesn't have guns to spare for every ship in the fleet. Besides, it might look provocative if you were carrying all that secret equipment and guns, too."

"But suppose I'm attacked?"

"Why would anyone want to attack you? After all, you're only looking for mud samples. Look, commander, if you don't want the assignment, we can always find somebody else."

"Oh, I want the assignment, sir. I just wanted to be clear as to what I was to do."

"Well, we've got the whole thing worked out. You sail up to Shanghai from Formosa, make a sharp left and head straight for Nanking."

"That's the entire plan?"

"Why, what else do you have to know?"

"I'M NOT TRYING to make waves, admiral, but there could be some resistance on the part of the Chinese to my sailing up the Yangtze, even if it's for mud samples."

"The Chinese would never dare attack a U.S. naval vessel. If they did, they know we'd retaliate immediately."

"That brings me to another question, sir. In case I am challenged, will I get aid from any naval vessels?"

"Of course. The Sixth Fleet will be available to give you full protection."

"I know where the Sixth Fleet is stationed. We can't give you cover from the Seventh Fleet because they're involved in Vietnam; the Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor will be on maneuvers. So the only ones available for contingency are ships from the Mediterranean Fleet. You may have to hold off your attackers until they get there."

"WITH WHAT, sir?"

"We're issuing all the officers sabers, and the enlisted men will have cutlasses."

"That's different then, sir. I thought we were going in unarmed."

"If anything happens, commander, all you have to do is give me a ting-a-ling and we'll be there."

"It's good to know I can count on you, admiral. Sir, I know this is probably a stupid question, but is there any way I can scuttle the ship in case you can't get to me in time?"

"WHY WOULD you want to scuttle a good Navy ship?"

"Let's cross that bridge when we come to it. The next thing you'll be asking me is what are you supposed to do if you're captured. Ho, ho, ho; ha, ha, ha; ho, ho. That would be a good one, wouldn't it?

"Commander, you're not laughing."

Teen Driver Faces Marijuana Charges

A 16-year-old Terra Linda High School student was booked at Juvenile Hall Tuesday on suspicion of having marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia after five plastic bags, each holding a one-ounce "lid" of suspected marijuana, were found in his car, the California Highway Patrol said.

The patrol said an officer sighted the boy's car weaving on Highway 101 in Terra Linda at 6:30 p.m. and followed it, stopping it in the Northgate shopping center. A search produced a pipe which smelled of burnt marijuana, one bag in the glove box and four bags under the driver's seat, the patrol said.

To Honor Students

The Tiburon Chamber of Commerce will hold a luncheon for Reed School District student crossing guards at noon Friday at the Tiburon Lodge, according to president Ben A. Farlatti. At the luncheon, the students will be awarded service pins, he said.

Dr. Steinman Will Head Panel On Mental Health

Dr. Paul A. Steinman of Ross has been named chairman of Marin County Mental Helath Advisory Board to succeed Dr. Gerald Hill and will chair his first meeting Feb. 20.

Steinman reported today that the board, expanded from seven to 13 by a recent State law, has now been filled.

Members are: Donald Barksdale, Julie Bloomfield, Mrs. Sally Mishkind, Peter W. Palmer, Martha Valliant and Jack D. Williams, new members; and Dr. Richard W. Brunstetter, Dr. Gerald Hill, Mrs. Daniel Collins, Judge Joseph G. Wilson, Ernest N. Kettenhofen and Steinman, continuing members.

Steinman reported that the board has recommended to the Marin County Board of Supervisors that people picked up by police as possibly mentally disturbed be screened for hospitalization at Marin Community Mental Health Center, rather than being sent directly to Napa State Hospital. After July 1 this will be a law, Steinman said, but the board asks that the change be effected as soon as possible.

Kys Visit Alps

LA FECLAZ, France (AP) — Mrs. Nguyen Cao Ky, wife of the South Vietnamese vice president, saw snow for the first time yesterday when they visited this Alpine resort. Ky, in a military-style outfit, said it was the first time in 17 years that he had put on skis.

Arkansas House Passes Bill Easing Abortion Rules

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas House yesterday passed a bill that would clarify and liberalize the state's 100-year-old abortion law.

The measure would make abortions legal in cases where the continuing of the pregnancy would threaten the life or health of the woman (the only provision of the old law), or if there was strong evidence that the unborn child would be mentally or physically defective, or if the pregnancy resulted from incest or rape.

The bill requires a woman to live in the state four months before an abortion can be performed except in cases where the woman's life is in danger.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Mumps Vaccine Recommended For Children Over One Year

VAN DELLEN

The new mumps vaccine is recommended for all susceptible children over one year of age. It produces a mild, noncontagious infection that is followed by lasting immunity. The product is made from live, but weakened viruses, and is safe.

More than a million persons have been immunized without significant side reactions.

The vaccine will be most valuable in susceptible children approaching puberty, adolescents, and adults, especially males who stand a one in five chance of developing testicular involvement (orchitis) if they acquire the infection. Mumps, a common disorder, occurs most often in young school-age children. Fifteen per cent of the reported cases occur after the onset of puberty.

Only one injection is needed. But it should not be given when another infection coexists and especially when there is fever.

Because the product is cultivated in chick eggs, it should not be used by persons overly sensitive to egg proteins. Pregnant women should not receive the live mumps vaccine.

WILL THE VACCINE protect a susceptible person who is already exposed to mumps? This is doubtful, but there is no reason why it cannot be used at this time.

Mumps varies in severity and if the individual just happens to develop a mild attack, the vaccine will be given credit. This is not so farfetched as it seems, because 30 per cent of those with mumps have such mild symptoms that the condition is missed.

Mumps viruses are carried in droplets of saliva and are spread by close contact. About 18 days elapse between exposure and the onset of fever, aching, and swollen glands in the jaws. Ten to 14 days may pass before the swelling subsides.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

REPEATED SUICIDE THREATS

A reader writes: My girl friend constantly threatens to kill herself by taking an overdose of sleeping pills. Do you think that people who threaten suicide are likely to follow through?

REPLY

Yes, especially when they are depressed. Encourage her to see a psychiatrist, even though her threats may merely be used to get attention. P. S. Get a new girl friend — getting married will only increase her responsibilities and anxieties.

LAZY OR ILL?

A reader writes: If a person doesn't feel like working or going any place, how can he decide whether he is fatigued or just lazy?

REPLY

There are many physical causes of fatigue, and the answer depends upon what a thorough examination reveals. In my book, the lazy child develops into a lazy adult. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on fatigue.

AN INACTIVE INFECTION

P. O. S. writes: Is there a difference between a dormant and an arrested case of tuberculosis?

REPLY

Not for practical purposes. When a tuberculous lesion heals, the bacili go into an inactive (dormant) state. This is why physicians seldom use the word cure.

POOR CIRCULATION

A reader writes: Is intermittent claudication due to hardening of the arteries of the legs?

REPLY

Arteriosclerosis is the most common cause of cramping of the calf of the leg after walking a certain distance.

Guilty Verdict Voted In Deputy's Murder

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — Zachary F. Lillard, who pleaded unsuccessfully that he had an extra male chromosome, was convicted yesterday of murdering a sheriff's deputy.

A superior court jury returned a first degree murder conviction against Lillard in the death May 23 of Gordon Joinville, a San Mateo County sheriff's detective who stopped him for narcotics investigation.

FBI agents arrested Lillard in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park and turned him over to Santa Clara County because he was wanted there on burglary, robbery and kidnaping charges.

Overpowering a jail guard, Lillard fled from the jail in San Jose before he could be arraigned on those charges and a day before he was scheduled to be taken to Redwood City to face the murder charges.

He was recaptured on a San Francisco street.

A laboratory test, taken last October at the request of the defendant's attorney, showed that Lillard's chromosome makeup was normal. Attorney George T. Davis had argued his client had an extra chromosome which made him overly aggressive.

Joinville, who like Lillard was 34, had radioed that he was questioning a man resembling the defendant.

The detective's body was found in a patrol car.

Lillard had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. Jurors are scheduled to start hearing the insanity plea on Monday.

200 Mission High Youths Charged After Uproar

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 20 pupils have been charged with truancy and seven nonstudents with loitering after a demonstration at Mission High School.

Arrest of Russell Beebe, of the Third World Liberation Front at San Francisco State College, touched off so much protest from some high school students that the police tactical squad was summoned yesterday.

A noon rally had been held to emphasize 17 demands students made Tuesday night at a school board meeting.

Some of the protesters at that meeting wore brown berets or pins denoting support for the Third World Liberation Front at San Francisco State and at the University of California in Berkeley.

Objection to students having to carry identity cards was voiced by Henry Gibson, a Negro, who said: "Dog 209, go to class. It's like walking into a prison. You flash your ID, yeah, I'm in cell 302, English class."

School principal Harry Krytzer said some of the students demands could not be met.

The demands included more ethnic studies, bilingual required courses and remodeling the cafeteria and better food.

Mission High School is located in the city's Mexican-American district about 10 miles from San Francisco State College.

$800, Worker Said Missing

Missing Monday morning from Fling's Drive In in Kentfield were several days' receipts, the owner reported to the sheriff's department.

David J. Jasinsky of San Mateo, the drive-in owner, said he checked bank receipts when the manager, Richard Vernon Johnson, 26, of 546 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, did not show up for work Monday, according to officers.

Jasinsky reported that receipts totalling over $800 had not been banked last week.

Officers were not able to find Johnson, who reportedly had told friends he was leaving soon for Australia.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Computer, Retarded Boy Star In Newest Ventures

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The producers of television's highest-rated series, "Laugh-In," last night presented a new, weekly ABC-TV half-hour show entitled "Turn-On," and described as follows:

"A visual, comedic, sensory assault involving all media techniques such as graphics, film animation, tape, stop action, slow motion, electronic distortion, computer graphics and even people."

The final reference to the fact that "even people" figure in the entertainment may be intended lightly, but is, in fact, the crux of advance debate on the show. For this is a serious comedy show that strikes uncomfortably close to the nerve in recognizing a subtle, yet terrifying contemporary theme: People becoming objects, packaged in a huge supermarket atmosphere.

"Turn-On" has, as its host, a computer. While it may be compared with "Laugh-In," it is actually much more compressed, not merely because it is 30 minutes shorter than the parent series, but, additionally because it intends to truly assault the senses with bludgeoning speed. It is the most McLuhanesque of all television series to date.

If "Turn-On" fails, it will be, I think, because it is so honest in its attempt to comment on the way we live: I don't mean just the individual sight gags and topical humor, but the adherence to the impersonality it is driving at as an essence of our time.

"Teacher, Teacher," a 90-minute NBC-TV venture last night on "The Hallmark Hall of Fame," concerned a mentally retarded boy and the attempts to bring him out of his shell and into the everyday world. It was a lovely piece of work.

The boy was played by non-actor Billy Schulman, 13, who was proposed for the role by officials of the National Association for Retarded Children. There is no question this added authenticity gave the production a substance it might otherwise not have had. Because of young Schulman, much of the dialogue apparently had to be improvised, and writer Allan Sloane removed his name from the screen credits, using a pseudonym. The concept of his work, however, remains fine.

Citrus orchards in areas of smog require less irrigation than those in clean air.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Mumps Vaccine Recommended For Children Over One Year

VAN DELLEN

The new mumps vaccine is recommended for all susceptible children over one year of age. It produces a mild, noncontagious infection that is followed by lasting immunity. The product is made from live, but weakened viruses, and is safe.

More than a million persons have been immunized without significant side reactions.

The vaccine will be most valuable in susceptible children approaching puberty, adolescents, and adults, especially males who stand a one in five chance of developing testicular involvement (orchitis) if they acquire the infection. Mumps, a common disorder, occurs most often in young school-age children. Fifteen per cent of the reported cases occur after the onset of puberty.

Only one injection is needed. But it should not be given when another infection coexists and especially when there is fever.

Because the product is cultivated in chick eggs, it should not be used by persons overly sensitive to egg proteins. Pregnant women should not receive the live mumps vaccine.

WILL THE VACCINE protect a susceptible person who is already exposed to mumps? This is doubtful, but there is no reason why it cannot be used at this time.

Mumps varies in severity and if the individual just happens to develop a mild attack, the vaccine will be given credit. This is not so farfetched as it seems, because 30 per cent of those with mumps have such mild symptoms that the condition is missed.

Mumps viruses are carried in droplets of saliva and are spread by close contact. About 18 days elapse between exposure and the onset of fever, aching, and swollen glands in the jaws. Ten to 14 days may pass before the swelling subsides.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

REPEATED SUICIDE THREATS

A reader writes: My girl friend constantly threatens to kill herself by taking an overdose of sleeping pills. Do you think that people who threaten suicide are likely to follow through?

REPLY

Yes, especially when they are depressed. Encourage her to see a psychiatrist, even though her threats may merely be used to get attention. P. S. Get a new girl friend — getting married will only increase her responsibilities and anxieties.

LAZY OR ILL?

A reader writes: If a person doesn't feel like working or going any place, how can he decide whether he is fatigued or just lazy?

REPLY

There are many physical causes of fatigue, and the answer depends upon what a thorough examination reveals. In my book, the lazy child develops into a lazy adult. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on fatigue.

AN INACTIVE INFECTION

P. O. S. writes: Is there a difference between a dormant and an arrested case of tuberculosis?

REPLY

Not for practical purposes. When a tuberculous lesion heals, the bacili go into an inactive (dormant) state. This is why physicians seldom use the word cure.

POOR CIRCULATION

A reader writes: Is intermittent claudication due to hardening of the arteries of the legs?

REPLY

Arteriosclerosis is the most common cause of cramping of the calf of the leg after walking a certain distance.

Guilty Verdict Voted In Deputy's Murder

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — Zachary F. Lillard, who pleaded unsuccessfully that he had an extra male chromosome, was convicted yesterday of murdering a sheriff's deputy.

A superior court jury returned a first degree murder conviction against Lillard in the death May 23 of Gordon Joinville, a San Mateo County sheriff's detective who stopped him for narcotics investigation.

FBI agents arrested Lillard in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park and turned him over to Santa Clara County because he was wanted there on burglary, robbery and kidnaping charges.

Overpowering a jail guard, Lillard fled from the jail in San Jose before he could be arraigned on those charges and a day before he was scheduled to be taken to Redwood City to face the murder charges.

He was recaptured on a San Francisco street.

A laboratory test, taken last October at the request of the defendant's attorney, showed that Lillard's chromosome makeup was normal. Attorney George T. Davis had argued his client had an extra chromosome which made him overly aggressive.

Joinville, who like Lillard was 34, had radioed that he was questioning a man resembling the defendant.

The detective's body was found in a patrol car.

Lillard had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. Jurors are scheduled to start hearing the insanity plea on Monday.

200 Mission High Youths Charged After Uproar

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 20 pupils have been charged with truancy and seven nonstudents with loitering after a demonstration at Mission High School.

Arrest of Russell Beebe, of the Third World Liberation Front at San Francisco State College, touched off so much protest from some high school students that the police tactical squad was summoned yesterday.

A noon rally had been held to emphasize 17 demands students made Tuesday night at a school board meeting.

Some of the protesters at that meeting wore brown berets or pins denoting support for the Third World Liberation Front at San Francisco State and at the University of California in Berkeley.

Objection to students having to carry identity cards was voiced by Henry Gibson, a Negro, who said: "Dog 209, go to class. It's like walking into a prison. You flash your ID, yeah, I'm in cell 302, English class."

School principal Harry Krytzer said some of the students demands could not be met.

The demands included more ethnic studies, bilingual required courses and remodeling the cafeteria and better food.

Mission High School is located in the city's Mexican-American district about 10 miles from San Francisco State College.

$800, Worker Said Missing

Missing Monday morning from Fling's Drive In in Kentfield were several days' receipts, the owner reported to the sheriff's department.

David J. Jasinsky of San Mateo, the drive-in owner, said he checked bank receipts when the manager, Richard Vernon Johnson, 26, of 546 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, did not show up for work Monday, according to officers.

Jasinsky reported that receipts totalling over $800 had not been banked last week.

Officers were not able to find Johnson, who reportedly had told friends he was leaving soon for Australia.

NIXON

Nixon said he also expects to visit NATO headquarters while in Belgium.

Nixon also said:

He had "no announcements" to make about the possibility of recalling some American troops from Vietnam, but that the return of American GI's is "high on our agenda."

It is in the interests both of the United States "and in the interest of achieving progress in the talks" for U. S. negotiators in Paris to insist on a separation of the military and diplomatic issues involved.

The United States plans to "assume the initiative" in seeking a Middle East settlement on five fronts supporting the efforts of the United Nations' envoy, Gunnar V. Jarring; bilateral talks at the U. N.; four-power talks at the U. N.; talks with Mid-East countries and moving forward on long range plans for economic development.

His administration intends to give high priority to "new initiatives in the Alliance for Progress." In the past, he said, "There's been too much emphasis on what we could do for Latin America and not enough on what we can do WITH our Latin American friends."

In reply to a question about the meaning of a Pentagon announcement of a suspension of deploying the Sentinel antiballistic missile system, the President said there has been "no progress on arms control talks with the Russians" and that while he was placing emphasis on such discussions, he wanted "some political differences" to be part of such talks. (See story on page 2.)

—He was unwilling to discuss specifics now of the Administration's tax reform proposals. He said Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy would make a preliminary statement tomorrow on the subject.

—That "as a non-smoker" the proposed FCC ban on cigarette advertising on radio and television "would pose no problems for me."

He favors "a massive infusion" of federal financial aid to the nation's schools, with emphasis on the elementary and secondary levels. He said also he beleives federal money should be denied school districts which perpetuate racial segregation.

Of the case of the spy ship Pueblo: "I will axamine the whole record myself with regard to this incident and with regard to seeing that the whole thing can be avoided in the future."

He is in favor of long range, very stringent regulation of offshore oil drilling to prevent repetitions of the current pollution of a vast ocean area off California.

Later the White House supplied this itinerary, but said it was still subject to possible change:

Nixon will leave Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland on the morning of Sunday Feb. 23 and will arrive in Brussels for an overnight stay in the evening.

The chief executive will leave the Belgium capital in the afternoon and fly to London for a stay that will end on the morning of Feb. 26 when he procedes to Bonn.

Nixon on Feb. 27 will make a flying trip to West Berlin, and go straight from there to Rome where he will spend the night.

The President will leave Rome for Paris on the morning of Feb. 28 and will spend two nights in the French capital.

On the afternoon of March 2, Nixon will fly back to Rome for his visit with Pope Paul VI, then make the return flight to the United States that same evening.

Wonder Drug Makers Plan Repayments

NEW YORK (AP) — Five major drug manufacturers said today they have agreed to pay $120 million to settle civil suits charging they rigged the price of a wonder drug antibiotic during the mid-1950s.

The federal government had charged that the drugs were produced for as little as 1.6 cents a capsule but eventually cost consumers 51 cents each.

The money will be paid to cities, state, and counties that have filed treble damage suits. Some will even be paid to consumers who can prove they bought the drug at a rigged price.

Three of the five firms involved were convicted 14 months ago of federal antitrust charges. The Justice Department said they had conspired to control the production and distribution of $1.7 billion worth of the drug, tetracycline, regarded as one of the most effective of the wonder drugs.

The convictions are under appeal.

The five firms in the civil suits are American Cyanimid, Bristol Myers, and Charles Pfizer and Co., the three that were convicted; and the Upjohn Co. and Squibb Beech-Nut Inc.

Late Hours To Resume Feb. 20

Last evening service on Thursday at the Corte Madera office of the Department of Motor Vehicles will not resume until Feb. 20, according to Orin Riley, office manager.

The service — remaining open until 6 p.m. for drivers' license applications — originally was to resume today. It was discontinued so that employees could concentrate on vehicle registration renewals, according to Riley.

He said today the delay in resuming late evening service is because the deadline for vehicle registration renewals was extended from Feb. 3 to a new deadline of Feb. 14.

McDowell Boulevard from East Washington Street to McNeil Avenue, including a signal system at the East Washington-McDowell intersection. Young estimated costs at $126,000 with the state providing $28,000 for improvements to the Highway 101 approaches.

Automatic gates for the Northwestern Pacific Railroad track crossings on East Washington and D streets were also listed. Young said the city and railroad would split costs with each paying $24,450. Fourth on the list is a traffic signal at the Magnolia Avenue-Petaluma Boulevard-Payran Street intersection at a cost of $90,000.

Young also proposed a traffic signal at the intersection of East Washington and Payran strtets at a cost of $20,000 sixth in priority, but termed "essential" by the engineer is a project to repair, widen and fill the roadway on Magnolia Avenue between Cherry and Keokuk streets at a cost of $8,500.

He said his department would review the condition of all streets and estimated the resurfacing costs to be $42,000 Young also suggested an engineer's report be prepared for a proposed Cherry Valley assessment district to rebuild Magnolia Avenue, Laurel Drive,-Schuman Lane West and Cherry streets. He estimated the report cost at $14,000, saying the city would underwrite the cost, unless an assessment district is formed.

First on the list of projects to come under bond issues was an overcrossing of Highway 101 at Caulfield Lane, long sought by East Petalumans who are often bogged down in heavy traffic at the lone Washington Street overpass. Young said the project would delay costly widening of the other overpass. He said the city's cost would be $349,000 with the state paying for the bridge and fill for approach ramps.

Building an area project that could develop into a truck bypass of downtown Petaluma, the next three plans would provide a better road system for the area east of the river, Young said.

They included widening the Lakeville Highway to four lanes from Caulfield Lane at the proposed overpass to Hopper Street and to D. Street at a cost of $349,000. Carrying the plan further, Young also would widen D Street from Petaluma Boulevard to Hopper Street and include a second lift bridge at D Street to parallel the present span. Street improvements and the new bridge would total $554,000.

Concentrating again on Hopper Street, the plan would widen East Washington Street from Hopper to Redwood Street and include a new traffic signal at Hopper and Washington at a total cost of $135,000. Following the construction plan, East Washington from Hopper to Payran Street would be widened for $300,000 and Payran to Highway 101 for $120,000. Included in the plans is a pedestrian sidewalk for the freeway overpass. Young said it would cost the city $60,000 with the state providing another $30,000.

On the west side of the river on Washington Street, the plan calls for widening to four lanes from Keokuk to Kentucky streets with traffic signals at Keller and Liberty streets at a total cost of $66,000.

The final plan on the priority list would be widening South McDowell Boulevard to four lanes between McNeil Avenue and Sarkesian Drive for $300,000.

Young said the costs for plans under bond issues would total $2,500,000, but if included with the esplanade section of the core area plan to relocate Petaluma Boulevard, it would be increased to $4,635,000.

The council accepted Young's plans for study and agreed to study a bond issue for the June 10 municipal election.

The second most costly plan submitted yesterday was from Richard W. Shollenberger, director of parks and recreation, who offered a five-year improvements project with a price tag of $1,800,850.

First on Shollenberger's list was development of Lucchesi Park for an estimated $1,250,000. Other projects and costs included, a five-acre park adjacent to La Tercera School, $75,000; a 5.3-acre park in Washington Manor, $50,000; a three-acre park at Grant School, $75,000; a park at McDowell School, $22,000; a 6.5-acre park on the river north of Payram Street, $221,850; and development of a city park at the Lafferty Ranch, $107,000.

Shollenberger recommended the parks be financed through bond issues.

Fire Chief Roscoe A. Benton presented projects totaling $270,000 including two new fire stations and an addition to the headquarters station on D Street.

Terming it a ten-year plan, Benton recommended new fire stations on both south and north McDowell Boulevards. Plans are already being prepared for an additional bay to the Central station, and Benton said a search is continuing for a new site on South McDowell. He said Station Two on Payran would be abandoned.

Police Chief Larry D. Higgins did not offer long-range projects, but presented a cost estimate of $44,857 to remodel the police station. He said it would include more office space, a squad room, an interrogation room and a new reception area. Both fire and police addition plans are being prepared for council consideration by architects Richard Lieb and Donald Quaresma.

The council will meet again in study session Saturday at 9 and continue consideration of a June bond issue.

Seaman Says Pueblo Mission Top Secret

CORONADO (AP) — The Pueblo's senior quartermaster said today the intelligence ship's crew was not aware when it sailed what its mission would be and had no occasion to consider whether it was on hazardous duty.

Charles B. Law, backing up testimony of fellow crewmen, told a Navy court of inquiry that the Pueblo's skipper "did a hell of a good job."

Law said of Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher: "I considered it an honor to serve with him . . . I'd like to serve with him again."

Law was a witness before a court of five admirals investigating the capture of the Pueblo by North Kortans a year ago and the imprisonment of the crew.

Rear Adm. Edward Grimm asked: "Did the commanding officer ever brief the ship's company on the mission?"

Law: "No sir . . . the crew was told it was not illegal . . . We were just carrying out our duties."

Law, short and slightly heavy but jaunty in bearing, stared occasionally at the ceiling as he recalled his Pueblo experiences.

He said he first learned of the mission — to check on Soviet ships and North Korean radar facilities—when he had to plot the Pueblo's operating areas on a chart.

Lt. (j.g.) Timothy Harris told the court yesterday that he would follow the skipper anywhere. The 21-year-old freckle-faced junior officer called Bucher "an outstanding leader."

Law said tht closest he could recall the Pueblo coming to North Korean shores was 12.8 miles, when the vessel was turned toward the sea to provide stability while crews were repairing an antenna on the mast.

"As soon as it was reported to the skipper, we moved right out," he said.

"I personally think Cmdr. Bucher is one of the finest officers I know—an outstanding skipper before and during the capture and certainly during detention," said Lt. Frederick Schumacher Jr.

"I don't think any of us could have made it through that eleven months in North Korean prison if it hadn't been for Cmdr. Bucher."

CWO Gene Howard Lacy said he agreed with Bucher's decision not to man the Pueblo's machine guns because "it would have been slaughter for anyone put out there."

Harris and Schumacher also supported the surrender decision.

Adventists To Conduct Stop Smoking Series

A community service aimed at helping people quit smoking and stay healthy will open in San Rafael tomorrow.

The project, sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventist Church, will be launched formally at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at its new offices at 1435 Fourth Street in San Rafael.

Rev. Lester Bennett, minister of the Fairfax Seventh-day Adventist church and director of the project, said the kickoff program will be held tomorrow night on a five-day plan to stop smoking.

He said the group therapy program, similar to others operated by the church in Novato, deals with psychological and physiological aspects of using tobacco.

Interested persons, he said, may call Adventist Community Services in San Rafael.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Computer, Retarded Boy Star In Newest Ventures

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The producers of television's highest-rated series, "Laugh-In," last night presented a new, weekly ABC-TV half-hour show entitled "Turn-On," and described as follows:

"A visual, comedic, sensory assault involving all media techniques such as graphics, film animation, tape, stop action, slow motion, electronic distortion, computer graphics and even people."

The final reference to the fact that "even people" figure in the entertainment may be intended lightly, but is, in fact, the crux of advance debate on the show. For this is a serious comedy show that strikes uncomfortably close to the nerve in recognizing a subtle, yet terrifying contemporary theme: People becoming objects, packaged in a huge supermarket atmosphere.

"Turn-On" has, as its host, a computer. While it may be compared with "Laugh-In," it is actually much more compressed, not merely because it is 30 minutes shorter than the parent series, but, additionally because it intends to truly assault the senses with bludgeoning speed. It is the most McLuhanesque of all television series to date.

If "Turn-On" fails, it will be, I think, because it is so honest in its attempt to comment on the way we live: I don't mean just the individual sight gags and topical humor, but the adherence to the impersonality it is driving at as an essence of our time.

"Teacher, Teacher," a 90-minute NBC-TV venture last night on "The Hallmark Hall of Fame," concerned a mentally retarded boy and the attempts to bring him out of his shell and into the everyday world. It was a lovely piece of work.

The boy was played by non-actor Billy Schulman, 13, who was proposed for the role by officials of the National Association for Retarded Children. There is no question this added authenticity gave the production a substance it might otherwise not have had. Because of young Schulman, much of the dialogue apparently had to be improvised, and writer Allan Sloane removed his name from the screen credits, using a pseudonym. The concept of his work, however, remains fine.

Read To Take Part In Football Clinic

Dick Read, College of Marin's answer to Vince Lombardi as a builder of champions (junior college version), will share the podium with some of the country's leading university mentors this weekend at the American Football Coaches Association's "Coach of the Year Clinic" in San Francisco.

Headline speaker will be the Coach of the Year, Joe Paterno of unbeaten Penn State. Others on the agenda will be Bill Yeoman of U. of Houston, Bill Peterson of Florida State, Pepper Rodgers of Kansas, Eddie Robinson of Grambling, Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State, John Ralston of Stanford, Doug Scovil of Pacific, Joe McMullen of San Jose State and others.

Read, who is president of the California Football Coaches Association, will step into the spotlight at 12:45 p.m. Saturday to present the J.C. Coach of the Year award.

The clinic, which will attract some 1,200 high school and college mentors, Saturday and Sunday at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, is managed by Bob Troppmann, the Redwood High School athletic director and football coach.

'Best End In College Football'

Paterno, who coached San Francisco 49ers' No. 1 draft choice Ted Kwalick, told Troppmann: "Ted is the best end in college football. When God was designing football players he had Kwalick in mind."

Incidentally, I have finally discovered why the 49ers made Kwalick and Stanford receiver Gene Washington their top two draft picks. With attendance sagging, they figure this is one way to make ends meet.

Enroute to Seattle for last week's national championships, their car hit an ice slick at Myrtle Creek, Ore., spun out of control and wound up in a ditch.

Undaunted and unhurt, the mother and daughter hitched a ride the rest of the way to Seattle where Juli garnered a silver medal in the national novice ladies division, succeeding on ice where her mom's car had failed. It's still in Myrtle Creek, a total loss.

LOCAL FOCAL — I noticed at last Friday's Marin County Hall of Fame ceremonies that Samuel Blake Chapman was the only one of the five inductees wearing cheaters.

Indiana Bowler Leads Tourney

DENVER (AP) — Don McCune of Munster, Ind., winner of only one tournament last year, took the second round lead late last night in the $45,000 Professional Bowlers Association Denver Open.

McCune, who won a PBA tourney in Fort. Worth, Tex., last year, had a six-game average of 1,360 and hit a single game high of 245 on his last go-round.

He had games of 225, 234, 194, 228 and 245 to edge the first round leader, Pete Tountas of Tucson, Ariz., by only seven pins.

Tountas, who had a big lead after the end of the first round over Jim Godman of Hayward, and Don Lemon of Rochester, N.Y., were in second and third last night.

The five-man nationally televised finals will be held Saturday afternoon.

Nicklaus Jumps To Money Lead

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — As a result of his $30,000 victory in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open last weekend, Jack Nicklaus has taken the lead among golf's money-winners, the Professional Golfers' Association of America announced yesterday.

Nicklaus has earned $35,600 in only two tournaments, almost $7,000 more than George Archer, who won the Crosby the previous week.

The top 10 money-winners:

Nicklaus, $35,600; Archer, $28,953.30; Gene Littler, $24,727.24; Bruce Devlin, $20,634.43; Charlie Sifford, $20,400; Miller Barber, $16,907.50; Bob Dickson, $15,416.67; Harold Henning, $15,365.72; Dick Lotz, $14,702.67; Howie Johnson, $13,826.63.

Packed Gym At Novato For High School Fights

By GARY TISCHLER

The not-quite buried body of boxing raised a teen-aged, brawling head last night in the packed to the rafters gymnasium of Novato High School as nearly 2,000 screaming and cheering fans immersed themselves in the fifth annual Novato Boxing Night.

All those lively bodies turned out in a raging rain and windstorm that would have kept a lot of mailmen at home.

NOSTALGIA

While the youngsters battled it out in three-round bouts, a touch of nostalgia was provided by the presence of three former boxing greats, all looking chipper and youthful, who helped officiate and score the 12 bouts. Bobo Olsen, former world middleweight champion, now living in Santa Roas; Sixto Rodriguez, former California light heavyweight champ, and Pee Wee Thomas, former state flyweight champ, were there, and all agree that this kind of night was a boon for boxing and youth.

The key bout of the night was the welterweight match pitting Wally Campbell against Randy Smith, both seniors, both two-time champs, both gunning for their third titles.

CATCHES UP

Campbell, with an unerring sense of timing, won it, catching up with a tiring Smith, scoring heavily, solidly and repeatedly in the final two rounds, after a fast start by Smith against the cautious Campbell.

Ken Burton, who edged Rich Campbell in the junior welterweight division in a bruising, thrilling bout, was named outstanding boxer.

Most of the fights were real roundhouses, although there was only one knockout, a tenchical knockout verdict by rentless blonde Kevin McDowell over outclassed Terry Barson in the junior middleweight division.

Flyweight Joe Ferretti opened the activities by counter-punching and hammering out a unanimous verdict over Ross Allen to join older brother Mike as a two-time winner. Only a junior, Ferretti fought off the game Allen, who repeatedly waded into a buzzsaw of jabs and sharp rights and lefts.

That set the tone for the next two matches. Larry Yarger won his second title, taking the bantamweight bout from Jim King, another game but somewhat outclassed competitor who carried the fight but not the title. Yarger scored repeatedly on stinging counter punches and classy boxing.

CLOSE BOUT

Then John Mills won a close decision over Kevin Burton to capture the featherweight title, throwing sweeping punches and generally flailing aggressively against the more cautious Burton in a battle of seniors.

In probably the closest battle

Redskins Get Lombardi

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers sent Vince Lombardi to Washington last night, with regret, and without animosity.

By unanimous vote, the 45-member Board of Directors of the National Football League club ended debate, and voted to accept Lombardi's resignation as general manager, releasing him from a contract that had five years remaining.

Lombardi joins the Washington Redskins as head coach, executive vice president and part owner. The Packers said they decided against demanding compensation from Washington for the loss of the man who had built their small-town team into a profitable terror of the gridiron.

Green Bay's executive committee advised yesterday's emergency session of directors that, after his decade of contribution, it would seem unfair to block his desire for ownership in a pro club, something Lombardi couldn't have achieved under Green Bay's non-profit stock system.

Lombardi had said a return to coaching and ownership of a club were the chief appeals in the Washington package.

WITH REGRET

"To a man," Packer President Dominic Olejniczak said, "the entire board felt like the executive committee had felt—that there was not anything we would not have done to keep Vince Lombardi. It is with regret that the resolution was adopted."

In his letter of resignation to the board, Lombardi told directors he had not been dissatisfied with his Green Bay income, but that he could no longer think of himself in terms of being a Packer coach again.

"There has never been a question of remuneration," his letter said. "After making a decision a year ago not to coach, I think you all can well understand the impossibility of my returning to the field in Green Bay. It would be totally unfair to coaches and players alike."

LOMBARDI ROOM

The directors' meeting was their first emergency session since they met a decade ago to hire Lombardi. They convened in the Forum Restaurant's Lombardi Room, with murals of The Man surrounding their deliberations.

Olejniczak told the directors that Lombardi's opportunity to purchase a "substantial block of stock" in the Redskins was a "dominant motivation" in the executive committee's recommendation to free him from his contract.

Lombardi, who had led Green Bay to five NFL titles in his nine years as coach and 10 as general manager, often expressed a hope of gaining ownership in a club. The Packers are a community-owned corporation in which no one is allowed to own more than a token number of shares.

46 Players Break Par In 1st Round

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) —To hear the so-called experts talk, no one was going to tear up the four courses used in the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament, mostly because tough Tamarisk had replaced easy El Dorado.

It didn't turn out that way in the opening round yesterday as Gene Littler, Lee Trevino, Marty Fleckman and Tom Shaw led a group of 46 players who broke par at the four Desert layouts—Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, Tamarisk and La Quinta.

Most of those same experts said Indian Wells was the easiest course and Tamarisk the hardest. They were dead wrong again as 16 turned in sub-par cards at Tamarisk and 13 at Indian Wells. La Quinta, it developed, was the hardest—in the first round anyways—as only seven players got under regulation figures there.

Seals Whip Defending Champion Canadiens

By DAVID DIETZ

OAKLAND — Clapping in approval, Seals' Gen. Mgr. Frank Selke Jr. led reporters into the dressing room last night after the vital 5-1 victory over Montreal.

"Good effort; great effort, you guys," Selke said.

It was, indeed. Oakland won without the services of three of its best players and regained a three-point lead over the third place Los Angeles in the Western Division of the National Hockey League.

EDGE

The victory also gave the Seals a final edge in the season series with the world champion Canadiens. Oakland won three and tied one of the six games between the clubs.

"It was a good all-around effort and, being shorthanded as we were, the win was doubly gratifying," coach Fred Glover said. He referred to the absence of Bill Hicke, Oakland's top point-getter; Gary Jarrett, top goal scorer, and the team's best defenseman, Bert Marshall. All are injured.

NO CHANCE

"We were bottling them up in their own end," he said of the strong effort against the swift Canadiens. "We didn't give them a chance to get started."

Rookie Brian Perry, Jarrett's replacement, scored two important goals in the second period to put Oakland comfortably ahead, 4-1, after Mike Laughton and Bob Dillabough of the Seals and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal had tallied in the first period.

The Seals play in Toronto Saturday and Boston on Sunday before returning to the Coliseum Arena next Wednesday night to play the surging New York Rangers.

Ow! Tar Cagers Dump Santa Rosa By 87-39 Count

By KIMO CAMPBELL

Once the College of Marin Tars started running roughshod over their erstwhile archrivals, the Santa Rosa Junior College Bear Cubs, it felt so good they almost didn't stop.

The Mariners delighted about 300 spectators in Kentfield last night by routing Santa Rosa's J.C. basketball team 87-39 in a Camino Norte Conference encounter, at one stage running off 29 points in a row, which ought to be a school and conference record.

13 TARS SCORE

Pat Schafer's 17 points and Ches Bornia's 15 rebounds led the parade as 13 Tars cracked the scoring column. Marin ran up a 33-18 halftime margin, then increased it after the intermission despite substituting, as the whole team rebounded and shot well, while the Bear Cubs seemed unable to buy a shot.

Coach Cal Riemcke was pleased with the team's movement on offense, in working their extended patterns against the Santa Rosa zone for good shots. He praised the entire team for good shooting (35 of 64, 54 per cent) and singled out frosh guard Daryl Ravani for his defense.

"Ravani usually plays good defense," the veteran cage coach said, "but tonight he just let Farrell get a couple early, then shut him off."

Mike Farrell, Santa Rosa's top scorer, averages 18 points per game but was held to four points by Ravani. Bruce Bromley and Len Gotschalk led the Bear Cubs with 10 points apiece.

BIG WHIPPING

The run of points came in the last half of the second span, as Marin went from 56-37 to 85-37 without retaliation. In that span, Santa Rosa missed both ends of two-shot fouls on three occasions, were whipped off the boards, and just generally did not look like a team that has won nine games, nor one that has come within nine points of league-leader Contra Costa.

Riemcke said that his club is already looking forward to Saturday's home game against second-place DeAnza College of Cupertino, which beat Marin 75-74 in January. The game will be

It's Quite A Contrast For Vince

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vince Lombardi, the miracle worker of Green Bay, Wis., population 85,000, may find miracles harder to come by in the nation's capital.

The city isn't only 10 times bigger than Green Bay. It's bigger than life.

In Washington, they play politics.

In Green Bay, losing is a disgrace. In Washington, it's some thing people learn to live with. It happens to one party or the other every four years.

It's happened to the Redskins with regularity since 1942 when they last won a National Football League title.

"Winning isn't the big thing," Lombardi once said. "It's the only thing."

Lombardi must teach Washington that winning can be fun. He must persuade his players that faith, family and football are the bedrock of success.

In swinging Washington, that may go over like a new edition of The Life of Millard Fillmore.

The telephone company needs 32 yellow pages just to list Washington's drinking places.

Nixon said he also expects to visit NATO headquarters while in Belgium.

Nixon also said:

He had "no announcements" to make about the possibility of recalling some American troops from Vietnam, but that the return of American GI's is "high on our agenda."

It is in the interests both of the United States "and in the interest of achieving progress in the talks" for U. S. negotiators in Paris to insist on a separation of the military and diplomatic issues involved.

The United States plans to "assume the initiative" in seeking a Middle East settlement on five fronts supporting the efforts of the United Nations' envoy, Gunnar V. Jarring; bilateral talks at the U. N.; four-power talks at the U. N.; talks with Mid-East countries and moving forward on long range plans for economic development.

His administration intends to give high priority to "new initiatives in the Alliance for Progress." In the past, he said, "There's been too much emphasis on what we could do for Latin America and not enough on what we can do WITH our Latin American friends."

In reply to a question about the meaning of a Pentagon announcement of a suspension of deploying the Sentinel antiballistic missile system, the President said there has been "no progress on arms control talks with the Russians" and that while he was placing emphasis on such discussions, he wanted "some political differences" to be part of such talks. (See story on page 2.)

—He was unwilling to discuss specifics now of the Administration's tax reform proposals. He said Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy would make a preliminary statement tomorrow on the subject.

—That "as a non-smoker" the proposed FCC ban on cigarette advertising on radio and television "would pose no problems for me."

He favors "a massive infusion" of federal financial aid to the nation's schools, with emphasis on the elementary and secondary levels. He said also he beleives federal money should be denied school districts which perpetuate racial segregation.

Of the case of the spy ship Pueblo: "I will axamine the whole record myself with regard to this incident and with regard to seeing that the whole thing can be avoided in the future."

He is in favor of long range, very stringent regulation of offshore oil drilling to prevent repetitions of the current pollution of a vast ocean area off California.

Later the White House supplied this itinerary, but said it was still subject to possible change:

Nixon will leave Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland on the morning of Sunday Feb. 23 and will arrive in Brussels for an overnight stay in the evening.

The chief executive will leave the Belgium capital in the afternoon and fly to London for a stay that will end on the morning of Feb. 26 when he procedes to Bonn.

Nixon on Feb. 27 will make a flying trip to West Berlin, and go straight from there to Rome where he will spend the night.

The President will leave Rome for Paris on the morning of Feb. 28 and will spend two nights in the French capital.

On the afternoon of March 2, Nixon will fly back to Rome for his visit with Pope Paul VI, then make the return flight to the United States that same evening.

Wonder Drug Makers Plan Repayments

NEW YORK (AP) — Five major drug manufacturers said today they have agreed to pay $120 million to settle civil suits charging they rigged the price of a wonder drug antibiotic during the mid-1950s.

The federal government had charged that the drugs were produced for as little as 1.6 cents a capsule but eventually cost consumers 51 cents each.

The money will be paid to cities, state, and counties that have filed treble damage suits. Some will even be paid to consumers who can prove they bought the drug at a rigged price.

Three of the five firms involved were convicted 14 months ago of federal antitrust charges. The Justice Department said they had conspired to control the production and distribution of $1.7 billion worth of the drug, tetracycline, regarded as one of the most effective of the wonder drugs.

The convictions are under appeal.

The five firms in the civil suits are American Cyanimid, Bristol Myers, and Charles Pfizer and Co., the three that were convicted; and the Upjohn Co. and Squibb Beech-Nut Inc.

Late Hours To Resume Feb. 20

Last evening service on Thursday at the Corte Madera office of the Department of Motor Vehicles will not resume until Feb. 20, according to Orin Riley, office manager.

The service — remaining open until 6 p.m. for drivers' license applications — originally was to resume today. It was discontinued so that employees could concentrate on vehicle registration renewals, according to Riley.

He said today the delay in resuming late evening service is because the deadline for vehicle registration renewals was extended from Feb. 3 to a new deadline of Feb. 14.

McDowell Boulevard from East Washington Street to McNeil Avenue, including a signal system at the East Washington-McDowell intersection. Young estimated costs at $126,000 with the state providing $28,000 for improvements to the Highway 101 approaches.

Automatic gates for the Northwestern Pacific Railroad track crossings on East Washington and D streets were also listed. Young said the city and railroad would split costs with each paying $24,450. Fourth on the list is a traffic signal at the Magnolia Avenue-Petaluma Boulevard-Payran Street intersection at a cost of $90,000.

Young also proposed a traffic signal at the intersection of East Washington and Payran strtets at a cost of $20,000 sixth in priority, but termed "essential" by the engineer is a project to repair, widen and fill the roadway on Magnolia Avenue between Cherry and Keokuk streets at a cost of $8,500.

He said his department would review the condition of all streets and estimated the resurfacing costs to be $42,000 Young also suggested an engineer's report be prepared for a proposed Cherry Valley assessment district to rebuild Magnolia Avenue, Laurel Drive,-Schuman Lane West and Cherry streets. He estimated the report cost at $14,000, saying the city would underwrite the cost, unless an assessment district is formed.

First on the list of projects to come under bond issues was an overcrossing of Highway 101 at Caulfield Lane, long sought by East Petalumans who are often bogged down in heavy traffic at the lone Washington Street overpass. Young said the project would delay costly widening of the other overpass. He said the city's cost would be $349,000 with the state paying for the bridge and fill for approach ramps.

Building an area project that could develop into a truck bypass of downtown Petaluma, the next three plans would provide a better road system for the area east of the river, Young said.

They included widening the Lakeville Highway to four lanes from Caulfield Lane at the proposed overpass to Hopper Street and to D. Street at a cost of $349,000. Carrying the plan further, Young also would widen D Street from Petaluma Boulevard to Hopper Street and include a second lift bridge at D Street to parallel the present span. Street improvements and the new bridge would total $554,000.

Concentrating again on Hopper Street, the plan would widen East Washington Street from Hopper to Redwood Street and include a new traffic signal at Hopper and Washington at a total cost of $135,000. Following the construction plan, East Washington from Hopper to Payran Street would be widened for $300,000 and Payran to Highway 101 for $120,000. Included in the plans is a pedestrian sidewalk for the freeway overpass. Young said it would cost the city $60,000 with the state providing another $30,000.

On the west side of the river on Washington Street, the plan calls for widening to four lanes from Keokuk to Kentucky streets with traffic signals at Keller and Liberty streets at a total cost of $66,000.

The final plan on the priority list would be widening South McDowell Boulevard to four lanes between McNeil Avenue and Sarkesian Drive for $300,000.

Young said the costs for plans under bond issues would total $2,500,000, but if included with the esplanade section of the core area plan to relocate Petaluma Boulevard, it would be increased to $4,635,000.

The council accepted Young's plans for study and agreed to study a bond issue for the June 10 municipal election.

The second most costly plan submitted yesterday was from Richard W. Shollenberger, director of parks and recreation, who offered a five-year improvements project with a price tag of $1,800,850.

First on Shollenberger's list was development of Lucchesi Park for an estimated $1,250,000. Other projects and costs included, a five-acre park adjacent to La Tercera School, $75,000; a 5.3-acre park in Washington Manor, $50,000; a three-acre park at Grant School, $75,000; a park at McDowell School, $22,000; a 6.5-acre park on the river north of Payram Street, $221,850; and development of a city park at the Lafferty Ranch, $107,000.

Shollenberger recommended the parks be financed through bond issues.

Fire Chief Roscoe A. Benton presented projects totaling $270,000 including two new fire stations and an addition to the headquarters station on D Street.

Terming it a ten-year plan, Benton recommended new fire stations on both south and north McDowell Boulevards. Plans are already being prepared for an additional bay to the Central station, and Benton said a search is continuing for a new site on South McDowell. He said Station Two on Payran would be abandoned.

Police Chief Larry D. Higgins did not offer long-range projects, but presented a cost estimate of $44,857 to remodel the police station. He said it would include more office space, a squad room, an interrogation room and a new reception area. Both fire and police addition plans are being prepared for council consideration by architects Richard Lieb and Donald Quaresma.

The council will meet again in study session Saturday at 9 and continue consideration of a June bond issue.

Seaman Says Pueblo Mission Top Secret

CORONADO (AP) — The Pueblo's senior quartermaster said today the intelligence ship's crew was not aware when it sailed what its mission would be and had no occasion to consider whether it was on hazardous duty.

Charles B. Law, backing up testimony of fellow crewmen, told a Navy court of inquiry that the Pueblo's skipper "did a hell of a good job."

Law said of Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher: "I considered it an honor to serve with him . . . I'd like to serve with him again."

Law was a witness before a court of five admirals investigating the capture of the Pueblo by North Kortans a year ago and the imprisonment of the crew.

Rear Adm. Edward Grimm asked: "Did the commanding officer ever brief the ship's company on the mission?"

Law: "No sir . . . the crew was told it was not illegal . . . We were just carrying out our duties."

Law, short and slightly heavy but jaunty in bearing, stared occasionally at the ceiling as he recalled his Pueblo experiences.

He said he first learned of the mission — to check on Soviet ships and North Korean radar facilities—when he had to plot the Pueblo's operating areas on a chart.

Lt. (j.g.) Timothy Harris told the court yesterday that he would follow the skipper anywhere. The 21-year-old freckle-faced junior officer called Bucher "an outstanding leader."

Law said tht closest he could recall the Pueblo coming to North Korean shores was 12.8 miles, when the vessel was turned toward the sea to provide stability while crews were repairing an antenna on the mast.

"As soon as it was reported to the skipper, we moved right out," he said.

"I personally think Cmdr. Bucher is one of the finest officers I know—an outstanding skipper before and during the capture and certainly during detention," said Lt. Frederick Schumacher Jr.

"I don't think any of us could have made it through that eleven months in North Korean prison if it hadn't been for Cmdr. Bucher."

CWO Gene Howard Lacy said he agreed with Bucher's decision not to man the Pueblo's machine guns because "it would have been slaughter for anyone put out there."

Harris and Schumacher also supported the surrender decision.

Adventists To Conduct Stop Smoking Series

A community service aimed at helping people quit smoking and stay healthy will open in San Rafael tomorrow.

The project, sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventist Church, will be launched formally at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at its new offices at 1435 Fourth Street in San Rafael.

Rev. Lester Bennett, minister of the Fairfax Seventh-day Adventist church and director of the project, said the kickoff program will be held tomorrow night on a five-day plan to stop smoking.

He said the group therapy program, similar to others operated by the church in Novato, deals with psychological and physiological aspects of using tobacco.

Interested persons, he said, may call Adventist Community Services in San Rafael.

S.F. Skipper Scores Home Run With Press

Affable and articulate are adjectives that accurately describe Clyde King. The new manager of the Giants is easy to speak to; courteous and amiable in his responses to questions; mild and gracious in his manner.

Obviously, there is a slight difference between the personalities of King and his predecessor, Herman Franks, a brusque man whose rough and short manner did not endear him to dressing room reporters.

KING MADE A big hit with two score press, radio and television representatives the other day when he outlined his spring training plans without once raising his voice. He is a soft spoken southern gentleman from the Carolinas where he was born and still lives.

"I would have to say," said Joe Sargis, a United Press veteran who has been covering the Giants through five managerial regimes, "that the dressing room outlook this year is good."

SARGIS MADE this observation before five minutes elapsed at King's first press conference. The consensus after the conference ended corroborated Sargis' snap judgment. It was generally agreed among the men who cover the dressing room that no longer will they suffer through sulphurous sessions.

There were occasions when Franks' triggerlike temper exploded with volcanic fury, particularly after sqeaking one-run losses. During Franks' four-year regime as manager the Giants lost quite a few one-run games so his volatile eruptions were not isolated incidents.

ONE OF HERMAN'S favorite expressions was: "What kind of a question is that?" Questions that probed sensitive issues could cause Herman to spew his favorite retort with venomous expletives.

"Not at all," says Sargis. "It just seemed that way when delicate questions had to be asked. Some of the younger reporters, possibly intimidated by Herman's explosive replies, hesitated to ask the tough questions. I merely was doing my job in putting probing questions to Herman."

SARGIS' EXPLANATION of the situation makes sense. He definitely is not a sadistic fellow. He's just a very competent reporter, unafraid to ask embarrassing questions that good newspapermen sometimes must ask to put a story in proper focus.

"Actually," Sargis insists, "I might miss Herman. I got a Christmas card from him. Could he be mellowing after four second place finishes with the Giants?"

5 Marinites In Oakland Auto Show

Five Marin County entries will vie in the 21st annual Grand National Roadster Show that opens a 10-day run Feb. 14 at the Oakland Coliseum.

The delegation will represent San Rafael, San Anselmo, Tiburon and Novato at the nationally-known Oakland event, according to show general manager Mel Fernandes.

San Rafael's entry will be a custom show motorcycle built by Roger M. Hawkins, 25, an auto mechanic of 185 Woodland Avenue.

CYCLE

San Anselmo's two entries include a street rod coupe built from a 1932 Ford by Thomas J. Passantino, 27, a systems engineer of 60 Parkway Avenue, and a customized street motorcycle by Tony Ialopi of 111 Broadmoor Avenue.

Tiburon will be represented by a customized competition hardtop named "Moonduster" and created by Peter H. Bert, 36, an architect of 1915 Mar West.

Novato's exhibit will be a customized three-wheel motorcycle entered jointly by Michael McGinnis, 31, a fry cook, and Thomas Palmer, 29, a heavy equipment operator.

Entries including the nation's top show cars will compete in 44 display classes during the Oakland event for more than 100 awards headed by a $5,000, nine-foot trophy for "America's most beautiful roadster."

Show doors at the Coliseum's Exhibit Hall will be open from 6 to 10 p.m. weekdays and from 1 to 10 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and Feb. 21, Washington's Birthday.

PRO FOOTBALL HALL OF FAME

Coach, Four Ex-players Win Honor

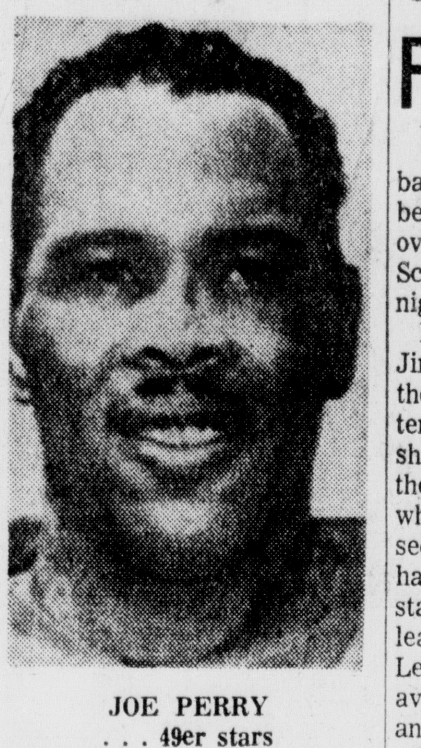
CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Earle "Greasy" Neale, a coach who led the Philadelphia Eagles to two National Football League championships, and four former stars—Turk Edwards, Leo Nomellini, Joe Perry and Ernie Stautner — have been elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

Announcement was made today by Dick Gallagher, director of the Hall.

The five will join 54 other pro greats in induction ceremonies in September.

Neale, a former big league baseball player with the Cincinnati Reds and a Football coach at seven colleges, led the Eagles to the Eastern titles in 1947, 1948 and 1949 and the NFL championships in the latter two years.

LEO NOMELLINI
Two former . . .



JOE PERRY
. . . 49er stars

Nomellini, Perry and Stautner were honored at the earliest pissible time. A player must be retired for at least five seasons before becoming eligible for membership.

Nomellini, a tackle for the San Francisco 49ers, won all-league honors six times, twice as an offensive player and four times for defense. He played in 174 consecutive games, the third best longevity mark in NFL history.

Perry, a standout fullback for most if his 16 seasons including 14 with the 49ers, won the rushing title in the now defunct All-American Football Conference in 1949 and took it twice in the NFL, in 1953 and 1954.

Stautner, a tackle for the Pittsburgh Steelers, was an almost perennial choice for All-NFL honors in 14 seasons—1950 through 1963. From 1953 until 1962, he missed only one Pro Bowl Game.

Edwards, a standout tackle and later a coach for the Redskins of Boston and Washington, made the NFL's all-league team four times in a nine-season career in 1932 through 1940. A knee injury forced the retirement in 1940 of the 6-foot 2½, 260-pounder.

Czech Amateur Stuns Ashe In Tennis Tourney Opener

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Top-ranked Rod Laver of Australia led a field of 16 professional and amateur players into tonight's second round of the $7,000 Philadelphia International Indoor Open tennis singles championships.

But the top-ranked amateur, second-seeded Lt. Arthur Ashe, U.S, Amateur and Open champion, was missing. Ashe was eliminated by Jan Kodes, the Czech Amateur champion, in a stunning 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 upset in the opening round last night.

Laver, who defeated Pierre Barthes, French pro, 6-3, 6-1, in the opening round, faces Butch Buchholz of St. Louis, 6-4, 14-12 victory over Herb Fitzgibbon of Garden City, N.Y.

Boat Registration Extended 10 Days

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Department of Harbors and Watercraft has given Californians an additional 10 days to renew the registration of their boats.

Director Robert C. Walker said the registration deadline was extended from Tuesday until Feb. 14 because flooding in certain areas of the state where boat usage is high created "hardships" in meeting the original deadline.

Read To Take Part In Football Clinic

Dick Read, College of Marin's answer to Vince Lombardi as a builder of champions (junior college version), will share the podium with some of the country's leading university mentors this weekend at the American Football Coaches Association's "Coach of the Year Clinic" in San Francisco.

Headline speaker will be the Coach of the Year, Joe Paterno of unbeaten Penn State. Others on the agenda will be Bill Yeoman of U. of Houston, Bill Peterson of Florida State, Pepper Rodgers of Kansas, Eddie Robinson of Grambling, Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State, John Ralston of Stanford, Doug Scovil of Pacific, Joe McMullen of San Jose State and others.

Read, who is president of the California Football Coaches Association, will step into the spotlight at 12:45 p.m. Saturday to present the J.C. Coach of the Year award.

The clinic, which will attract some 1,200 high school and college mentors, Saturday and Sunday at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, is managed by Bob Troppmann, the Redwood High School athletic director and football coach.

'Best End In College Football'

Paterno, who coached San Francisco 49ers' No. 1 draft choice Ted Kwalick, told Troppmann: "Ted is the best end in college football. When God was designing football players he had Kwalick in mind."

Incidentally, I have finally discovered why the 49ers made Kwalick and Stanford receiver Gene Washington their top two draft picks. With attendance sagging, they figure this is one way to make ends meet.

Enroute to Seattle for last week's national championships, their car hit an ice slick at Myrtle Creek, Ore., spun out of control and wound up in a ditch.

Undaunted and unhurt, the mother and daughter hitched a ride the rest of the way to Seattle where Juli garnered a silver medal in the national novice ladies division, succeeding on ice where her mom's car had failed. It's still in Myrtle Creek, a total loss.

Indiana Bowler Leads Tourney

DENVER (AP) — Don McCune of Munster, Ind., winner of only one tournament last year, took the second round lead late last night in the $45,000 Professional Bowlers Association Denver Open.

McCune, who won a PBA tourney in Fort. Worth, Tex., last year, had a six-game average of 1,360 and hit a single game high of 245 on his last go-round.

He had games of 225, 234, 194, 228 and 245 to edge the first round leader, Pete Tountas of Tucson, Ariz., by only seven pins.

Tountas, who had a big lead after the end of the first round over Jim Godman of Hayward, and Don Lemon of Rochester, N.Y., were in second and third last night.

The five-man nationally televised finals will be held Saturday afternoon.

Nicklaus Jumps To Money Lead

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — As a result of his $30,000 victory in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open last weekend, Jack Nicklaus has taken the lead among golf's money-winners, the Professional Golfers' Association of America announced yesterday.

Nicklaus has earned $35,600 in only two tournaments, almost $7,000 more than George Archer, who won the Crosby the previous week.

The top 10 money-winners:

Nicklaus, $35,600; Archer, $28,953.30; Gene Littler, $24,727.24; Bruce Devlin, $20,634.43; Charlie Sifford, $20,400; Miller Barber, $16,907.50; Bob Dickson, $15,416.67; Harold Henning, $15,365.72; Dick Lotz, $14.702.67; Howie Johnson, $13,826.63.

By GARY TISCHLER

The not-quite buried body of boxing raised a teen-aged, brawling head last night in the packed to the rafters gymnasium of Novato High School as nearly 2,000 screaming and cheering fans immersed themselves in the fifth annual Novato Boxing Night.

All those lively bodies turned out in a raging rain and windstorm that would have kept a lot of mailmen at home.

NOSTALGIA

While the youngsters battled it out in three-round bouts, a touch of nostalgia was provided by the presence of three former boxing greats, all looking chipper and youthful, who helped officiate and score the 12 bouts. Bobo Olsen, former world middleweight champion, now living in Santa Roas; Sixto Rodriguez, former California light heavyweight champ, and Pee Wee Thomas, former state flyweight champ, were there, and all agree that this kind of night was a boon for boxing and youth.

The key bout of the night was the welterweight match pitting Wally Campbell against Randy Smith, both seniors, both two-time champs, both gunning for their third titles.

CATCHES UP

Campbell, with an unerring sense of timing, won it, catching up with a tiring Smith, scoring heavily, solidly and repeatedly in the final two rounds, after a fast start by Smith against the cautious Campbell.

Ken Burton, who edged Rich Campbell in the junior welterweight division in a bruising, thrilling bout, was named outstanding boxer.

Most of the fights were real roundhouses, although there was only one knockout, a tenchical knockout verdict by rentless blonde Kevin McDowell over outclassed Terry Barson in the junior middleweight division.

Flyweight Joe Ferretti opened the activities by counter-punching and hammering out a unanimous verdict over Ross Allen to join older brother Mike as a two-time winner. Only a junior, Ferretti fought off the game Allen, who repeatedly waded into a buzzsaw of jabs and sharp rights and lefts.

That set the tone for the next two matches. Larry Yarger won his second title, taking the bantamweight bout from Jim King, another game but somewhat outclassed competitor who carried the fight but not the title. Yarger scored repeatedly on stinging counter punches and classy boxing.

CLOSE BOUT

Then John Mills won a close decision over Kevin Burton to capture the featherweight title, throwing sweeping punches and generally flailing aggressively against the more cautious Burton in a battle of seniors.

In probably the closest battle

Redskins Get Lombardi

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers sent Vince Lombardi to Washington last night, with regret, and without animosity.

By unanimous vote, the 45-member Board of Directors of the National Football League club ended debate, and voted to accept Lombardi's resignation as general manager, releasing him from a contract that had five years remaining.

Lombardi joins the Washington Redskins as head coach, executive vice president and part owner. The Packers said they decided against demanding compensation from Washington for the loss of the man who had built their small-town team into a profitable terror of the gridiron.

Green Bay's executive committee advised yesterday's emergency session of directors that, after his decade of contribution, it would seem unfair to block his desire for ownership in a pro club, something Lombardi couldn't have achieved under Green Bay's non-profit stock system.

Lombardi had said a return to coaching and ownership of a club were the chief appeals in the Washington package.

WITH REGRET

"To a man," Packer President Dominic Olejniczak said, "the entire board felt like the executive committee had felt—that there was not anything we would not have done to keep Vince Lombardi. It is with regret that the resolution was adopted."

In his letter of resignation to the board, Lombardi told directors he had not been dissatisfied with his Green Bay income, but that he could no longer think of himself in terms of being a Packer coach again.

"There has never been a question of remuneration," his letter said. "After making a decision a year ago not to coach, I think you all can well understand the impossibility of my returning to the field in Green Bay. It would be totally unfair to coaches and players alike."

LOMBARDI ROOM

The directors' meeting was their first emergency session since they met a decade ago to hire Lombardi. They convened in the Forum Restaurant's Lombardi Room, with murals of The Man surrounding their deliberations.

Olejniczak told the directors that Lombardi's opportunity to purchase a "substantial block of stock" in the Redskins was a "dominant motivation" in the executive committee's recommendation to free him from his contract.

Lombardi, who had led Green Bay to five NFL titles in his nine years as coach and 10 as general manager, often expressed a hope of gaining ownership in a club. The Packers are a community-owned corporation in which no one is allowed to own more than a token number of shares.

46 Players Break Par In 1st Round

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) —To hear the so-called experts talk, no one was going to tear up the four courses used in the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament, mostly because tough Tamarisk had replaced easy El Dorado.

It didn't turn out that way in the opening round yesterday as Gene Littler, Lee Trevino, Marty Fleckman and Tom Shaw led a group of 46 players who broke par at the four Desert layouts—Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, Tamarisk and La Quinta.

Most of those same experts said Indian Wells was the easiest course and Tamarisk the hardest. They were dead wrong again as 16 turned in sub-par cards at Tamarisk and 13 at Indian Wells. La Quinta, it developed, was the hardest—in the first round anyways—as only seven players got under regulation figures there.

Seals Whip Defending Champion Canadiens

By DAVID DIETZ

OAKLAND — Clapping in approval, Seals' Gen. Mgr. Frank Selke Jr. led reporters into the dressing room last night after the vital 5-1 victory over Montreal.

"Good effort; great effort, you guys," Selke said.

It was, indeed. Oakland won without the services of three of its best players and regained a three-point lead over the third place Los Angeles in the Western Division of the National Hockey League.

EDGE

The victory also gave the Seals a final edge in the season series with the world champion Canadiens. Oakland won three and tied one of the six games between the clubs.

"It was a good all-around effort and, being shorthanded as we were, the win was doubly gratifying," coach Fred Glover said. He referred to the absence of Bill Hicke, Oakland's top point-getter; Gary Jarrett, top goal scorer, and the team's best defenseman, Bert Marshall. All are injured.

NO CHANCE

"We were bottling them up in their own end," he said of the strong effort against the swift Canadiens. "We didn't give them a chance to get started."

Rookie Brian Perry, Jarrett's replacement, scored two important goals in the second period to put Oakland comfortably ahead, 4-1, after Mike Laughton and Bob Dillabough of the Seals and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal had tallied in the first period.

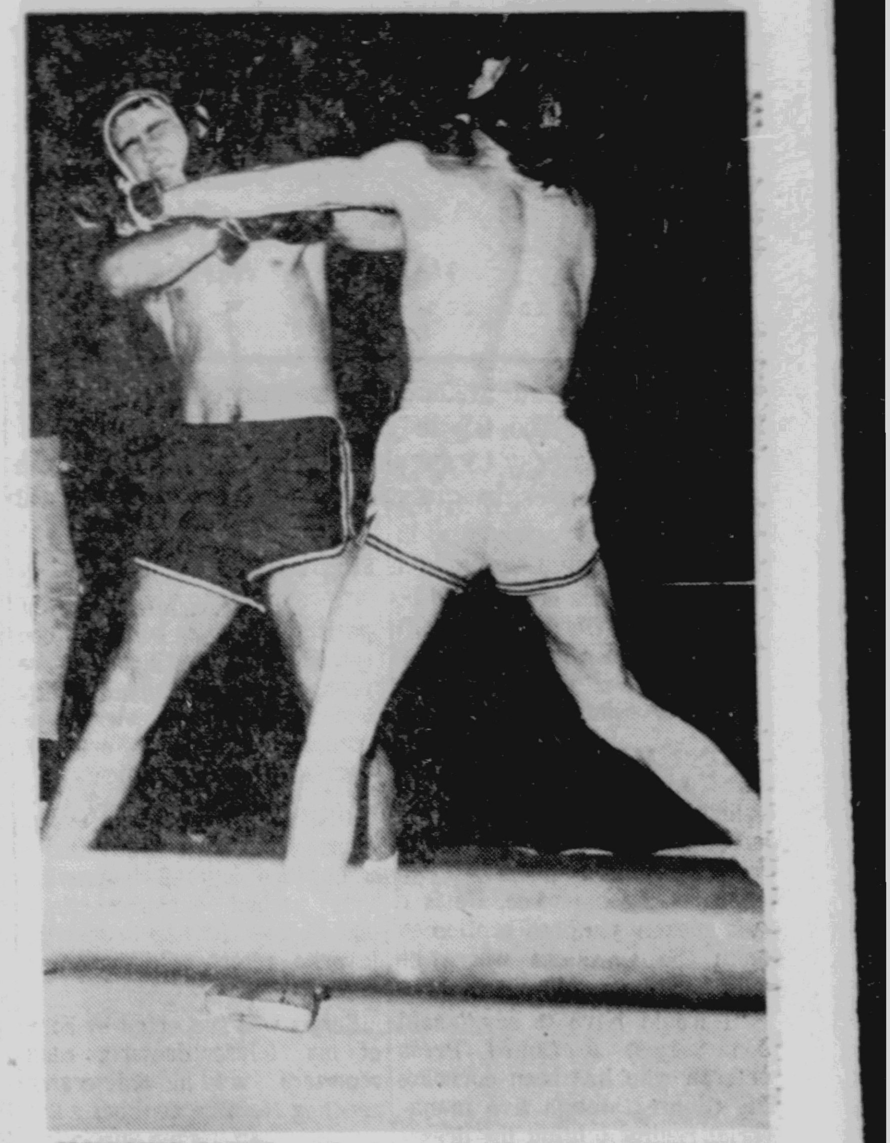
The Seals play in Toronto Saturday and Boston on Sunday before returning to the Coliseum Arena next Wednesday night to play the surging New York Rangers.



SLUGGING SOPHS — The long arm of the law reached out and glanced off the chin of Mike Wilburn whose eyes closed under the impact. That's the way Steve Law (right) piled up enough points to win a decision in this all-sophomore battle.

By KIMO CAMPBELL

Once the College of Marin Tars started running roughshod over their erstwhile archrivals, the Santa Rosa Junior College Bear Cubs, it felt so good they almost didn't stop.

The Mariners delighted about 300 spectators in Kentfield last night by routing Santa Rosa's J.C. basketball team 87-39 in a Camino Norte Conference encounter, at one stage running off 29 points in a row, which ought to be a school and conference record.

13 TARS SCORE

Pat Schafer's 17 points and Ches Bornia's 15 rebounds led the parade as 13 Tars cracked the scoring column. Marin ran up a 33-18 halftime margin, then increased it after the intermission despite substituting, as the whole team rebounded and shot well, while the Bear Cubs seemed unable to buy a shot.

Coach Cal Riemcke was pleased with the team's movement on offense, in working their extended patterns against the Santa Rosa zone for good shots. He praised the entire team for good shooting (35 of 64, 54 per cent) and singled out frosh guard Daryl Ravani for his defense.

"Ravani usually plays good defense," the veteran cage coach said, "but tonight he just let Farrell get a couple early, then shut him off."

Mike Farrell, Santa Rosa's top scorer, averages 18 points per game but was held to four points by Ravani. Bruce Bromley and Len Gotschalk led the Bear Cubs with 10 points apiece.

BIG WHIPPING

The run of points came in the last half of the second span, as Marin went from 56-37 to 85-37 without retaliation. In that span, Santa Rosa missed both ends of two-shot fouls on three occasions, were whipped off the boards, and just generally did not look like a team that has won nine games, nor one that has come within nine points of league-leader Contra Costa.

Riemcke said that his club is already looking forward to Saturday's home game against second-place DeAnza College of Cupertino, which beat Marin 75-74 in January. The game will be

It's Quite A Contrast For Vince

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vince Lombardi, the miracle worker of Green Bay, Wis., population 85,000, may find miracles harder to come by in the nation's capital.

The city isn't only 10 times bigger than Green Bay. It's bigger than life.

In Washington, they play politics.

In Green Bay, losing is a disgrace. In Washington, it's some thing people learn to live with. It happens to one party or the other every four years.

It's happened to the Redskins with regularity since 1942 when they last won a National Football League title.

Lombardi must teach Washington that winning can be fun. He must persuade his players that faith, family and football are the bedrock of success.

In swinging Washington, that may go over like a new edition of The Life of Millard Fillmore.

The telephone company needs 32 yellow pages just to list Washington's drinking places.

The 5-7 split is one that can be made. The ball should be rolled to the right of the 5. Move slightly left on the alley and aim your ball to the right. Even if you're off a little and the 5 misses the 7, it may bounce off the sideboard and pick it up anyhow.

Seals Loan Goalie To Canucks

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Seals said yesterday that they were sending veteran goalie Charlie Hodge to Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League for at least 14 days.

The move was made so Hodge would be able to get in shape for the National Hockey League playoffs, the Seals said. Most of the goal tending has been done by rookie Chris Worthy and Gary Smith lately.

"Charlie was just not getting enough work here," said general manager Frank Selke, "and it was showing in his play."

Four-Golfer Deadlock In Bob Hope Classic

Fleckman, the long-hitting soph from Port Arthur, Tex., and 28-year-old Shaw, who sometimes washes his own clothes to save money, bagged five under 67s at Tamarisk. Trevino, the U.S. Open champ who seems to have found his all-winning 1968 groove the last two weeks, shot a matching 67 at Bermuda Dunes, and Littler, who was second in the San Diego Open last week, got a 67 at Indian Wells.

CHANGE COURSES

As a result, the quartet led the field by a stroke at the start of today's second round with everyone in the pro field of 136 changing courses. They'll all have one whack at the four courses and the low 70 and ties will go on to play the final round in the 90-hole Hope Classic on Sunday at Indian Wells.

Tony Jacklin, the good-looking young English star, turned in the best round at La Quinta—a four under 68. He was in a seven-man group tied at that figure. The others were Joel Goldstrand and Buddy Sullivan (Tamarisk), Jim Ferrier, Jim Wiechers and Jim Colbert (Indian Wells) and Ken Still (Bermuda Dunes).

The three-under-par 69 group was made up of an even dozen —Dave Bollman, Charles Coody, Bruce Devlin, Jerry Mowlds and Ray Floyd (Tamarisk), Kaiser champ Miller Barber, Art Wall, Tom Nieporte, Bobby Brue and Rod Funseth (Indian Wells), and Bob Duden and Dave Hill (Bermuda Dunes).

TIED AT 70

Former Hope champion Doug Sanders, Frank Beard and Gay Brewer were among another dozen tied at 70 while the Lotz brothers, Dick and John, and Billy Casper were in a group of 11 tied at one-under 71.

Masters champ Bob Goalby had an opening round 73, PGA champ Julius Boros a 75 and Charley Sifford, who won the Los Angeles Open a month ago to kick off a $5.5 million year on the PGA tour, had an 81.

Trevino had seven birds on his card but he missed making it an even more spectacular round when he took a double bogey six on the par-four, 435-yard 16th at Bermuda. Trevino got in trouble when his second shot flew over the green and he chipped badly coming back.

If you think Sifford had problems, you should have seen what happened to poor Reeve McBee, the man who surprised everyone when he shot a course record 64 in the second round of the 1966 U.S. Open in San Francisco. McBee, playing at Tamarisk, had two holes on the back nine in which he took 10s and another in which he got a seven. His card showed 40-55—95.

First money in the Hope is worth $20,000. There is an additional purse of $22,000 for the pro-am phase of the tourney. A total of 408 amateurs are entered, which was mainly responsible for slow play in the opening round.

Shaw and Trevino were tied for the lead in the pro-am with 16 under par totals. The competition is through 72 holes with the pros changing teams (three amateurs each) every day.

Another NBA Star Injured

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gus Johnson, Baltimore's All-Star forward, has joined Boston player-coach Bill Russell on the sidelines as injuries continue to shake the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division title contenders.

Johnson suffered a torn ligament in his left knee in a third quarter spill last night as the first place Bullets hung a 124-112 setback on the crippled Celtics. Boston lost Russell last Sunday when the 6-foot-10 pivotman suffered strained knee ligaments in a game against New York.

Earlier, Cazzie Russell of the Knickerbockers and Luke Jackson of the Philadelphia 76ers were shelved for the season with injuries.

Johnson also was feared lost for at least six weeks. He collided with teammate Kevin Loughery and fell heavily to the floor. Physicians said the 6-foot6 Johnson would undergo surgery today.

Lombardi To Washington

ports he was offered $1 million in Redskins stock at half price. Redskins officials declined to confirm that Lombardi would also be paid up to $110,000 annually under a pact running five or more years.

"Stock in football corporations is difficult to obtain, and, in all probability, this would be the chance of a lifetime for Mr. Lombardi," Olejniczak told the Packer board.

"Lombardi has served us well, far and above the call of duty, and we felt it would be a dog-in-the-manger attitude if we were to stand in his way to obtaining a very profitable and substantial interest in the Washington ball club," he told directors.

NO COMPENSATION

Olejniczak said directors decided not to ask Washington to compensate the Packers for Lombardi. But he said there was much discussion of reimbursement.

"It is difficult to measure true value of compensation," the Packer president said. "If someone had offered me 15 players from any one club for Mr. Lombardi, I would have turned them down."

"If someone had offered me $1 million, I would have turned them down. I would not cheapen this deal by measuring him in money or a couple of players," he said.

"We will always be indebted to Vince Lombardi," he added. "Whatever we have done for him, he certainly was deserving of it, if not more."

LAST IN '58

In 1958, the Packers finished dead last in the NFL Western Division with a 1-10-1 record.

Lombardi, a New York native who had been a defensive coach with the New York Giants, arrived in January 1959, and the Packers never again knew a dry spell until the 1968 season—the one that followed his decision to abandon his coaching duties to become full-time general manager.

The first year, 1959, Green Bay finished 7-5, and Lombardi was selected NFL Coach of the Year.

The next season, the Packers won their division title, then took NFL championships in 1961, 1962, 1965, 1966 and 1967.

DOUBLE TITLES

Green Bay defeated Kansas City in the first Super Bowl after the 1966 season, and repeated their conquest over an American Football League champion by crushing Oakland the next year.

On Feb. 1, 1968, Lombardi's unprecedented era of successful coaching ended when he turned over the field duties to his long time aide, Phil Bengtson.

It was the first time the general manager, absolute ruler of Green Bay football, ever delegated a major share of authority.

S.F. Skipper Scores Home Run With Press

Affable and articulate are adjectives that accurately describe Clyde King. The new manager of the Giants is easy to speak to; courteous and amiable in his responses to questions; mild and gracious in his manner.

Obviously, there is a slight difference between the personalities of King and his predecessor, Herman Franks, a brusque man whose rough and short manner did not endear him to dressing room reporters.

KING MADE A big hit with two score press, radio and television representatives the other day when he outlined his spring training plans without once raising his voice. He is a soft spoken southern gentleman from the Carolinas where he was born and still lives.

"I would have to say," said Joe Sargis, a United Press veteran who has been covering the Giants through five managerial regimes, "that the dressing room outlook this year is good."

SARGIS MADE this observation before five minutes elapsed at King's first press conference. The consensus after the conference ended corroborated Sargis' snap judgment. It was generally agreed among the men who cover the dressing room that no longer will they suffer through sulphurous sessions.

There were occasions when Franks' triggerlike temper exploded with volcanic fury, particularly after sqeaking one-run losses. During Franks' four-year regime as manager the Giants lost quite a few one-run games so his volatile eruptions were not isolated incidents.

ONE OF HERMAN'S favorite expressions was: "What kind of a question is that?" Questions that probed sensitive issues could cause Herman to spew his favorite retort with venomous expletives.

"Not at all," says Sargis. "It just seemed that way when delicate questions had to be asked. Some of the younger reporters, possibly intimidated by Herman's explosive replies, hesitated to ask the tough questions. I merely was doing my job in putting probing questions to Herman."

SARGIS' EXPLANATION of the situation makes sense. He definitely is not a sadistic fellow. He's just a very competent reporter, unafraid to ask embarrassing questions that good newspapermen sometimes must ask to put a story in proper focus.

"Actually," Sargis insists, "I might miss Herman. I got a Christmas card from him. Could he be mellowing after four second place finishes with the Giants?"

PRO FOOTBALL HALL OF FAME

Coach, Four Ex-players Win Honor

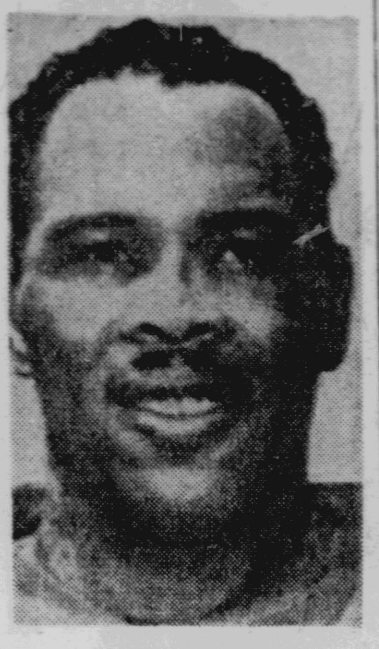
CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Earle "Greasy" Neale, a coach who led the Philadelphia Eagles to two National Football League championships, and four former stars—Turk Edwards, Leo Nomellini, Joe Perry and Ernie Stautner — have been elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

Announcement was made today by Dick Gallagher, director of the Hall.

The five will join 54 other pro greats in induction ceremonies in September.

Neale, a former big league baseball player with the Cincinnati Reds and a Football coach at seven colleges, led the Eagles to the Eastern titles in 1947, 1948 and 1949 and the NFL championships in the latter two years.

LEO NOMELLINI
Two former . . .



JOE PERRY
. . . 49er stars

Nomellini, Perry and Stautner were honored at the earliest pissible time. A player must be retired for at least five seasons before becoming eligible for membership.

Nomellini, a tackle for the San Francisco 49ers, won all-league honors six times, twice as an offensive player and four times for defense. He played in 174 consecutive games, the third best longevity mark in NFL history.

Perry, a standout fullback for most if his 16 seasons including 14 with the 49ers, won the rushing title in the now defunct All-American Football Conference in 1949 and took it twice in the NFL, in 1953 and 1954.

Stautner, a tackle for the Pittsburgh Steelers, was an almost perennial choice for All-NFL honors in 14 seasons—1950 through 1963. From 1953 until 1962, he missed only one Pro Bowl Game.

Edwards, a standout tackle and later a coach for the Redskins of Boston and Washington, made the NFL's all-league team four times in a nine-season career in 1932 through 1940. A knee injury forced the retirement in 1940 of the 6-foot 2½, 260-pounder.

Czech Amateur Stuns Ashe In Tennis Tourney Opener

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Top-ranked Rod Laver of Australia led a field of 16 professional and amateur players into tonight's second round of the $7,000 Philadelphia International Indoor Open tennis singles championships.

But the top-ranked amateur, second-seeded Lt. Arthur Ashe, U.S, Amateur and Open champion, was missing. Ashe was eliminated by Jan Kodes, the Czech Amateur champion, in a stunning 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 upset in the opening round last night.

Laver, who defeated Pierre Barthes, French pro, 6-3, 6-1, in the opening round, faces Butch Buchholz of St. Louis, 6-4, 14-12 victory over Herb Fitzgibbon of Garden City, N.Y.

Boat Registration Extended 10 Days

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Department of Harbors and Watercraft has given Californians an additional 10 days to renew the registration of their boats.

Director Robert C. Walker said the registration deadline was extended from Tuesday until Feb. 14 because flooding in certain areas of the state where boat usage is high created "hardships" in meeting the original deadline.

Tar Freshmen Cagers Rally For Victory

College of Marin's frosh basketball team roared from behind in the second half to overtake Terra Linda High School 57-45 in Kentfield last night.

Down 32-22 at the half, Coach Jim Halm's charges bestirred themselves aftec the intermission and used improved shooting and rebounding to take the play away from the Trojans, who were outscored 35-13 in the second half. Terra Linda was handicapped by the absence of star shooter Pat Purcell, the leading Marin County Athletic League scorer with a 20.8 average. Purcell has a sprained ankle.

Terry Bennett had 12 point points and Bill Hoge 11 for the Tarbabes, now 8-5 on the year.

Five Marin County entries will vie in the 21st annual Grand National Roadster Show that opens a 10-day run Feb. 14 at the Oakland Coliseum.

The delegation will represent San Rafael, San Anselmo, Tiburon and Novato at the nationally-known Oakland event, according to show general manager Mel Fernandes.

San Rafael's entry will be a custom show motorcycle built by Roger M. Hawkins, 25, an auto mechanic of 185 Woodland Avenue.

CYCLE

San Anselmo's two entries include a street rod coupe built from a 1932 Ford by Thomas J. Passantino, 27, a systems engineer of 60 Parkway Avenue, and a customized street motorcycle by Tony Ialopi of 111 Broadmoor Avenue.

Tiburon will be represented by a customized competition hardtop named "Moonduster" and created by Peter H. Bert, 36, an architect of 1915 Mar West.

Novato's exhibit will be a customized three-wheel motorcycle entered jointly by Michael McGinnis, 31, a fry cook, and Thomas Palmer, 29, a heavy equipment operator.

Entries including the nation's top show cars will compete in 44 display classes during the Oakland event for more than 100 awards headed by a $5,000, nine-foot trophy for "America's most beautiful roadster."

Show doors at the Coliseum's Exhibit Hall will be open from 6 to 10 p.m. weekdays and from 1 to 10 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and Feb. 21, Washington's Birthday.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Feb. 6, the 37th day of 1969 with 328 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1778 Massachusetts ratified the Constitution.

In 1943 Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was named commander-in-chief of the Allied Expeditionary Forces in North Africa.

A thought for the day: Henry Clay said, "If you wish to avoid foreign collision you had better abandon the ocean."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In No-Trump, Lose The Early Trick To The Harmless Enemy

When you don't know which suit to tackle first at a trump contract, start with the suit that gives the lead to the harmless opponent. You may not be deliriously lucky with that suit but at least you'll buy enough time to develop the tricks you need.

TAKES WITH KING

West opened the three of hearts, East put up the jack and South won with the king. South thoughtlessly led a diamond to try a finesse with dummy's jack, and by the time he looked up he was down.

East won with the king of diamonds and returned the seven of hearts. South tried a finesse with the ten, losing to the queen, and back came a heart to the ace. Since declarer needed a club trick for his contract he led a spade to dummy and returned a club.

West took two clubs and two more hearts, and South was down two.

WEST IS SAFE

South should see from the start that West is the harmless opponent. If West wins an early trick he cannot hurt declarer by leading hearts since that would allow South to win a trick with the ten of hearts. For this reason South should plan to tackle the clubs first; if the queen of clubs is in unfavorable position, harmless West will gain the lead.

HOPE FOR HEART

South leads a spade to dummy in order to return a club. West wins with the queen of clubs and switches to the eight of diamonds in the hope of getting East to return a heart.

South must put up dummy's ace of diamonds, refusing to finesse. He leads another club from dummy, forcing out the ace. Now South is sure of 10 tricks instead of only seven — all because he kept the dangerous opponent out of the lead.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ 6 2
♥ Q 9 4 3 2
♦ 8 3 2
♣ A Q 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 1 no-trump.

You are strong enough for a response, but not quite strong enough to bid two hearts. If partner had opened with one club or one diamond you would have bid one heart; your hand is strong enough to show a new suit at the level of one.

Name's A Mystery

TOKYO (UPI)—The Japanese people, who trace their recorded history back to 660 B.C., still cannot decide the name of their nation. Some Japanese call it Nippon. Others say Nihon. The government has never settled the question. The name "Japan" was given to the northeast Asian islands by early European explorers.

BOXING

of the night, Steve Law a skittérish jumping jack who waded and flitted into Mike Wilburn, wound up with the lightweight title on a not-too-popular decision despite steady and solid hitting by Wilburn in the late going.

Then came a brawler as Burton, hitting hard for three rounds, punched and hammered out a decision over the younger Campbell for the junior welterweight title, repeatedly fighting off late-round flurries by Campbell in a deceivingly bloody battle, made red by Campbell,' bleeding nose.

SLOW START

McDowell, after slow starts in each round, had Barson defendless, arms down in the first two rounds, and after another solid right again jolted Barson, Olson stopped the bout at 25 seconds of the third round.

Neal Given, solid and sturdy, whipped a game, smiling and mustachioed Mike Morris for the middleweight crown, scoring a knockdown in the first round, and overcoming hard-hitting and swift ducking by Norris

HEAVIES

Seals Loan Goalie To Canucks

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Seals said yesterday that they were sending veteran goalie Charlie Hodge to Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League for at least 14 days.

The move was made so Hodge would be able to get in shape for the National Hockey League playoffs, the Seals said. Most of the goal tending has been done by rookie Chris Worthy and Gary Smith lately.

"Charlie was just not getting enough work here," said general manager Frank Selke, "and it was showing in his play."

Four-Golfer Deadlock In Bob Hope Classic

Fleckman, the long-hitting soph from Port Arthur, Tex., and 28-year-old Shaw, who sometimes washes his own clothes to save money, bagged five under 67s at Tamarisk. Trevino, the U.S. Open champ who seems to have found his all-winning 1968 groove the last two weeks, shot a matching 67 at Bermuda Dunes, and Littler, who was second in the San Diego Open last week, got a 67 at Indian Wells.

CHANGE COURSES

As a result, the quartet led the field by a stroke at the start of today's second round with everyone in the pro field of 136 changing courses. They'll all have one whack at the four courses and the low 70 and ties will go on to play the final round in the 90-hole Hope Classic on Sunday at Indian Wells.

Tony Jacklin, the good-looking young English star, turned in the best round at La Quinta—a four under 68. He was in a seven-man group tied at that figure. The others were Joel Goldstrand and Buddy Sullivan (Tamarisk), Jim Ferrier, Jim Wiechers and Jim Colbert (Indian Wells) and Ken Still (Bermuda Dunes).

The three-under-par 69 group was made up of an even dozen —Dave Bollman, Charles Coody, Bruce Devlin, Jerry Mowlds and Ray Floyd (Tamarisk), Kaiser champ Miller Barber, Art Wall, Tom Nieporte, Bobby Brue and Rod Funseth (Indian Wells), and Bob Duden and Dave Hill (Bermuda Dunes).

TIED AT 70

Former Hope champion Doug Sanders, Frank Beard and Gay Brewer were among another dozen tied at 70 while the Lotz brothers, Dick and John, and Billy Casper were in a group of 11 tied at one-under 71.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer, San Diego winner Jack Nicklaus, Dave Marr, Deane Beman, Harold Henning of South Africa, Martin Roesink of Holland and George Knudson of Canada topped a field of 19 with even par 72s.

Masters champ Bob Goalby had an opening round 73, PGA champ Julius Boros a 75 and Charley Sifford, who won the Los Angeles Open a month ago to kick off a $5.5 million year on the PGA tour, had an 81.

Trevino had seven birds on his card but he missed making it an even more spectacular round when he took a double bogey six on the par-four, 435-yard 16th at Bermuda. Trevino got in trouble when his second shot flew over the green and he chipped badly coming back.

If you think Sifford had problems, you should have seen what happened to poor Reeve McBee, the man who surprised everyone when he shot a course record 64 in the second round of the 1966 U.S. Open in San Francisco. McBee, playing at Tamarisk, had two holes on the back nine in which he took 10s and another in which he got a seven. His card showed 40-55—95.

First money in the Hope is worth $20,000. There is an additional purse of $22,000 for the pro-am phase of the tourney. A total of 408 amateurs are entered, which was mainly responsible for slow play in the opening round.

Shaw and Trevino were tied for the lead in the pro-am with 16 under par totals. The competition is through 72 holes with the pros changing teams (three amateurs each) every day.

Another NBA Star Injured

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gus Johnson, Baltimore's All-Star forward, has joined Boston player-coach Bill Russell on the sidelines as injuries continue to shake the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division title contenders.

Johnson suffered a torn ligament in his left knee in a third quarter spill last night as the first place Bullets hung a 124-112 setback on the crippled Celtics. Boston lost Russell last Sunday when the 6-foot-10 pivotman suffered strained knee ligaments in a game against New York.

Earlier, Cazzie Russell of the Knickerbockers and Luke Jackson of the Philadelphia 76ers were shelved for the season with injuries.

Johnson also was feared lost for at least six weeks. He collided with teammate Kevin Loughery and fell heavily to the floor. Physicians said the 6-foot6 Johnson would undergo surgery today.

Lombardi To Washington

ports he was offered $1 million in Redskins stock at half price. Redskins officials declined to confirm that Lombardi would also be paid up to $110,000 annually under a pact running five or more years.

"Stock in football corporations is difficult to obtain, and, in all probability, this would be the chance of a lifetime for Mr. Lombardi," Olejniczak told the Packer board.

"Lombardi has served us well, far and above the call of duty, and we felt it would be a dog-in-the-manger attitude if we were to stand in his way to obtaining a very profitable and substantial interest in the Washington ball club," he told directors.

NO COMPENSATION

Olejniczak said directors decided not to ask Washington to compensate the Packers for Lombardi. But he said there was much discussion of reimbursement.

"It is difficult to measure true value of compensation," the Packer president said. "If someone had offered me 15 players from any one club for Mr. Lombardi, I would have turned them down."

"If someone had offered me $1 million, I would have turned them down. I would not cheapen this deal by measuring him in money or a couple of players," he said.

"We will always be indebted to Vince Lombardi," he added. "Whatever we have done for him, he certainly was deserving of it, if not more."

LAST IN '58

In 1958, the Packers finished dead last in the NFL Western Division with a 1-10-1 record.

Lombardi, a New York native who had been a defensive coach with the New York Giants, arrived in January 1959, and the Packers never again knew a dry spell until the 1968 season—the one that followed his decision to abandon his coaching duties to become full-time general manager.

The first year, 1959, Green Bay finished 7-5, and Lombardi was selected NFL Coach of the Year.

The next season, the Packers won their division title, then took NFL championships in 1961, 1962, 1965, 1966 and 1967.

DOUBLE TITLES

Green Bay defeated Kansas City in the first Super Bowl after the 1966 season, and repeated their conquest over an American Football League champion by crushing Oakland the next year.

On Feb. 1, 1968, Lombardi's unprecedented era of successful coaching ended when he turned over the field duties to his long time aide, Phil Bengtson.

It was the first time the general manager, absolute ruler of Green Bay football, ever delegated a major share of authority.

OFFICE WALLS TUMBLING DOWN?

The bosses of America are doomed to lose their main status symbol — privacy — according to forecasts by decorators. The new thing is "office landscaping" with functional groups of furniture separated only by low cloth screens or bookshelf dividers, and no walls behind which the boss can relax or hide from persistent salesmen. SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Some Treasury Notes Offering High Yields

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like to buy some Treasury notes or bonds. Do they have any risk? — J.L.

A. Prices of Treasury bonds and notes have been in an extended — four years — slide, and further downside risk is possible. However, if you plan to hold to maturity, you will stand to reap a small profit from currently discounted levels. One-to five-year maturities are selling to yield 5.5 to 6.125 per cent and certain issues are acceptable at par in payment of federal estate taxes if owned by the decedent at the time of death.

Treasury bills, which are almost as liquid as cash, are available in 10 to 350 day maturities and yield around 6 per cent. These debt securities can be acquired either through a broker or a commercial bank.

High yields are attracting some money that normally would be channeled to savings, a phenomenon known as disintermediation. However the diversion of funds as yet has not been excessive, with net outflow of $30 million reported by 500 mutual savings banks in December.

In making your selection be certain that the interest gained is not canceled out by commission or taxes.

Q. I have purchased 100 shares of two funds and have asked to have dividends in cash. These shares were bought for retirement in 12 years and I am now having second thoughts about the dividends. Should I have them reinvested? — B.A.

A. Reinvestment of capital gains and dividends can, over a period of years, add to the value of your holdings. For example: By reinvesting distributions in one of the most widely held growth-income funds, total value after 10 years was 18 per cent greater than if distributions had been accepted in cash. One of the popular gorwth funds showed an even greater differential of 24 per cent. Last year 57 per cent of fund shareholders took advantage of reinvestment compared with 30 per cent in 1956.

For the person acquiring shares for retirement five to 10 years away the advantages are obvious, especially since reinvestment of capital gains is done at net asset value.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

In No-Trump, Lose The Early Trick To The Harmless Enemy

When you don't know which suit to tackle first at a trump contract, start with the suit that gives the lead to the harmless opponent. You may not be deliriously lucky with that suit but at least you'll buy enough time to develop the tricks you need.

TAKES WITH KING

West opened the three of hearts, East put up the jack and South won with the king. South thoughtlessly led a diamond to try a finesse with dummy's jack, and by the time he looked up he was down.

East won with the king of diamonds and returned the seven of hearts. South tried a finesse with the ten, losing to the queen, and back came a heart to the ace. Since declarer needed a club trick for his contract he led a spade to dummy and returned a club.

West took two clubs and two more hearts, and South was down two.

WEST IS SAFE

South should see from the start that West is the harmless opponent. If West wins an early trick he cannot hurt declarer by leading hearts since that would allow South to win a trick with the ten of hearts. For this reason South should plan to tackle the clubs first; if the queen of clubs is in unfavorable position, harmless West will gain the lead.

HOPE FOR HEART

South leads a spade to dummy in order to return a club. West wins with the queen of clubs and switches to the eight of diamonds in the hope of getting East to return a heart.

South must put up dummy's ace of diamonds, refusing to finesse. He leads another club from dummy, forcing out the ace. Now South is sure of 10 tricks instead of only seven — all because he kept the dangerous opponent out of the lead.

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold:

♣ A Q 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 1 no-trump.

You are strong enough for a response, but not quite strong enough to bid two hearts. If partner had opened with one club or one diamond you would have bid one heart; your hand is strong enough to show a new suit at the level of one.

Name's A Mystery

TOKYO (UPI)—The Japanese people, who trace their recorded history back to 660 B.C., still cannot decide the name of their nation. Some Japanese call it Nippon. Others say Nihon. The government has never settled the question. The name "Japan" was given to the northeast Asian islands by early European explorers.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Feb. 6, the 37th day of 1969 with 328 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1778 Massachusetts ratified the Constitution.

In 1943 Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was named commander-in-chief of the Allied Expeditionary Forces in North Africa.

A thought for the day: Henry Clay said, "If you wish to avoid foreign collision you had better abandon the ocean."

CREDIT STRUCTURE CRISIS

Marinite Strongly Criticizes Banks

By JOANNE GRANT

If a major crisis threatens banks, they will change their methods of operation. And if they don't change their methods, there will be a crisis, predicted Robert de Fremery, outspoken bank critic who lives in San Anselmo.

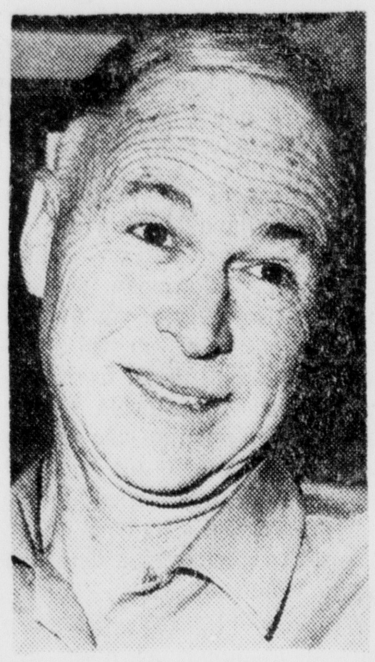
"There was a severe credit crunch in 1966 and we are entering another crunch right now — at the same time the world as a whole is faced with the collapse of the credit structure," the San Francisco businessman said in an interview at his home at 203 Bolinas Avenue.

The first crack was the devaluation of the pound, de Fremery said. "Since then, the number of crises has become more frequent."

He maintained the large-scale hoarding of gold is withdrawing the very basis of the credit structure. "This is bound to precipate a wholesale loss of confidence."

"If one needle doesn't prick the inflated balloon another one will," he warned flatly.

The 52-year-old spare-time economist sees the country's banking system as the culprit in business cycles, including depressions and recessions. The problem, he believes, is the practice of allowing banks to "borrow short and lend long."



ROBERT DE FREMERY
Bank critic

He explains it this way: "Bankers borrow the money you deposit in checking accounts withdrawable on demand and lend it for as long as 90 days and even six months. They borrow the money you put into savings accounts withdrawable on 30 days notice and lend it for as long as 20 years."

Thus, he explained, bankers become obligated to pay out money that doesn't exist.

But de Fremery believes he has a solution.

He has proposed a 20-year program which would make banks fully liquid and would eliminate $309.6 billion of government debt without altering the supply of money or increasing taxes.

Under his stabilized system, banks would be able to lend only as much money as they actually have.

Demand deposits, such as checking accounts, de Fremery explained, would be backed by actual cash in the bank.

Loans would be made with funds obtained by selling certificates of deposit of varying maturities from 30 days to 20 years. Money could be loaned only for the amount of time on the certificates of deposit.

Eminent economists and even some bankers have agreed with de Fremery. His theories, written in layman's language, have appeared in financial journals and books, including the new "Death of the Dollar" by William F. Rickenbacker.

The major reason the system, first proposed as early as the 1920s, has not been adopted is because it is not politically feasible, he said.

Many persons also believe that the possibility of bank failure has been wiped out by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, an institution de Fremery calls a "psychological gimmick."

He pointed out that in 1957 the FDIC in its annual report admitted: "There is no question that the present deposit insurance would be entirely inadequate should, for example, a situation similar to that of 1930-33 recur."

"A failure of just one of our major banks would topple the entire FDIC," de Fremery maintained.

His contentions are backed by research which began in 1937, when, after two years at the University of California, he became disillusioned and dropped out to do independent research.

His college courses, he said, weren't answering his questions about the underlying causes of the depression.

He spent three years studying the problem intensively and then worked in a federal reserve bank and commercial banks.

He has continued his research with fascination and has accumulated thick, meticulous files on economics, including letters from Herbert Hoover, explaining his views of the depression, from economists and bankers, disagreeing and agreeing with de Fremery's views.

A slightly built, mild man, de Fremery becomes intensely enthusiastic when he discusses his unusual hobby — and explains that he went into his totally unrelated business, selling a preparation for athletes foot, because he didn't feel a bank critic should work within the system.

He joined Onox in 1947, the same year he and his wife moved to Marin to raise their family. They have four children, Phillip, a classical guitarist with the San Francisco Conservatory of Music who is married and living in San Francisco; Mrs. Kate Burnett, also married and living in San Francisco; Mary, a freshman at the University of California at Santa Cruz, and Dorothy, a junior at Redwood High School, Larkspur.

Aqueduct Repair Pact Reviewed

The North Marin County Water District board Tuesday night reviewed a three-powers agreement on maintenance of Russian River aqueducts, according to Asst. Mgr. Eugene Churchill.

The agreement, not yet in final form or adopted by any of the parties, would be a mutual aid agreement to maintain present of future aqueducts from the Russian River to Marin County in event of an emergency, Churchill said.

The agreement would be among the Sonoma County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, the Marin Municipal Water District and the North Marin County Water District.

Counties Added To Disaster List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen more California counties have been added to those designated a disaster area because of mudslides and heavy rain, a California congressman said yesterday.

Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Second District, said the White House informed him that after a survey the other counties were deemed sufficiently damaged to be included.

New President For Bonn's Parliament

BONN, Germany (AP) — Kai-Uwe von Hassel was elected president of the West German Bundestag or parliament yesterday.

He succeeded Eugen Gerstenmaier, who resigned Jan. 23 under pressure of public criticism for collecting $70,250 in salary he said he lost under the Nazis.

Novato To Host Workshop On Kindergarten Tests

The speech testing program underway in Novato kindergartens for the past three years, will be the subject of a three-day testing seminar in March.

Twenty-two school speech therapists from throughout Northern California will spend March 6-8 in Novato studying the school district's project.

It was started originally with a $7,820 grant from the William Babcock Endowment Foundation of San Rafael with the understanding that what was learned in the program would be made available to other schools in Marin County. This year, it is financed by a $10,750 federal grant under the Elementary-Secondary Education Act.

Barbara Hoadley and Penelope Wayte have been in charge of the program to develop tests for kindergarten pupils. When tests show a speech defect, therapists try to determine if it can be corrected.

Defects run from minor speech flaws such as lisping, baby talk or slurred sound, or some others more serious symptom. The tests will be given to 200 kindergarten children who have been selected throughout the Novato district during the seminar.

Local speech therapists R. Lynn Campbell, Gail Friedman, Barbara Schmidt and Orene Sanders will assist in the group testings.

Following the three-day seminar, Mrs. Hoadley and Miss Wayte plan on having their tests and scores system published for use in other districts.

College Approves Co-Ed Housing

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Brown University's interfraternity council passed a resolution last night aimed at establishing a coeducational housing program at Brown.

The resolution urges fraternities and "other members of the university community" to investigate the possibility of such a program and to encourage it.

Lonn Shinn, a junior who presented the resolution, said Pembroke women are invited to meet tonight with Brown men at Alpha Pi Lambda Fraternity, of which he is president, to discuss the issue. Pembroke College is Brown's sister school.

OFFICE WALLS TUMBLING DOWN?

The bosses of America are doomed to lose their main status symbol — privacy — according to forecasts by decorators. The new thing is "office landscaping" with functional groups of furniture separated only by low cloth screens or bookshelf dividers, and no walls behind which the boss can relax or hide from persistent salesmen. SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Some Treasury Notes Offering High Yields

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like to buy some Treasury notes or bonds. Do they have any risk? — J.L.

A. Prices of Treasury bonds and notes have been in an extended — four years — slide, and further downside risk is possible. However, if you plan to hold to maturity, you will stand to reap a small profit from currently discounted levels. One-to five-year maturities are selling to yield 5.5 to 6.125 per cent and certain issues are acceptable at par in payment of federal estate taxes if owned by the decedent at the time of death.

Treasury bills, which are almost as liquid as cash, are available in 10 to 350 day maturities and yield around 6 per cent. These debt securities can be acquired either through a broker or a commercial bank.

High yields are attracting some money that normally would be channeled to savings, a phenomenon known as disintermediation. However the diversion of funds as yet has not been excessive, with net outflow of $30 million reported by 500 mutual savings banks in December.

In making your selection be certain that the interest gained is not canceled out by commission or taxes.

Q. I have purchased 100 shares of two funds and have asked to have dividends in cash. These shares were bought for retirement in 12 years and I am now having second thoughts about the dividends. Should I have them reinvested? — B.A.

A. Reinvestment of capital gains and dividends can, over a period of years, add to the value of your holdings. For example: By reinvesting distributions in one of the most widely held growth-income funds, total value after 10 years was 18 per cent greater than if distributions had been accepted in cash. One of the popular gorwth funds showed an even greater differential of 24 per cent. Last year 57 per cent of fund shareholders took advantage of reinvestment compared with 30 per cent in 1956.

For the person acquiring shares for retirement five to 10 years away the advantages are obvious, especially since reinvestment of capital gains is done at net asset value.

REAGAN PUTS U.C. UNDER EMERGENCY

Policy Reversal At S.F. State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Acting president S. I. Hayakawa of San Francisco State College, in a reversal of policy, said today that under state law striking teachers are considered automatically resigned, but they can be rehired without prejudice.

Hayakawa told a news conference that members of the striking American Federation of Teachers — about 275 — who missed classes without cause for five straight days "resigned under provisions of the state education code." The school has 1,300 teachers.

"We cannot simply reinstate those who have automatically resigned," said Hayakawa. "This is an action that rests with the state Personnel Board and must be initiated through requests of the individual concerned."

Last week, rather than remove striking AFT members, the college business office merely docked them their salaries for the days they missed. A school spokesman said at that

Authorizes Use Of Highway Patrol

BERKELEY (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has declared "a state of extreme emergency" exists at the University of California campus at Berkeley, where a strike by several hundred students is now in its 15th day.

In an unprecedented move late yesterday, Reagan declared the emergency and authorized use of highway patrolmen to put down disturbances.

The campus itself was relatively quiet after a day of turmoil Tuesday that saw two dozen hurt and 20 arrested. Two demonstrators were arrested yesterday, but there was no violence.

In issuing his proclamation, Reagan invoked the state Disaster Code and said the California Highway Patrol's assistance would "continue as long as necessary. There are about 800 state patrolmen in the Bay Area available for campus duty.

In a special news conference in Sacramento, Reagan assailed the "terrible condtions" on the Berkeley campus, the "clear

Nixon Will Visit Partners In NATO

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon announced today he would leave Feb. 23 for a five-nation visit to America's European allies. He said he hoped the visit would help "strengthen and revitalize" the U. S. relations with its NATO partners.

Nixon told his second presidential news conference that he planned to talk with the U. S. negotiating team at the Paris peace talks and also visit Pope Paul VI on the trip.

The visit, his first outside the country since becoming President, will take him to six cities — Brussels, London, Berlin, Bonn, Rome and Paris.

Nixon said in reply to a question that he did not see any possibility at this time that he would meet with Communist negotiators while in Paris. He said he did not rule out such a meeting later if Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U. S. negotiator, or other U. S. officials thought it wise.

He said he wanted to get from Lodge a complete report on the progress of the negotiations and any recommendations Lodge or his team might have, "with regard to new initiatives" the United States might take in the peace talks.

He said he would have "individual face to face meetings" with heads of government in each of the five nations, with only an interpreter present when needed.

Accompanying Nixon on the trip will be Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser. Mrs. Nixon will not, however accompany him since the nature of the trip is a working one.

Nixon said that on his return from Europe he will explore through diplomatic channels the possibility of arranging a "well prepared summit meeting" with leaders of the Soviet Union.

He said he felt that such a meeting —if preceded by adequate diplomatic preparation —"could be in our interest and in their interest."

Nixon described his forthcoming trip as the "first step in strengthening and revitalizing the American-European community" which he said was one of the great forces for peace in the world.

In addition to talking to the Belgian leaders in Brussels,

MORE RAIN FORECAST

Lightning, Winds Down Trees, Darken Many Areas

Another in a series of punishing winter storms struck Marin last night, knocking out power to hundreds of homes.

Lightning, hail, heavy rain and fierce winds lashed the county much of the night.

The storm sent rainfall totals over two inches in most of the county since the beginning of the new streak of bad weather Monday.

MORE RAIN SEEN

More rain is expected tonight as the Weather Bureau predicted an 80 per cent chance of showers. Cloudy skies were forecast for tomorrow.

Winds reached 95 miles per hour on Mount Tamalpais and 38 miles per hour at Hamilton Air Force Base last night.

In Kentfield, an aluminum storage hut at Marin Catholic High School disintegrated in high wind. Pieces of debris were scattered around the baseball field and some were blown onto Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

MANY TREES DOWN

A spokesman for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. said trees tumbling on power lines interrupted service in six Marin communities. Hardest hit was San Rafael, where an unknown number of PG&E customers were without power for periods over three hours.

Power failures listed by PG&E were: at 4:30 p.m. in the Country Club area of San Rafael, with service restored an hour later; a tree snapped a power line in Stinson Beach at 4:40 p.m., interrupting service in that community and in Bolinas for periods until 9:30 p.m.; in the area of Chula Vista, Coleman and Prospect drives in San Rafael from 8:51 p.m. to 12:20 a.m.

Power also failed in East San Rafael, including the canal area, and in San Quentin Village at 9:05 p.m. when a utility pole snapped in high winds near the San Quentin Prison exit of Highway 17. Service was restored within an hour in East San Rafael, but customers in San Quentin Village were without power until 4 a.m. because the pole had to be replaced.

Service was interrupted for two hours in the Spencer Avenue area of Sausalito at 9:30 p.m. when a tree severed a power line, according to PG&E, and about 25 customers were without service from about 9:30 p.m. to 5 a.m. at the end of Lovell

Barbecues Still Legal; Marin Protests Futile

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO—A ban on all backyard burning after Dec. 31 of this year was ordered yesterday by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District's board of directors.

The ban will apply throughout the six counties in the district—Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda and Contra Costa counties—unless some areas manage to qualify for a temporary variance under the district's regulations.

The ban will not bar barbecues.

The 12-member board voted 9-1 for the ban. Marin Supervisor William A. Gnoss cast the only "no," explaining his fellow supervisors had voted unanimously against the ban until the problem of solid waste disposal is solved on a regional basis. San Francisco supervisors Peter Tamaras and William C. Blake were absent.

Voting for the ban was Marin's other representative, San Rafael City Councilman John A. Miskimen. His own council voted 3-0 on Jan. 6 to oppose the ban, with Miskimen absenting himself from the council vote.

According to the district's staff, backyard burning is the source of 920 tons of pollutants emitted daily in the district. These 920 tons are only about 8 per cent of the total of 10,215 tons emitted daily, but are 26 per cent of the 3,631 tons over which the district has control. This is because two thirds of the 10,215 tons come from motor vehicles, which are regulated by the state, not by the district.

The district has considered such a ban in past years, but each time backed away in the face of storms of protest from homeowners and city and county officials. This time, while opposition still was heavy, the ban also drew strong support, particularly from health groups.

The crowd of about 80 persons appeared about evenly divided on the matter.

Yesterday's vote was followed by a two-and-a-half-hour hearing in the San Francisco Board of Supervisors' chambers in City Hall.

D. J. Callaghan, the district's chief administrative officer, noted that the district's hearing board could grant variances to areas with "special problems."

BAGLEY REPORTS

Consultant Asks Justice Overhaul

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A complete overhaul of California's system of justice, from the courts to the prisons, was urged today in a report on the system by consultants hired by the Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Their study, apparently the first done in California, was presented by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, in a press conference this afternoon in the Capitol. Bagley was the chairman of the committee when the $14,000 pilot study was commissioned.

It was done by Ronald Goldfarb of Washington, D.C., and by Operations Research Inc., a Santa Monica management analysis firm. Goldfarb, who has advised other states on how to update their justice systems, was on the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's staff in the Department of Justice.

The 113-page report, "Problems in the Administration of Justice in California," analyzes, criticizes and makes suggestions on a broad range of topics, including the "free trial, fair press" dilemma and automobile accident litigation, and seeks to isolate some of the reasons for delay in the courts.

"Particularly interesting," said Bagley in an announcement of the press conference, is its urging the adoption of procedures to expedite the handling of persons arrested in urban riots.

The report is divided into three areas — criminal justice, civil justice and court administration.

Citing "inequities" in the present juvenile justice system, the report suggested special attention be given the issue by a subcommittee. The present system discriminates against the poor, and only 5 per cent of the children put in institutions come from middle class families, according to Goldfarb.

He also questioned whether

Third Paris Peace Round Is Fruitless

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said today the United States does "not regard the 17th parallel as a permanent political boundary" marking two Vietnams.

Addressing his remarks to the Communist side in the third session of the Paris peace conference, Lodge was seeking to undermine Communist arguments against restoration of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), the six-mile-wide buffer zone which runs roughly along the 17th parallel.

Lodge Spoke after North Vietnamese delegation leader Xuan Thuy had once again rejected the U.S. proposal that both sides respect the DMZ as a first step towards peace.

Thuy had said that the U.S. proposal was an attempt "to perpetuate the partition of Vietnam."

Chief Viet Cong negotiator Tran Buu Kiem, in the opening speech of today's session, warned that there could be no progress in the conference so long as the administration of South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu remained in power.

In a speech that seemed to foreshadow a long deadlock in the talks, Kiem said, "the Paris conference will not be able to progress as long as the Thieu-Ky-Huong administration remains."

Santa Barbara Woes Cited At Bay Hearing

By JOANNE GRANT

The commission's chief executive officer, F. J. Hortig, did not comment on the Santa Barbara problem directly, nor on the frequently mentioned possibility of a similar situation occuring in San Pablo Bay.

He was repeatedly criticized for the way he handled the hearing, and accused of being an advocate of the proposal as he assured public officials and private groups that the drilling, if permitted, would not be offensive.

The hearing, requested by the Contra Costa County Board of supervisors and held in its chambers in Martinez, was specifically intended to gather public opinion in Contra Costa County on a proposal to lease acreage off the county's shore for oil and gas exploration.

However, concerned persons and groups from throughout the Bay Area appeared to protest the plan, claiming that whatever happened in one part

New Agency Set To Assist Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration plans to establish a new agency to assist Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in his job as liaison man with state and local officials, sources reported today.

The new agency, expected to be called the Office of Intergovernmental Relations, will have a full professional staff and will be designed to keep Agnew up to date on the state and local problems he will be dealing with.

The White House said only that such an agency "is in the planning stage." It offered no details.

$7.5 Million Capital Outlay For Petaluma?

By BONNIE BARD

Capital outlay projects totaling nearly $7.5 million — with more than $4.5 million suggested in possible bond issues — were presented to the Petaluma City Council in a study session yesterday afternoon.

Futurt projects covering the next seven years were presented by the streets, parks and recreation, fire and police departments. The council had little comment on the proposals presented by the department heads, but agreed a series of study sessions would be required to explore all of the proposed projects.

City Engineer David Young presented 14 street improvements projects, eight of which were estimated to cost $724,950 and be financed through gas tax funds, and six other projects totaling $4,635,000 that would have to be paid for through bond issues.

First on Young's priority list to be financed by gas taxes is the widening of Washington Street to four lanes from Kentucky to Redwood streets and the construction of a new Washington Street bridge. Councilmen have alrtady allocated the $412,000 for this project and will receive construction bids on Feb. 18.

The second project includes improvements to South

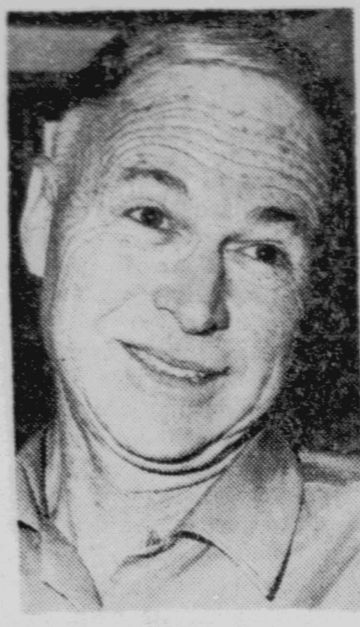
CREDIT STRUCTURE CRISIS

Marinite Strongly Criticizes Banks

By JOANNE GRANT

If a major crisis threatens banks, they will change their methods of operation. And if they don't change their methods, there will be a crisis, predicted Robert de Fremery, outspoken bank critic who lives in San Anselmo.

"There was a severe credit crunch in 1966 and we are entering another crunch right now — at the same time the world as a whole is faced with the collapse of the credit structure," the San Francisco businessman said in an interview at his home at 203 Bolinas Avenue.



ROBERT DE FREMERY
Bank critic

The first crack was the devaluation of the pound, de Fremery said. "Since then, the number of crises has become more frequent."

He maintained the large-scale hoarding of gold is withdrawing the very basis of the credit structure. "This is bound to precipate a wholesale loss of confidence."

"If one needle doesn't prick the inflated balloon another one will," he warned flatly.

The 52-year-old spare-time economist sees the country's banking system as the culprit in business cycles, including depressions and recessions. The problem, he believes, is the practice of allowing banks to "borrow short and lend long."

He explains it this way: "Bankers borrow the money you deposit in checking accounts withdrawable on demand and lend it for as long as 90 days and even six months. They borrow the money you put into savings accounts withdrawable on 30 days notice and lend it for as long as 20 years."

Thus, he explained, bankers become obligated to pay out money that doesn't exist.

But de Fremery believes he has a solution.

He has proposed a 20-year program which would make banks fully liquid and would eliminate $309.6 billion of government debt without altering the supply of money or increasing taxes.

Under his stabilized system, banks would be able to lend only as much money as they actually have.

Demand deposits, such as checking accounts, de Fremery explained, would be backed by actual cash in the bank.

Loans would be made with funds obtained by selling certificates of deposit of varying maturities from 30 days to 20 years. Money could be loaned only for the amount of time on the certificates of deposit.

Eminent economists and even some bankers have agreed with de Fremery. His theories, written in layman's language, have appeared in financial journals and books, including the new "Death of the Dollar" by William F. Rickenbacker.

The major reason the system, first proposed as early as the 1920s, has not been adopted is because it is not politically feasible, he said.

Many persons also believe that the possibility of bank failure has been wiped out by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, an institution de Fremery calls a "psychological gimmick."

He pointed out that in 1957 the FDIC in its annual report admitted: "There is no question that the present deposit insurance would be entirely inadequate should, for example, a situation similar to that of 1930-33 recur."

"A failure of just one of our major banks would topple the entire FDIC," de Fremery maintained.

His contentions are backed by research which began in 1937, when, after two years at the University of California, he became disillusioned and dropped out to do independent research.

His college courses, he said, weren't answering his questions about the underlying causes of the depression.

He spent three years studying the problem intensively and then worked in a federal reserve bank and commercial banks.

He has continued his research with fascination and has accumulated thick, meticulous files on economics, including letters from Herbert Hoover, explaining his views of the depression, from economists and bankers, disagreeing and agreeing with de Fremery's views.

A slightly built, mild man, de Fremery becomes intensely enthusiastic when he discusses his unusual hobby — and explains that he went into his totally unrelated business, selling a preparation for athletes foot, because he didn't feel a bank critic should work within the system.

He joined Onox in 1947, the same year he and his wife moved to Marin to raise their family. They have four children, Phillip, a classical guitarist with the San Francisco Conservatory of Music who is married and living in San Francisco; Mrs. Kate Burnett, also married and living in San Francisco; Mary, a freshman at the University of California at Santa Cruz, and Dorothy, a junior at Redwood High School, Larkspur.

Aqueduct Repair Pact Reviewed

The North Marin County Water District board Tuesday night reviewed a three-powers agreement on maintenance of Russian River aqueducts, according to Asst. Mgr. Eugene Churchill.

The agreement, not yet in final form or adopted by any of the parties, would be a mutual aid agreement to maintain present of future aqueducts from the Russian River to Marin County in event of an emergency, Churchill said.

The agreement would be among the Sonoma County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, the Marin Municipal Water District and the North Marin County Water District.

Counties Added To Disaster List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen more California counties have been added to those designated a disaster area because of mudslides and heavy rain, a California congressman said yesterday.

Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Second District, said the White House informed him that after a survey the other counties were deemed sufficiently damaged to be included.

New President For Bonn's Parliament

He succeeded Eugen Gerstenmaier, who resigned Jan. 23 under pressure of public criticism for collecting $70,250 in salary he said he lost under the Nazis.

Novato To Host Workshop On Kindergarten Tests

The speech testing program underway in Novato kindergartens for the past three years, will be the subject of a three-day testing seminar in March.

Twenty-two school speech therapists from throughout Northern California will spend March 6-8 in Novato studying the school district's project.

It was started originally with a $7,820 grant from the William Babcock Endowment Foundation of San Rafael with the understanding that what was learned in the program would be made available to other schools in Marin County. This year, it is financed by a $10,750 federal grant under the Elementary-Secondary Education Act.

Barbara Hoadley and Penelope Wayte have been in charge of the program to develop tests for kindergarten pupils. When tests show a speech defect, therapists try to determine if it can be corrected.

Defects run from minor speech flaws such as lisping, baby talk or slurred sound, or some others more serious symptom. The tests will be given to 200 kindergarten children who have been selected throughout the Novato district during the seminar.

Local speech therapists R. Lynn Campbell, Gail Friedman, Barbara Schmidt and Orene Sanders will assist in the group testings.

Following the three-day seminar, Mrs. Hoadley and Miss Wayte plan on having their tests and scores system published for use in other districts.

College Approves Co-Ed Housing

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Brown University's interfraternity council passed a resolution last night aimed at establishing a coeducational housing program at Brown.

The resolution urges fraternities and "other members of the university community" to investigate the possibility of such a program and to encourage it.

Lonn Shinn, a junior who presented the resolution, said Pembroke women are invited to meet tonight with Brown men at Alpha Pi Lambda Fraternity, of which he is president, to discuss the issue. Pembroke College is Brown's sister school.

Conrad Hilton Jr. Dies At 42

WEST LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Conrad N. (Nicky) Hilton Jr., the handsome hotel heir whose storybook marriage to Elizabeth Taylor ended quickly in divorce, was found dead from cardiac arrest yesterday in his home. He was 42.

Hilton

A family spokesman said Hilton, son of hotel tycoon Conrad Hilton Sr., had recently returned to his plush home in the Holmby Hills section after being hospitalized for a heart condition. The spokesman said the condition had worsened in recent days.

Hilton was found dead in his bedroom, the spokesman said.

The wavy-haired Hilton became the first of Miss Taylor's five husbands when she was 17 and he was 23, in what was considered the Hollywood wedding of the year.

After his divorce from Miss Taylor, Hilton said he would never marry again, but in 1958 he wed Patricia McClintock, heiress to the McClintock oil fortune. The couple has two sons, Conrad N. Hilton III, 9, and Michael Otis Hilton, 7.

After his second marriage, Hilton settled down and become an active businessman. At the time of his death, he was a director of Trans World Airlines, Hilton International Co., and El Paso National Bank. He also served as president of the Conrad N. Hilton Foundation.

Post For Kuchel?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ex-Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel of California may soon get a job in the Nixon administration, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew hinted yesterday.

Kuchel, a Republican, was defeated for renomination last year and now practices law in Los Angeles.

"Somehow I have the feeling that Tom Kuchel will be back in government pretty soon,'' Agnew said at a luncheon of the William Randolph Hearst Foundation's Senate Youth Program.

Death Sentence

WARSAW (UPI)—A court in Lodz yesterday sentenced to death Stanislaw Modzelewski, 44, the "Vampire of Galkowek," for slaying seven women. The Polish news agency PAP said Modzelewski was convicted of killing women ranging in age from 17 to 85 in the forests near Galkowek. The Polish press nicknamed him the "Vampire of Galkowek."

Blaze Kills 30

KORIYAMA, Japan (AP) — At least 30 persons were killed in a fire which swept through the Banko Paradise resort hotel here during a snowstorm last night. About 300 hotel guests and employees were forced to flee into the freezing cold, and many of them were in their sleeping garments.

Police said one of the dead was believed to be a Swiss woman, but she was the only foreigner found so far.

Twenty-eight persons also were injured. Police said all were Japanese.

Romance Denied

LONDON (AP) — Beatle Paul McCartney today denied persistent rumors that he is to marry a divorced member of the Eastman Kodak family.

"It's not true,'' said the only bachelor Beatle, who broke his engagement to actress Jane Asher last July.

Since November, he has been seen constantly with Linda Eastman, divorced 25-year-old daughter of American art collector Lee Eastman and brother of the new general counsel for the Beatles' Apple organization. She has a 5-year-old daughter.

Czech In Kremlin

MOSCOW (AP) — Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Jan Marko met in the Kremlin today with Soviet President Nikolai V Podgorny, an official announcement said.

Communist sources said only that the talks were held "in an atmosphere of sincere friendship and cordiality'' and covered subjects of mutual interest.

Marko arrived yesterday for a five-day visit to get acquainted with Soviet leaders. He became foreign minister on Jan. 1, succeeding Jiri Hajek who was forced out because he spoke out at the United Nations against the Soviet invasion of his country.

The average temperature in Salt Lake City in January is 26.5 degrees.

Red Arms Urged

MOSCOW (AP) — A leading Soviet newspaper called today for strengthening of the Soviet Army, "equipping it with the newest technology and educating the people in a spirit of readiness for the unexpected."

Sovetskaya Rossiya Soviet Russia, published by the Communist party's central committee, said "madmen in the United States and revenge seekers in West Germany are carrying around plans for world slaughter, but we are not helpless before this danger."

Moon Rock Asked

HOBART, Tasmania (UPI)—The Tasmania Museum today appealed to Prime Minister John Gorton to ask the United States for a sample of the moon's surface if U.S. astronauts are successful in making a landing.

Pea Soup Fog Fare

LONDON (AP) — The London fog is disappearing, an expert said today, but the metropolis is getting noisier.

Dr. Basil Brown, scientific adviser to the Greater London Council, said in a report to the chief municipal authority that banning of coal fires from "smokeless zones'' has made the city's traditional fog shroud a rarity.

But Brown said increasing night flights into London airport and a general rise in road traffic have made the city noisier.

NATO Warning

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's withdrawal from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would increase the danger of a relatively small incident in Europe escalating into a nuclear war, Adam Yarmolinsky, a former assistant secretary of defense under Robert S. McNamara said yesterday.

Yarmolinsky, since 1966 a professor at Harvard Law School, was speaking to a House of Commons committee on defense and foreign affairs. Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeu has said one result of a review of Canadian foreign policy his government now is conducting might be Canada's withdrawal from NATO.

Ireland Strike-Hit

DUBLIN (AP) — A strike by 3,000 industrial maintenance men virtually paralyzed the Irish Republic today, forcing 35,000 other persons out of work and depleting food supplies.

More than 200 factories, throughout the country were closed. Dublin holtels operated with skeleton staffs as strike pickets outside tried to stop customers entering.

Five large bakeries closed, causing an acute bread shortage. The stoppage hit the docks, closing the port of Cork in the southeast.

The strikers are demanding a $10.80 increase in their present $39.60 wage for a 40-hour week.

Three unions are directly involved — the National Engineering and electrical Trade Union, the Amalgamated Engineering and Foundry Workers Union and the Electrical Trade Union.

Lawmaker Puts Hold On Antimissile Sites

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman L. Mendel Rivers of the House Armed Services Committee has told the Defense Department his group will approve no construction plans for Sentinel antiballistic missile sites until the Nixon administration makes known its intentions about the program.

The Pentagon reacted by halting work on the sites, pending review of the system plans.

"It doesn't mean the committee is against the ABM, said a committee source who saw the letter Rivers has sent to Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird. "Mainly it's waiting to see what President Nixon and Mr. Laird want to do.''

Both Laird and Rivers have been supporters of the Sentinel, a "thin'' system proposed to blunt any nuclear missile attack Communist China might be able to mount during the 1970s. It is not designed to thwart a Soviet attack.

Nixon endorsed the proposed Sentinel shield during his campaign, but has made no comment on it since taking office.

It has come under increasingly heavy criticism, most recently from a bipartisan Senate group of Vietnam war dissenters led by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Residents of towns near areas under consideration for missile launchers or guidance radar installations also have voiced loud complaints when Army engineers showed up to check out possible sites. Congress authorized the beginning of site acquisition last year.

Even Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who pointed out that he voted for a token start on the system last year, said he thought "the time has come to take a cooler and more deliberate look at this proposal and I'm willing to do that.''

Fulbright Sees Ratification Of Nuclear Pact By March

WASHINGTON (AP) —Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee predicts ratification of the nuclear nonprliferation treaty by March 1.

"I see no reason to delay'', Fulbright said yesterday after President Nixon called for prompt Senate action.

Nixon said in a message to the Senate that "ratification of the treaty at this time would advance this administration's policy of negotiation rather than confrontation with the USSR.''

The presidential message was the signal the committee had been awaiting to clear the treaty and send it to the floor for the two-thirds vote of approval needed for ratification.

After several weeks of indecision, the same committee approved the treaty last September.

But it was never brought to a vote.

The Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia turned many members against the idea of approving a pact to which Russia was also a party.

The President said in his message urging ratification that "my request at this time in no sense alters my condemnation of that Soviet action.''

But, Nixon continued, "I believe the treaty can be an important step in our endeavor to curb the spread of nuclear weapons . . .''

Under the pact, nuclear powers would pledge that they would deliver neither atomic weapons nor the know-how for making them to nonnuclear powers.

The "have-not'' countries would promise they would neither seek nor accept nuclear weapons.

Fulbright welcomed Nixon's call for prompt action.

He said he was particularly impressed by Nixon's emphasis on "negotiation rather than confrontation.''

Superliner's Woes May Be Ironed Out

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's trouble-plagued Queen Elizabeth II may finally get to sea in late March, an engineering firm said yesterday.

The firm that built the turbine rotors that caused trouble on an unsuccessful voyage to the Canary Islands in December said its engineers had found the trouble.

Use Of Water Matches Income

PASADENA (AP)—A family's income determines its water consumption, a water consulting firm says.

"The higher the standard of living, the more water is used by the people,'' an engineer from James M. Montgomery Consulting Engineers Inc., said.

The firm's survey showed, for example, that residents of Beverly Hills, where per capita income is $4,929, used an average of 313 gallons of water a day, while residents of Compton, where per capita income is $1,727, used an average of 89 gallons a day.

Astronomers Take Picture Of A Pulsar

SANTA CRUZ (UPI) — University of California astronomers have succeeded in photographing a pulsar—one of science's newest mysteries—in the act of flashing its beam of light more brightly than 50 suns.

One member of the staff at university's Lick Observatory yesterday called the achievement "a little as though a biologist had actually seen a real live unicorn and asked his colleagues to explain it.''

Pulsars have been stirring the curiosity and imagination of scientists since their discovery in 1967 by radio astronomers at Cambridge University in England.

Since that time 27 similar objects have been discovered in various parts of the Milky Way.

One of the most widely held theories on the origin of pulsars is that they are "neutron stars''—the remnants of ordinary stars that exploded in monstrous bursts of energy eons ago.

The pulsar photographed by the U.C. staff is located in the Crab Nebula, some 6,500 light years away.

The scientists, headed by Dr. E. Joseph Wampler and Dr. Joseph S. Miller, attached a special image - intensifying television camera, supplied by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, to the 120-inch telescope at Lick Observatory.

To separate out visual pulses from steady star light, they used an ingenious rotating disc like the shutter on a stroboscopic light device.

As Wampler and Miller recorded the phenomonen, the pulsar flashed on and off once every 33 thousandths of a second. At its dimmest, the pulsar was essentially invisible. At its maximum it flared 50 times more brightly.

Flu Crisis Eases

TOKYO (UPI)—More than 222,780 persons have come down with the flu throughout Japan but the outbreak appears to have passed its peak at least in the Tokyo area, the Health and Welfare Ministry said yesterday.

Tobacco Industry Bracing For Fight On TV Ban Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The tobacco industry braced today for a fight to the death over a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) proposal to bar cigarette advertising from radio and television.

The impact—if the ban were to go into effect—was beyond immediate grasp. It raised questions as to what would happen to:

The nation's smokers, who light so many cigarettes it averages out to 4,195 for every man, woman and child each year.

The nation's health, for which there are government estimates that a third of all deaths of men between 35 and 60 are related to cigarettes.

The tobacco farmers, who raise the nation's No. 4 or 5 cash crop.

The radio-television industry, where tobacco firms spend $312 million a year in advertising.

Many barriers stood between the FCC proposal of Wednesday and the actual banning of cigarette advertising from the airwaves. First, Congress, which has a strong contingent of tobacco country congressmen, must let a 1965 law, which provides only for cigarette labeling, expire June 30. Then, the FCC must formally enact its proposal. And along the way at every stage, there was sure to be tremendous controversy.

Chairman Rosel H. Hyde told a news conference the FCC voted 6 to 1 in favor of the proposed restrictions on the ground that smoking causes "an epidemic of death and disabilities.''

Hyde cited Health, Education and Welfare Department statistics showing there were 50,000 deaths a year from lung cancer.

Works Hard, Rests Hard, Lives To 105

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) — George Washington Pierce, celebrating his 105th birthday yesterday, attributed his longevity to "hard work and plenty of rest.''

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Ford, then chimed in with "he doesn't work too much any more, but he really rests.'' But he does walk the dog around the block almost daily.

AN OILY MESS — There's no fishing at Santa Barbara today as a thick carpet of heavy crude oil continues to gum beaches and everything on them. The boat is an example of the crisis caused by an oil slick flow. (UPI Telephoto)

House, Senate Press Probe Of Oil Slick

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — Senate and House investigators are pressing their probes of the seeping mess of crude oil fouling the Santa Barbara coastline as the slick gums beaches and harbors.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on air and water pollution, said the current oil leak from a Union Oil Co. well is another justification for a broadening of federal legislation to handle such disasters.

He said he will visit the Santa Barbara area tomorrow to view the damage firsthand and confer with officials on the scene.

Union Oil president Fred Hartley, appearing before the subcommittee yesterday in Washington, said there was no way the eruption of the well could have been reasonably anticipated.

This was the first instance of such trouble in more than 6,000 drillings and it has given new information for future operations, Hartley told senators.

Muskie told the oil president it was clear the industry was not prepared to handle pollution from another leak if one occurs.

In Sacramento, Assembly Democratic Leader Jesse M. Unruh urged the federal government to order an immediate halt to the off-shore oil drilling.

Unruh said the drilling should be stopped until there are "firm guarantees" against such future incidents.

In remarks prepared for delivery at Mount San Antonio College, the Inglewood legislator also criticized what he called Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel's "hat in hand" attitude toward oil companies drilling in the channel.

"By his own statements Secretary Hickel has made it clear that he cares more about the sensibilities of the oil companies than he does about the dangers to California's beaches and ocean wildlife," Unruh said.

Firearm Safety Talks In Novato

Two public workshops on firearm safety will be held at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 18 and 25 in the lecture hall at the Novato evening high school, according to principal Robert McKeay.

The workshops will cover all phases of safety. Films, slides and pictures will be used.

Members of the gunsmithing class at the school and the National Rifle Association are sponsoring the workshops, McKeay said.

Gun Theft Denied

Paul Kenneth McSweeney, 21, of San Anselmo, accused of stealing a carbine from a car on April 29, 1968, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court. A preliminary hearing was set for March 4.

Enemy Fire Hits 1,000th U.S. Copter

SAIGON (UPI)—Ground fire downed the 1,000th U.S. helicopter lost in South Vietnam during the war, military spokesmen said today. American B52 bombers trying to prevent buildups for a new Communist offensive raided all four regions of the country.

In Saigon, the U.S. command announced American battlefield deaths last week were the greatest in seven weeks. And military spokesmen said Communist forces sustained their heaviest losses in four months.

198 U.S. DEATHS

During the week ending last Saturday, the spokesmen said, 198 Americans died on Vietnam battlefields and another 1,549 were wounded. The losses were the highest since the week ending Dec. 14 when 222 were killed. Communist losses last week were placed at 3,190, the largest number of killed since 3,398 died during the week ending Sept. 28, 1968.

Air Force B52s dropped at least 250,000 pounds of bombs on Communist base camps, suspected troop concentrations and weapons and storage sites last night and today. The bombers struck northern-most Quang Tri Province, Kontum Province in the Central Highlands, Vinh Long Province in the Mekong Delta and Tay Ninh Province 59 miles northwest of Saigon.

BASE BUILDING

At Tay Ninh, the province capital near the Cambodian border 50 miles northwest of Saigon, informed Allied military sources said today the North Vietnamese have started to build permanent, uncamouflaged base camps in Cambodia for the first time in the war.

Wednesday, American intelligence sources said captured Communist documents contained orders for major attacks during the Tet, or lunar new year holiday, which starts Feb. 17.

Inter-city Panel To Study Problems

The recently created Inter-city Committee in the Ross Valley will meet at 8 p.m. on March 6 in the San Anselmo council chamber at city hall to discuss mutual problems, including heavy equipment sharing or rental, animal control, trash disposal and traffic problems.

The study panel is composed of two members each from Ross, Fairfax and San Anselmo city councils.

LAND QUESTION

Railroad Leaves Tiburon Hanging

The fate of the abandoned but highly prized Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way in Tiburon is still up in the air because the railroad still hasn't indicated what it intends to do with the land, Tiburon Mayor William R. Bremer said last night.

The right-of-way is considered the keystone to projected development of an extensive parks, recreation and trails system on the Tiburon Peninsula.

Bremer told a joint session of the Tiburon City Council and the city's parks and recreation commission that despite promises of quick answers by rail officials, the railroad still has offered no clue to its plans for the right-of-way.

Specifically, he said, he had asked the railroad's real estate officer, attorney Vance Wolfe, how much the railroad wanted for the land. Wolfe, who assured Bremer "I'm the man to deal with," promised an answer several days ago but still hasn't called back, according to the mayor.

Nor has Wolfe given an answer on the conditions under which the city might use the land while Northwestern Pacific retains ownership, Bremer said.

He said any lease or rental arrangement for the right-of-way has definitely been ruled out. Apparently still a possibility is a plan under which the railroad would grant the city a license to use the land. Such an agreement, however, could be revoked at any time by the railroad, Bremer said.

The joint meeting was called to discuss priorities in the city's overall parks and recreation development plans. There was general agreement that acquisition of the right-of-way was the top priority although David Teather, park and recreation commissioner, suggested the so-called Paradise Drive Promenade was more important.

Teather said lack of pedestrian walkways along Paradise Drive is extremely dangerous to school children who must use it as well as other pedestrians. "It's just luck no one's been killed there," he told the joint session.

In another area, Bremer chided the commission for coming up with ideas for using lands for parks and recreation but offering no suggestions on how to get the land.

He said the commission's staff should study various methods of acquiring lands, then make recommendations on the best way to get it before it goes to the city council for action.

Commissioner Jeff Knight said the council should provide the commission with more "tools" — such as city ordinances — to facilitate its work, adding: "The commission shouldn't be required to draft ordinances. That's the council's job."

Commissioner Donald Loomis agreed that the parks panel could come up with suggestions, as Bremer wanted, but pointed out that it might take more money and staff than the commission has.

In other action, councilmen agreed in principle to a suggestion that a daylong seminar be held in late May or early June to involve the parks and recreations and planning commissions and the various other levels of the city government in putting together the city's budget.

Driver's Head Hurt

Retha E. Kunde, 65, of San Francisco, was treated for head injuries at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco after her car hit a guard rail at 9:10 a.m. yesterday on Richardson Bay bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Storm Front Poses A New Flood Peril

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern Californians, still reeling from last month's disastrous storms, evacuated hillside area homes today as new rainstorms revived threats of floods and mudslides.

In suburban Glendora, hardest hit by January's rains which caused 101 storm-related deaths and millions of dollars in damage, 10 families were awakened and evacuated to a nearby church, police said.

More than a dozen more households were alerted to prepare for evacuation as mud oozed through the streets, knocking down the barriers erected two weeks ago when the state's worst storms in 31 years struck.

County and city road crews worked feverishly in the predawn hours, reinforcing the barricades and constructing new ones. All of the Glendora area's police, firemen and sheriff's deputies were mobilized.

"We've got the same conditions now that we did last month," officer Erwin Fee said, "and we've been telling the people that. But most of them aren't evacuating yet. They're waiting to see what'll happen next."

Along the Los Angeles County coastline in the Malibu area, numerous roads were closed by flooding and mudslides. In the nearby Topanga Canyon area, also devastated by last month's storms, mud four feet deep covered the winding cliffside roads.

No homes in the area were immediately threatened, deputies said, but residents were being alerted to the hazardous road conditions and some were preparing to evacuate.

More than an inch of rain pelted the Los Angeles area in the early morning hours with no sign of slackening. Rain also battered Northern California but there were no reports of flooding or threatened damage.

Gale force winds reaching 50 miles per hour battered California's entire 1,000-mile coastline.

Walter Winchell Ends Column After 49 Years

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Walter Winchell, bereaved since his son's suicide at Christmastime, said yesterday he is giving up his Broadway column after 49 years.

Winchell, who stopped writing the column several weeks ago, said, "We've had a lot of heartaches and this is the time for me to step down. It's too much of a load to pick up again.

"I've been doing the column since 1926, and I'll be 72 in April."

Winchell, a former song and dance man, started writing for Vaudeville News. His column once appeared in nearly 1,000 papers, but recently has been down to about 100.

Winchell has been living in Scottsdale for several years with his wife, former Ziegfeld Follies girl June Magee, who suffers from a respiratory ailment.

Railroad Fans' Outing Sold Out

The Bay Area Electric Railroad Association said today its special sleeping car train excursion Feb. 22-23 has been sold out but plans are underway for another one.

The brief revival of the sleeping car, once the nation's most sophisticated mode of travel but now rapidly moving towards extinction, will take train buffs on the two-day excursion up the Feather River Canyon and over the Inside Gateway route in Lassen and Plumas Counties.

Excursion manager John C. Plytnick said no firm dates have been set for a second excursion. Information on plans for the repeat of the special rail trip may be obtained by writing or calling Plytnick at 294 Union Street, San Rafael.

The first Democratic convention was held in 1832 in Baltimore.

OIL

of the bay would affect all of it.

Marin's Asst. County Administrator, John F. Barrows, presented the Marin County Board of Supervisors opposition.

Barrows read a letter from the board, terming the proposal "highly undesireable" and requesting the commission hold a hearing in Marin before taking final action.

At one time, acreage off the Marin shore was included in the staff's proposal to lease up to 15,000 acres of the 75,000-acre bay.

Last month, the commission's assistant executive, Donald J. Everitts reported the commission had dropped the Marin plans, but a later letter from Everitts to the county led officials to believe the commission still was eyeing the Marin shore.

Yesterday Hortig repeatedly said that only the east shore was being considered "at this time." If further studies or development indicate consideration should be given to drilling off Marin or Sonoma shores, hearings would be held in those counties, he said.

Hortig outlined steps leading up to issuance of drilling leases, showed favorable slides of such developments as mobile drilling platforms and screening of facilities, cited the commission's record of success on past leases and told of the dollar return to the state from the leases.

"The bay will not be turned into a forest of oil rigs," he assured the group.

But all 17 speakers indicated he had not convinced them the proposed drilling was a good idea.

Most frequent reasons for opposition were fear of oil leaks, interference with recreation, concern over disturbance of wildlife and "obnoxious" structures. Several also mentioned hazards presented by earthquake faults known to lie under the bay.

Among the opponents was a representative of a state agency, the Regional Water Quality Control board. He said the board's executive committee has opposed the plan unless applicants can satisfactorily prove there will be no problems.

John A. Nejedly, Contra Costa County district attorney, appeared as the county's representative and reported the chief reason for its opposition was pollution — in the bay and in the Sacramento-San Josquin Delta where, he said, water quality is directly related to the bay due to tidewater intrusion at times of low river flow.

Officials from Richmond, Berkeley and Pinole also spokes.

Eight conservation groups spoke against the plan, including Harold Gregg, president of the Marin Conservation League who urged counties to work together on such regional problems.

Speaking for the San Francisco Bay Chapter of the Sierra Club, Donald F. Anthrop, vice chairman of the executive committee, cited the Bay Conservation and Development Commission report which urges that structures be avoided in the bay.

"The BCDC report states, 'The value of the San Francisco Bay as a regional scenic resource outweighs the potential public benefits that might result from oil and gas exploration,'' he said.

Anthrop said the group "strongly opposes" the drilling, noting the lack of strong ocean current would make a leak difficult to clean up, a situation which would pose a major fire hazard.

Hortig, answering questions from the group of 40, said there is no specific request from any firm to explore the bay — the proposal came from the State Lands Commission staff.

Records of the hearing yesterday, along with a similar one Tuesday in Solano County, will be evaluated by the staff and submitted to the commission with a recommendation, probably in March.

have been exempt from burning controls since the district barred open burning in 1957. The vote yesterday eliminated this exemption.

Callaghan estimated last month that the ban will affect some 50,000 homeowners in Marin.

Of the 16 government agencies opposing the ban, 10 were from Marin, including the cities of San Rafael, Sausalito, San Anselmo, Mill Valley and Fairfax, the towns of Ross and Corte Madera, the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the Marin County Farm Bureau and the Novato Fire Protection District. None of the three government agencies favoring the ban was from Marin.

Of about 20 citizens or groups opposing the ban, either in written or oral testimony to the board, seven were from Marin.

Favoring the ban were the Marin Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, the county's health officer, and about a half dozen citizens. Dr. Albrecht, in a letter to the board, said she was arguing for the ban as a private person.

Fairfax City Councilman Frank J. Egger, noting the city is surrounded on three sides by open area, predicted that citizens will dump their rubbish in the hills and thus create "a serious fire hazard."

Enforcement of the ban, Administrative Officer Callaghan said, will require "the full cooperation of the fire departments in the district" to see that it is complied with.

William Peter Horen of San Anselmo objected that the ban was unnecessary because it involved only 90 tons of reactive gases that can become smog. But the district's engineer, Dr. Milton Feldstein of San Rafael, said these 90 tons accounted for 12 per cent of the 785 tons of gases a day that can become smog.

Edward W. Bullard Jr., president of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association, in a letter to the board, cited air pollution as "a major factor in the increasing incidence of emphysema — today's fastest growing cause of death.

The association's board of directors voted unanimously on Jan. 22 to support the ban, Bullard noted.

Also arguing for the ban was the Committee for Clean Air Now, a Palo Alto based citizens group promoting regulation of air pollution sources. Air pollution already costs a family of four $300 a year "in a million unnoticed ways," said the group's chairman, Mrs. Sarah L. Feldner.

Soot, smoke, dust, dirt and corrosion and sickness are some of the costs of air pollution, she said.

Robert B. St. Clair, a San Mateo County supervisor, said, as he successfully moved to adopt the staff's recommendation for a ban, "It's about time that the counties recognized that there is a solid waste disposal problem."

In other business, the board's executive committee voted before the hearing to seek legislation to pay directors $50 for each monthly meeting instead of the current $25. Callaghan said such a bill was "timely" because none of the state legislators "are running for election this year."

Deputy Sees Co-Eds Sharing Marijuana

Four 16-year-old East Bay high school girls were arrested at Stinson Beach Monday afternoon after a sheriff's deputy saw them sharing a marijuana cigarette on the beach.

One of the girls told the officer she had purchased three marijuana cigarettes but she would not say where. Officers said she still had one "roach" in her pocket as well as cigarette papers.

REVAMP

alcoholics should be treated as criminals, adding that alcoholism enters about one third of all criminal cases clogging the courts. An effective treatment program would also serve to remove more than half the overloaded jail population, he said.

Arguing that the present money bail system "inherently discriminates against the poor," Goldfarb suggested release without bail unless a person posed a danger to society. In such cases, "protective detention" may be necessary, he said, and the "constitutional propriety" of this approach should be explored.

The expanded use of citations also would help relieve police of their workload and free criminal courts of a huge volume of minor cases, he suggested. Citations replace the process of arrest, bail and jail with a simple notification to appear for trial.

To combat the failure of prisons to rehabilitate inmates, he proposed increased use of county jails and state subsidy to counties to rehabilitate jail inmates.

California's indeterminate sentence law, Goldfarb noted, is administered by unqualified paroling authorities. Also, "with increased public concern over rising crime waves, the Adult Authority is reportedly less ready to release men early. Officials quickly realize that they are not subjected to public pressure for keeping people in prison; only for the alternatives are they criticized," wrote Goldfarb.

Under civil justice, he proposed that compulsory insurance and comparative negligence could replace present systems of compensation for personal injury litigation, which he criticized as "costly and time-consuming."

Reforms also are overdue in the probate process and in the question of legal representation in civil cases for persons who cannot afford it. Small claims courts need, he said, to have simpler procedures, and poor persons should have access to arbitration and an ombudsman to assist them "with complaints against the bureaucracy."

His report also recommended a complete overhaul of court procedures to speed the administration of justice.

Goldfarb's report, noting its recommendations will require additional review by the Legislature before they could be carried out, suggested formation of a special joint legislative committee.

"Cooperation between both houses would be efficient and economic, as well as politically wise," he wrote, adding that existing committees and their staffs "are too overburdened with the regular business of the Legislature to undertake a new and major area of work."

He also proposed formation of a citizens advisory committee to work with the legislative committee.

Bagley, no longer a member of the Judiciary committee, reportedly may get the chairmanship of the special joint committee.

Hayakawa said the college can rehire all such faculty members as wish to be re-employed at their former rank and salary.

Meanwhile, the striking teachers faced deadline late today to let the administration know whether they will teach in the spring semester.

The teachers, members of Local 1352, had small picket lines up yesterday in defiance of the latest court injunction against their strike.

The injunction was issued by Judge Henry Rolph on Tuesday. He told the AFT that in the absence of any law specifically permitting it, public employes such as teachers "have no right to strike against the government."

On Jan. 8, two days before the strike began, he issued an earlier injunction which was ignored by the teachers.

Attorney Fights To Bar Court-Martial Tapes Use

MICHAEL LOCKS
Airman on trial

The attorney defending a Airman 1/c Michael Locks at his court-martial for participating in uniform in a San Francisco peace march last year today strongly objected to a showing of a video tape of the demonstration to the trial panel.

It appeared almost certain, however, that attorney Richard J. Werthimer would lose his bid to keep the tape and voice recordings out of the trial.

Law officer Col. John H. Leonard, who serves as presiding judge at the court martial, said after viewing each of the four tapes that he thought they were "material and relevant."

He was expected to decide later today on whether the 90 minutes of tape will be shown to the seven-officer court which could give the 25-year-old airman four years in federal prison.

The trial panel was not in the courtroom this morning.

The lean, bespectacled San Anselmo airman is charged with twice violating Air Force regulations forbidding airmen in uniform from participating in antiwar demonstrations.

Defense attorney Richard J. Werthimer objected to the tapes as "prejudicial" to Locks' case. The airman appeared in all four tapes but spoke only during the first one.

The court-martial entered its second day yesterday with the defense admitting Locks disobeyed an Air Force order by demonstrating Oct. 12 in uniform against the Vietnam war.

Defense attorney Richard J. Werthimer of San Anselmo, told the tribunal at Hamilton Air Force base that Locks did just that when he participated in an Oct. 12 antiwar rally in San Francisco.

During a recess in the trial, Locks indicated a possible line of defense when he told the Independent-Journal the Air Force was discriminating against him and other doves, when it banned his protesting in uniform while permitting uniformed hawks to speak for the war.

While handling the defense for Navy Lt. Susan Schnall, who was recently convicted of demonstrating in uniform, Werthimer attacked the legality of the order. She received a sentence of six months at hard labor which she was not required to serve.

Yesterday, the defense did succeed in knocking out a key prosecution witness. Special Air Force Investigator Gerald F. Barns started to tell the seven-member military court hearing the case that Locks had appeared on a television show in uniform in Washington D.C. prior to his antiwar activity in San Francisco.

Col. John H. Leonard, the law officer (judge) excused Barns, saying he did not want to hear evidence of an offense with which Locks is not charged.

When the prosecutor strongly objected, Leonard fired back: "I'm not trying to dictate how you try your case, but I am dictating what evidence you may bring in."

Locks, formerly of San Anselmo but who now lives in Richmond, faces a maximum sentence of four years imprisonment.

and continuing acts of violence, disorder and intimidation caused by a coalition of dissidents and criminal anarchists."

Reagan also proposed emergency legislation aimed at clamping down statewide on campus agitators,

The troopers will supplement local police. Alameda County Sheriff Frank I. Madigan, whose jurisdiction includes the campus, asked for the help of the riot-trained policemen.

University officials joined the sheriff in asking for state patrol help, but Chancellor Roger Heyns added that he regretted the emergency declaration was "required for technical reasons." He insisted that it "does not imply any change in our normal campus life."

Some 50 highway patrolmen joined 100 local police on campus yesterday to form a corridor for non-strikers to walk through Sather Gate, scene of most of Tuesday's violence.

The governor's legislative programs—much of which is already before the state's lawmakers—would:

Make it a crime for any student expelled or suspended from a state college, university, junior college or high school to enter the property without permission.

Provide that any student of a public educational institution convicted of a criminal offense arising out of a campus disturbance "shall be dismissed from that institution and shall be ineligible for admission or readmission to any state school or college for at least one year.

Provide that any faculty member or any other employee of a school convicted of an offense arising from a campus disturbance "shall be dismissed and ineligible for further employment in a state school or college without specific review and authorization by the governing body of such institution."

Call for a measure to prohibit a person from "bringing or possessing a loud speaker system or voice amplifier on the premise of an educational institution without permission."

Shoreline Trustees Review Procedures

Shoreline Unified School District trustees last night continued its review of the policies and procedures guide for the new school district, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

Policies reviewed included procedures for purchasing, accounting, auditing, transportation, food services and cafeteria. The board also discussed the use of district and facilities by the public, McCully said.

The board plans to have all of the policies prepared and adopted before the district takes over on July 1, McCully said.

One of two San Francisco brothers still hospitalized after eating poisonous water hemlock Friday was reported improved and in fair condition today at Marin Genral Hospital.

Michael Breiding, 15, was taken off the serious list and removed from the intensive care unit where he had been since becoming ill after eating the herbs during an outing at Samuel P. Taylor State Park.

Wayne Paul Breiding, 14, remained in the intensive care unit in serious condition, hospital officals said.

Two other brothers, William Mark, 13, and Sutton, 17, also became ill from eating the hemlock but were released from the hospital Saturday afternoon.

Fair-Marin's Budget Predicted As $75,000

The first year's operating budget for Fair-Marin, which will run the new memorial auditorium and fairgrounds, will be about $75,000 "plus or minus $5,000" the Fair-Marin board of directors estimated last night.

President Harold Stockstad said the directors met at the Civic Center with Asst. Administrator Thomas F. Campanella to thrash out the budget for 1969-70 fiscal year. Campanella's tentative figures show an annual operating cost for Fair-Marin of $109,000, but that would be cut to about $75,000 the first year because the auditorium will not be operating until next January.

"Expected income from the auditorium is what we don't know yet," said Stockstad.

He said the directors from the auditorium if it were put to maximum commercial use seven days a week and what the local demands would be from various organizations such as the symphony guild, gallet and other groups, which cannot afford to pay full commercial prices for rent.

From these answers, said Stockstad, the directors will try to decide how the auditorium use will be apportioned — 75 per cent commerical and 25 per cent other, or 60-40 or 50-50.

Fair-Marin directors will meet again on the budget at 8 p.m. next Wednesday at the Civic Center.

Teen-Age GI Is Killed By 'Live' Bullet

FORT ORD (UPI) — A teenage soldier was killed by a member of his unit yesterday when a live bullet was accidentally substituted for a blank during a training attack on a defense position.

The Army withheld both the name of the slain youth and identity of the trainee who fired the fatal shot, but did say the victim was from California. Both soldiers were in their sixth week of training.

A spokesman said the dead youth, part of an attacking force, was struck in the chest by a live bullet fired from an M-14 semiautomatic rifle.

Army authorities immediately launched a "full military investigation" into how the live round was mixed with blank bullets.

Apartments Hearing Set For Cotati

The Cotati Planning Commission last night questioned neighborhood compatibility of a proposed apartment building on Sierra Avenue and continued discussion to a public hearing Feb. 19.

Lester Petersen requested a zoning change on his property at 405 Sierra Avenue from single family residential to multifamily residential and presented plans for a two story building that would include 12 apartments.

In addition to questioning the compatibility of the apartments with surrounding single family homes, the commission also heard a protest from Mrs. Eva Bodessa who owns the adjoining property.

Mrs. Bodessa said she felt the building would lower the value of her property and that 12 apartments would cause a traffic problem.

The Cotati Planning Commission also:

USE PERMIT — Granted a use permit to Commissioner Kenneth Garner to construct three duplexes on West Cotati Avenue. Garner abstained from voting.

EXTENSION — Granted approval to plans of Archie Stewart to extend the garage at his home at 200 Valpariso Avenue with the condition that it be of the same material as the home.

Library Board Asking $14,096 Hike In Budget

Larkspur Library trustees have approved a 1969-70 budget of $45,124, a $14,096 increase over the current budget, librarian Richard A. Kilbourne reported today.

The increase, recommended to the Larkspur City Council, includes $5,000 for the library building fund and $4,000 for books. It also includes these proposed salary range increases: librarians, from $644-$782 to $727-$883; assistant librarian, from $485-$556 to $493-$598 and librarian aide, $385-$469 to $436-$530.

Current library tax rate is 10½ cents per $100 assessed valuation, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said. "It could result in a slight increase but it is too early to tell."

Kilbourne reported that January's circulation of 5,194 was highest in the library's history and a 19 per cent increase over January 1968.

The Daily Newspaper ☆ Impact for the Curriculum

How Marin teachers set an academic "first" in the U.S. with a college-level, 2½-month course on the use of the newspaper in the classroom

1. New ideas, new approaches...in seminar sessions like this

2. Application in the classroom, like this

> "If anything stands higher than the press in its importance as a defender of our freedom and our free institutions, it is our school system. Indeed, I am not sure that such a distinction should be made between these two indispensable factors in a self-governing society."
>
> —Dwight D. Eisenhower

The newspaper in the classroom as an instructional aid is not new. But the approach in learning how to use it has been given a new dimension by Marin County teachers working with the Marin County Superintendent of Schools Office and with Sonoma State College.

From September 25 through January 15, teachers completed, for three units credit, a college seminar devoted to effective ways of using the newspaper in the classroom. This is the first time in the United States (even though the newspaper is now used in more than 48,000 schools) that this LEVEL OF TEACHER INSTRUCTION has been adopted.

Drawing upon the talents of nationally and locally known authorities in the educational and newspaper fields, the course presented an in-depth study of the newspaper, and more especially, how this "living textbook" could be used to enrich the curriculum -- and the minds of young people.

The point is that Marin County teachers have accomplished something of an educational break-through. At one time, through one college-level class, a sizable group of imaginative, forward-looking teachers is now prepared to use the newspaper as a practical, creative aid in advancing the cause of learning.

What the teachers say about the newspaper as an instructional aid

As an instructional aid the daily newspaper appears to have limitless applications in teaching — and in learning. Following are excerpts from papers prepared by teachers during the seminar. While they endorse the newspaper as an instrument of learning, teachers also brought high critical perspective to work in pointing out areas in which newspapers themselves could be more meaningful. Which proves that interchange of ideas between the education and newspaper worlds can be an education for both.

"As we have discovered in the past few months the daily newspaper has a veritable wealth of information for all of our classrooms. We are aware of the fact that newspapers inform, entertain, advise and help the reading public, including our students. However, one of the most accurate evaluations of the role of the newspaper in today's classroom is the following: 'In this 20th century, with news being made faster than textbooks can print it, the role of the newspaper as a medium of information has assumed greater proportions than ever before. If the textbook is deficient — if it is not up-to-date — where else may one go but to the newspaper to bridge the gap? It is little wonder, then, that educators today have termed the newspaper a "living textbook" and regularly use it as a part of their curriculum. They have found that it is an instructional aid which can be used to supplement the teaching in any subject'."

"The newspaper offers such a wealth of material for classroom use (history, geography, economics, language, current events, mathematics, etc.) that one of the immediate problems confronting the teacher is determining how she will guide her students in using the paper. (It is almost a question of too much material which is practically unheard of in education.) In my case, I decided to use the newspaper as an aid to my Individualized Reading Program. One of the basic ideas behind this is to allow a child to find material in which he is interested and from there develop the various comprehension and word study skills. What better material available than a newspaper about real people in real circumstances."

"Whereas a great many traditional sources, or texts, take the study of English out of any immediate or personal context for the student, the broad spectrum of news coverage can afford almost any student material that is at once interesting and meaningful to him, something he can become personally involved in. Once involved — hence motivated — will not a student be more apt to learn than if the learning activity source material has no relevance to him? It would seem to me, then, that the newspaper can be utilized as a powerful, general motivating device to underlie many diverse, detailed learning situations."

"The use of the newspaper for teaching language arts is as limitless as the individual teacher's imagination. Because of its versatility and adaptability, the newspaper is an excellent tool with which to work. Too often, when using a regular textbook, a teacher feels compelled to cover the book from start to finish. In the case of the newspaper, no one expects to use the entire paper in the course of a day and therefore only the best or most pertinent material is ever selected. The instructor chooses what will interest his class or what they can absorb on that grade level."

★ ★

"The newspaper is a continuous medium for use in a classroom of hearing-handicapped children. It will supply much interesting material. It is easy to obtain daily for the classroom. It is meaningful to these children and will help them understand and learn to communicate with their world."

"The question which we wish to raise in this study is: Are the adults of America providing the youth with an up-to-date account of current events with which they can relate? Perhaps it is a means of communication between two generations far too often neglected. The advantages of the newspaper as such a medium are numerous. No other news media are more accessible to youth. No other is available at a more minimal price. Perhaps even more important, teenagers regard the newspaper as a symbol of the adult society with which they so desperately attempt to relate. Newspapers are written on a level far more sophisticated than children's literature, yet in a style easily understood by adolescents. The insatiable curiosity of youth cannot be denied, and should be encouraged rather than ignored!"

"By equipping teachers to use the newspaper in the classroom effectively, this project bears directly on a major objective of our educational system — namely, to prepare our youth to be good and effective citizens. For maintenance of a free society depends on an informed people and the newspaper is one of the principal ways in which people become informed. The project is a further step in opening up channels of communication and understanding between education and the press, and through them, new channels of enlightenment for our students."

A PUZZLE

What Really Constitutes A Family?

Larkspur City Council learned last night that defining a family can be complicated.

Before the council was a proposed ordinance amendment defining a family for zoning purposes.

The need for a new definition arose last summer when the city was faced with "families" of hippies living in single-family homes.

Under the proposed law a family is defined as: "an individual or two or more persons related by blood, marriage or legal adoption, or a group not exceeding five persons, who need not be related, living together as a single housekeeping unit.

"A 'related' family may also include a maximum of two servants, but the 'unrelated' group shall in no event exceed five persons, including servants."

"What about in-laws?" asked Councilman William G. Fleckles.

The council set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a hearing on the proposed definition, which would be an amendment to the zoning ordinance.

Two Marinites On ABAG's Law Study Program

Two Marin men have been appointed to the Law Enforcement Task Force Unit of Associated Bay Area Governments.

The task force is headed by Edward S. Kreins, former Sausalito police chief, now police administrator of Pleasant Hill.

Named from Marin were Austin J. Thompson, executive director of the human rights department and Sausalito Police Chief James D. Wright.

The 11-member task force will study law enforcement in nine Bay Area counties, assisted by a subcommittee on police community relations expected to be named soon.

The first meeting of the group will be at 10 a.m. Tuesday at Sabella's of Marin.

Other members include police chiefs, city managers and educators from the nine Bay Area counties which belong to ABAG.

Larkspur Reaffairms Policy On Driveways

While heavy rain water ran in the streets, Larkspur City Council last night reaffirmed its stand that driveway construction in gutters must be removed.

Encroachments could be granted in cases where it would be impossible to use the driveway without the ramps, the council noted.

Public Works Director Warren Mistron asked the council to state its policy clearly because residents have the impression that if their ramps are not diverting water they can remain.

About 20 persons attended the session to hear plans for an access road to the Meadowood Subdivision, near Chanticleer Road.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst noted that access has been granted from Holcomb Avenue, with the plan to eventually provide access from Chanticleer.

A traffic count indicated that Chanticleer won't be able to carry all the cars expected when the third unit of the subdivision is constructed, he said.

Bathurst recommended that the city consider extending Ward Avenue to the subdivision, a project that would require construction of a bridge over Arroyo Holon Creek.

Councilmen referred the proposal to the planning commission to determine how it would fit in with the master plan for traffic circulation. They rescheduled the matter for their April 2 meeting.

Mayor Alfred Malvino reported that the Hillview Gardens Homeowners Association is interested in participating in development of a planted area along the east side of the Magnolia Avenue, scheduled to be widened in their area.

The council also said it would be willing to adopt Marin County's proposed uniform animal control ordinance if the county handles prosecution, the proposed additional men for the program were hired one at a time instead of five at once, and if the city-county services committee considers a bigger increase in the impounding fees.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

GLANDER LEAVING — Accepted the resignation of Ronald H. Glander, superintendent of building and planning, effective Feb. 21, with commendation for his four years of work with the city. Glander resigned to take a job with a Larkspur construction company.

PLANNING — Adopted an ordinance permitting planned districts, allowing cluster housing on parcels with a minimum size of 10 acres, and an ordinance permitting planned unit development on parcels with a minimum of four acres. Councilman Benton A. Sifford dissented, saying he favored the principle, but not the way the ordinance was drafted.

U-TURN BAN — Passed an emergency ordinance prohibiting u-turns on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at the entrance of Greenbrae Lanes, a bowling alley at 101 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, at the request of the California Highway Patrol, which noted there have been several accidents at that location.

VEHICLE CONTROL — Reintroduced an ordinance which enables the city to enforce the vehicle code on private property in the Bon Air commercial area. It was first introduced in November on an emergency basis.

LIVING IN CARS — Reintroduced an ordinance to prohibit people living in vans and cars on private property. It was aodpted in October on an interim basis to meet the problem of hippies sleeping in these vehicles on private property.

UNDERGROUND DISTRICT — Set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on establishing an underground utility district for the second phase of the Magnolia Avenue widening project, from Daly Swim School to Bon Air Road.

SUBDIVISION LAW — Set March 5 at 8 p.m. for a public hearing on a proposed amendment to the subdivision ordinance that would require all new subdivisions to have utility lines underground.

PLANNING COUNCIL — Postponed until May 7 discussion of whether the city should join the city-council planning council.

CLAIM DENIED — Denied a claim by Katherine F. Jacobs of 293 North Almenar Drive, Greenbrae, for $1,000 damage to her property allegedly caused by runoff waters from Cielo Drive in Larkspur.

ABATEMENT — Declared a building at 22 Heather Way, owned by Paul Keefer, a public nuisance a nd set a hearing at 8 p.m. March 5 to start abatement proceedings.

STUDENT REQUEST — Received a report from Police Chief Howard Clark that he had received a request from a group of Redwood High School students for permission to leave the school's closed campus during free periods. Malvino noted the students made the request on their own and the school's policy is still to have a closed campus.

FIRE EQUIPMENT — Authorized the purchase of nine voice amplifiers for smoke masks worn by firemen at the cost of $1,215. It was proposed that the city use a contribution of $365 from volunteer firemen toward the purchase, but councilmen felt the city should bear the full cost.

FOUNDATION PROPOSED — Postponed until Tuesday discussion of a proposal to form a Larkspur Foundation, a civic group which would assist the city.

TAX RELIEF — Authorized letters to State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and Assembleymen William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, urging legislation to provide tax relief for property owners.

HOUSING AUTHORITY — Set Tuesday to hear a presentation from representatives of the Marin County Housing Authority on the authority's housing programs, senior citizen and leased housing.

NEXT MEETING — Adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday at city hall, and scheduled a field trip starting at 9:30 a.m. Saturday to the site of the planned Redwood Avenue widening project, near Oak Road.

Widow Of Heart Patient Facing House Eviction

SALINAS (UPI) — The widow and four children of the world's eighth heart transplant patient are being evicted from the house he built as "his insurance policy" to them.

Joseph Rizor, a carpenter, built the seven-room home and all of its furniture with his owm hands while suffering from heart trouble. He received a new heart at Stanford Medical Center last May 5, and died of lung disease a few days later.

Mrs. Eileen Rizor, 41, said her husband suffered a massive heart attack in June, 1966, a few weeks after finishing the home. She said, "Joe called this house his insurance policy for me in case anything happened."

Mrs. Rizor said the neat, four bedroom house had an $18,000 first mortgage and a $4,700 second mortgage. After she defaulted on payments, it was sold last month to the man who held the second mortgage.

New Zealand is about the size of Colorado.

Sirhan Trial Takes On A Calm Mood

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The murder trial of Jordanian immigrant Sirhan B. Sirhan seemed to take on a relaxed atmosphere once the jury was sworn in yesterday.

There were some lively exchanges as the defense and prosecution began the selection of alternate jurors.

Four alternates —two women and two men —tentatively were seated after the regular panel of eight men and four women was sworn in by Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker.

Near the end of yesterday's session, Grant B. Cooper, chief defense counsel, looked at Walker and said:

"Your honor, it's been pretty hot in this room today. I think it would be nice if we recessed."

The judge smiled and responded, "I like my weather hot."

Sirhan smiled broadly when he stood up to be introduced to 14 prospective alternate jurors. He grinned at his mother, Mrs. Mary Sirhan, and two brothers, Adel and Munir, who were sitting in the back row of the eighth floor courtroom in the Hall of Justice.

Sirhan stared repeatedly at a pretty blonde reporter and appeared to be trying to catch her eye.

Muggers Hit

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Assembly gave quick approval yesterday to an "antimugging" bill that would increase the maximum prison sentence from the present seven years to 15 years. It was passed, 143-5, and sent to the Senate.

$200,000 Damage By Freakish Wind In Redwood City

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — A violent, destructive wind ripped and area of Redwood City today, heavily damaging homes and industrial buildings and injuring at least one person.

The wild, freakish wind, developing amidst heavy rain, thunder and lightining, smashed at a section a mile and a half long and about two blocks wide.

Fire department authorities estimated damage as at least $200,000 to about 28 buildings.

Heavy structural damage was reported to both homes and business establishments.

Windows were knocked out, portions of roofs dismantled and street signs, loose objects and street signs, loose objects and garbage cans hurled through the air.

The powerful wind, which hit at 3 a.m., overturned a pickup truck loaded with metal and rolled it about 50 feet.

Crash Hurts Leg

Iris Gist, 42, of 312 Cortez Drive, Petaluma, was treated at Petaluma General Hospital for an injury to her right leg, reportedly suffered in a one-car accident at 3:45 p.m. yesterday at the corner of Cortez and McKinsey Avenue. Police had no details of the mishap.

Big Brother In Sky Over Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Police Department wants a helicopter-mounted "eye in the sky," a flying television camera, so its tactical commanders can keep a close watch on "unusual occurences."

The city police commission asked the city council yesterday to obtain the $55,000 necessary. Besides giving a first-hand view of emergencies, official say, the system would also provide video tapes for later study.

Marinwood Addresses Will Glow

Street addresses on the curbs in Marinwood will be re-painted with reflectorized paint, the Marinwood Firemen's Association decided Tuesday night.

"We plan to do it during the first two weekends in May as a service to the community and as an aid the fire department," said Irving L. Schwartz, president of the firemen's group.

The Marinwood Firemen's Association also:

YOUTH ACTIVITY — Appointed volunteer James Miller to investigate fund raising and promotional activities that would interest teen-agers in the community.

FIREMEN'S GEAR — Asked Henry Fuqua to check with the fire commission to see if safety equipment can be obtained for four willing volunteers. Volunteers cannot become members of the department until they have such gear.

BADGES — Decided to buy eight firemen's badges for new volunteers.

Sewer District Approves Trade

San Rafael Sanitation District directors yesterday approved a land swap with a subdivider which gives the district more land for its Glenwood pump station at San Pedro Road and Main Drive.

Norris M. Rawles, district administrator, reported that the district received 1,600 square feet from the Galli Co. in exchange for 600 square feet. The switch enabled both the district and the subdivider to square off their land, he said.

Directors adjourned until 5 p.m. Feb. 19 at San Rafael City Hall.

'Seed Money' Favored To Aid Youth Causes

A county program to provide up to $2,000 per year in "seed money" to help new youth programs such as coffee houses won unanimous approval of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

On a motion by Elizabeth Davies, the commission recommended the new program to the board of supervisors and asked for $3,000 to finance the program through June.

The program is an outgrowth of a series of meetings on youth recreation, sparked last year by Commissioner Lothar Salin. The "seed money" program will operate in this way:

The county will help new programs or facilities sponsored by local governmental bodies and responsible local organizations for a maximum of three years on a 50 per cent matching basis, and up to a maximum of $2,000 per entity per year.

Some of the criteria that must be met are that the activity, equipment or facility must be requested of the city, district, or local organization by a responsible locally recognized group of youths, the youth group must make a reasonable contribution to the activity in kind or cash, and no similar activity or facility must not be available in the community at the time the request is made. For example, seed money would not be granted to expand a basketball league.

Commission chairman Melton Ferris said the three-year limit was placed on the program because the "intent is to encourage and stimulate new programs and not to expand existing facilities."

Strep Cases Number 38 During Week

Thirty-eight cases of streptacoccus infections were reported in Marin County during the week ending Feb. 1, county health officials have reported.

Officials also reported, 16 cases of gonorrhea, nine of infectious hepatitis, including five at San Quentin, 2 cases of mumps and one each of tuberculosis and German measles.

Angel Island Stand Drawn For Marin

The state should not install "urban type hotels" on Angel Island, but overnight facilities should be available under "carefully controlled" conditions, the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission decided yesterday.

This is one of the provisions in a policy statement on Angel Island development which the commissioners formed after a long discussion. The statement will go to the board of supervisors for adoption as the county's official position.

Other provisions approved yesterday included:

Visitor conveniences should be concentrated on the east shores so that the rest of the island could be reserved for hiking, etc.

A capacity of 10,000 visitors per day can be used for planning purposes, but the maximum should not be decided upon until the "impact of visitors on the landscape and on each other" has been ascertained.

Concessions on the island are not acceptable unless they meet these criteria:

1. Must provide only facilities directly related to the park which cannot be better located on the periphery of the bay, and services which are necessary to park visitors.
2. Must not be the type that would destroy the natural or historical values to be preserved on the island.
3. Must be located on the eastern side of the island.
4. Must blend with its surrounding areas and protect and enhance the environment.

The County of Marin, spurred by conservation groups, has opposed extensive recreational development of Angel Island, as proposed by the state.

Salin New County Rec Chairman

Lothar Salin, owner of a printing and advertising firm in San Rafael, was elected chairman of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

He will serve for one year, succeeding Melton Ferris, who has been chairman the past two years.

Albert J. Boro of San Rafael was elected vice chairman and Herber C. Leney as secretary.

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission also:

LOGGING — Heard from Pierre W. Joske, director of parks and recreation, that the director of the State Division of Beaches and Parks had written Dr. Ethel Righetti, who owns 1,800 acres of timberland on Bolinas Ridge, asking her to spare the ridge tops from the logger's ax. A Coos Bay firm last year bought timbering rights on the Righetti Ranch.

CAPITAL — Criticized cuts recommended by the county administrator in the parks capital improvement program but decided to yield slightly on requests for 1970-71. For 1969-70, the total request will remain the same, $280,000. For 1970-71, the commissioners reduced the request from $1,115,000 to $530,000 by spreading the financing of three major projects into subsequent years. The projects are the acquisition of San Geronimo redwoods, Manzanita Marina Green, and a tennis and swim club.

ANNIVERSARY — Asked Joske to explore the possibility of a dinner to observe the 10th anniversary of the commission, which is this month.

San Pedro Collision Hurts Motorcyclist

Louis Nichols Leone, 16, of 233 Alpine Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital Tuesday for multiple bruises sustained when his motorcycle struck the rear of a car driven by Valerie Joyce Bell, 24, of Vallejo, on San Pedro Road at Porto Bello Way, police reported.

Leone told police his throttle stuck and he was unable to stop when the Bell car slowed for a construction area.

Chamber To Relocate Rohnert Park Office

Monday will be moving day for the Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce when its office will be relocated to 7300 Commerce Boulevard, the directors announced yesterday.

At a breakfast meeting, the directors voted to accept the rent-free offer of director Bart C. Mitchell to move to Suite No. 2 in his building. Mitchell operates a realty firm.

The directors said that after many moves in the past few years, they view this change as "permanent." The office is presently located in the shopping mall on Southwest Boulevard.

The office phone number and mailing address, Box 1062, will not be changed, they said.

The Rohnert Park Chamber of Commerce directors also:

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY — Appointed Mitchell, Maurice Fredericks, Peter M. Callinan and R. Allan Forsyth to a committee to update the standard industrial survey the chamber uses in attracting industry.

AWARDS — Reported nominations are still being accepted for "man and woman of the year" awards to be presented at the annual chamber dinner Feb. 28 at Chesney's Carriage House. The event had been scheduled for March 1.

EQUIPMENT — Voted to meet with city officials to discuss a chamber contribution for equipment at the new community and recreation center.

LIGHTS — Voted to study the possibility of providing lights for the Rohnert Park signs on Highway 101.

SPEAKER — Announced that Harold V. Pederson, Sonoma County economic development director, will be the guest speaker at the Feb. 19 chamber meeting at 8 a.m. at Chesney's Carriage House.

$1.8 Million Recreation Plan Studied

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission last night discussed means of financing a 10-year capital improvement program with a price tag of $1,800,950. (See Petaluma City Council story, page 1.)

Richard W. Schollenberger, department director, said the plans could be financed through the regular department budget to be reviewed in April; through a possible bond issue, or by levying a tax on subdividers according to the number of bedrooms constructed.

Schollenberger suggested the commission make allowances in the 1969-70 budget to permit land purchase for parks in the event a bond issue is not included in the June election, or in case the issue should fail.

The Petaluma Recreation, Music and Parks Commission also:

PURCHASE — Heard a suggestion from Robert Koenitzer, planning commissioner, that the commission purchase two lots in the Ely Boulevard subdivision planned by Arthur Condiotti. Koenitzer said coupled with the 5.3 acres Condiotti is donating to the city, the adjoining lots would bring the park site to nearly eight acres at a cost of $11,000.

BASEBALL — Heard report from Shollenberger that new lights at McNear Field are ready to put in place when weather conditions improve.

HIGH SCHOOL — Granted use of the McNear Park baseball diamond to the Petaluma Senior High School baseball team. It was explained that the school diamond will not be ready for play this year.

SWIM CLUB — Heard report that the Petaluma Swim Club will invite Debbie Meyer, three Gold Medal Olympic winner, to the March 19 opening of the swim club meet season.

During the 18th and 19 centuries, only the wealthy took overseas holidays.

Five More Seek Labor Offices

Five new nominations for officers were accepted last night at a meeting of the Marin Labor Council, the nominees to run for election Feb. 19.

Nominated were Albert Heinrich as trustee; Ray Manley, sergeant-of-arms and Stanley Dentkos, B.V. Chiaravalle and Thomas McCarthy, executive board members.

Other nominations, previously made, are Charles Weers for president; Mike Pechina, vice president; Leighton Youngclaus, Paul Crumley, trustee; James Smith and Peter Petrakis, secretary-treasurer; Charles Smith, John Irwin, John Strong, Howard Crowell and Nick Georgedes, executive board members.

Smith reported that Charles Richardson, a teacher and member of the American Federation of Teachers Local 1352, San Francisco State College, spoke to the council on the college's strike situation.

War Bride Is San Rafael's 'First Lady'

By GRACE HENDERSON

It was a typical English day, gray and dismal, the fog hanging low over Mt. Tamalpais and water dripping from the green shrubs that surround the house on Chestnut Avenue in San Rafael. A warm greeting met me at the door and I was ushered inside to a cheery fire. My hostess, Mrs. C. Paul Bettini, wife of San Rafael's mayor, settled back in her chair ready for our scheduled interview.

MARGARET BETTINI, familiar with English weather, people and customs, had come to America as a war bride following her marriage to M/Sgt. C. Paul Bettini. The wedding took place in her home town of Bristol, England, May 28, 1945. At the time her thoughts were on coming to California but the idea of being the wife of a mayor with a city like San Rafael, population 34,200, never crossed her mind.

There was time for reflection on her decision to leave England as she strolled the decks of the Queen Mary ocean liner those ten days crossing the Atlantic, then more time on the train ride across the nation. She compares this now with the 12 hours total traveling time it takes to return to her native country for visits.

THE NEXT TRIP, possibly the most outstanding planned in the family's vacation agenda, will be on the 25th wedding anniversary of the couple, when they return to Bristol and a celebration.

Margaret's American influence brought her sister, Christine Alford, for a six-month visit which led to another marriage. Christine became Mrs. Raymond Rossi and they make their home in San Rafael as do the girls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percival Alford. Mrs. Rossi is employed with the San Rafael Police Department where she is an office secretary.

The Bettini name has long been familiar in Marin County, Margaret told me, a relative newcomer to California. Mr. Bettini's mother, Mrs. Ceasar Bettini, lives on Ross Street and her other four children are nearby. Ray Bettini resides in San Anselmo and Richard in San Rafael. There are two daughters, Mrs. Willard Hall of Marinwood and Mrs. Albert Frasier in San Rafael. Their children join forces with the Paul Bettini boys to campaign when Paul runs for election. First it was the Board of Education where he served 10 years, then the successful mayorship contest in 1965.

THE FOUR SONS of Paul and Margaret Bettini are Richard, 22, a senior at San Jose State College, majoring in business administration; David, 19, a freshman at Marin Junior College who works weekends at the city yards; Brian, 17, a senior at San Rafael High School who hopes to attend Chico State College next year; and Roger, 9, a fourth grader at Sun Valley Elementary School looking forward to his 10th birthday this month.

Margaret is an accomplished knitter having learned in school, as is tradition there. Both she and Paul enjoy bowling and play in a mixed league. "Nothing interferes with this time," Margaret explained, adding that she bowls with a group during the day as well.

"WE HAVE never discussed Mr. Bettini's trying for a higher office," said his attractive blonde wife. But she thought he probably would never be interested due to his business, the insurance brokerage firm of Allen, Bettini and Carter in San Anselmo.

Margaret, her mother and sister organized a group of Marin women, formerly of England, into a social group that meets the third Friday of each month. "It's just a little get-together," Margaret clarified.

What does Margaret miss most about her home country? First, she told me, it would be her relatives, particularly her other sister, who is in England, then it would be the green fields and miles and miles of beautiful beaches. "Our seaside is wonderful," she added before continuing on to say this (America) is now her country and she is a citizen of the United States. "This is where I want to be," she declared.

THE MAYOR'S WIFE does no political entertaining and the bulk of his mail goes to City Hall. But the pair keeps the especially nice pieces of correspondence. "We need a new desk to put some of his things in," she said, adding she hopes to insert everything into a scrapbook eventually.

"It's been 20 years since I left England, you know," Margaret recalled. And on her biennial visits it usually takes her two weeks to become oriented again and it is "like I never left home," she commented. That she has become a full-fledged American is evident in her lack of her native country's accent, now her words are of the western United States.

WHAT WOULD Mrs. Bettini tell a child of hers contemplating marrying someone from another country and going to live there? Even though she doesn't expect to be confronted with the question it wouldn't bother her at all, she exclaimed, saying there is no really remote place left in the world with travel as it is today.

And I said goodbye to the gracious first lady of San Rafael who had given me a look into the life of His Honor and the family that makes his house a home.

"I HOPE TO GET all the clippings pasted into a scrapbook someday," says Mrs. C. Paul Bettini in discussing the San Rafael mayor's busy life. The four sons of the couple plus several nephews assist with campaigns for the mayor who has served on the Board of Education 10 years and is completing his second term as mayor. Mrs. Bettini came to the United States from England following the ceremony that made her the bride of M/Sgt. Bettini in 1945. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)

BY BEST-DRESSED

'Unisex' Fad Draws 'Ho-Hum'

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dress your age. The advice comes from some of the women on the international best-dressed list.

Asked to list the "cardinal sins" women commit in fashion, the women spoke of dressing to the dictates of the very young and of following the fashion of the moment too precisely.

Or, as Mrs. Harilaos Theodoracopulos, of New York and Athens, puts it, "Dressing too young for their age. With today's fashions, which are so becoming to teen-agers, the over-30 woman has to be more selective," Mrs. Theodoracopulos was the model Betsy Pickering until her marriage to the Greek shipping magnate.

"TRYING TO LOOK much younger than they are" was the cardinal sin Mrs. Gianni Uzielli listed. The blonde young beauty is the former Anne Ford, who one year was paired with her sister, Charlotte Ford Niarchos, on the best-dressed list. On the latest ratings, Mrs. Uzielli made it on her own.

The two were among five on the current list whom I cornered for a talk one early afternoon when all showed up to have their hair done by Marc Sinclaire, a Park Avenue hair stylist with a jet set following.

All five graciously filled out questionnaires on assorted fashion topics.

"Being too fashiony," was the sin Mrs. Liberman (Louise) Savitt listed.

"Following the fashion of the moment too precisely," said Mrs. Ahmet Etergun, whose husband owns a record company.

"THE WOMEN don't look in a three-way mirror before they go out the door," said Mrs. William (Chessy) Rayner.

I asked the women, all of whom can afford the couturiers of New York, Paris, and Rome, how much they figured they spend on their wardrobes each years.

All elected not to estimate, for as Mrs. Ertegun said, "No matter what you answer, it would be interpreted as incorrect." Mrs. Rayner said she spent "very little" on her clothes and when she did splurge it was on evening dresses.

The idea of man and woman dressing alike, or the fad for "unisex", drew only derision or a ho-hum reaction.

"IT'S RIDICULOUS," said Mrs. Ertegun. "I don't even know what it is," said Mrs. Savitt. "I haven't given it much thought," said Mrs. Theodoracopulos.

And as for their reaction to being named to the best-dressed ratings, all said they were "flattered". Or, they found it "amusing". But Mrs. Uzielli summed up the thinking when she commented, "It certainly is not the most important thing in my life."

Colorful Scarves Are Dangerous

The newest signature scarves are six feet or more in length. Designer Adele Simpson, who showed them in her new collection, sees a big future for them.

Caution against freak accidents is in order when wearing same, however. In the thirties, an entertainer was fatally choked when the streamers of a long scarf caught in the wheel of a sportscar. Maybe you don't have to worry about sportscar wheels. But don't get stuck via scarf in bus or elevator door.

WOMEN HISTORY-MAKERS

Female Combat Soldier Served Continental Army

American women have made their own challenge in their own way in American society. Some lesser known achievers, challengers and characters are subjects of this series on American "woman history."

By BARBARA HOSMER

Perhaps it was the same spirit that was later to cause young boys to run away and join the circus that impelled a 22-year-old woman to become America's only female combat soldier.

SHE ENLISTED as a man, not once, but twice; fought as a man, and in her later years as wife, mother and town matriarch drew a soldier's pension from the federal government.

Perhaps the Revolutionary times had something to do with it. Whatever her reason, Deborah Sampson added a footnote to American history as the only woman to fight in the regular Continental Army.

A descendant of Capt. Myles Standish, John Alden and William Bradford, she was born to poor parents in Plympton, Mass., near Plymouth. After a bit of schooling she became a hired girl for a Bay Colony family. Tiring of her chores, she cut her hair, borrowed a suit and went to Middleboro to enlist. The year was 1782 and in those days enlistment bounties were paid. The young woman collected her bounty under the name of Timothy Thayer and made haste to the local tavern to spend some. But there she was reported as behaving in a noisy and indecent manner and the soldiering fun was quickly over. Deborah's bounty money was confiscated, and she was returned to her hired girl chores in disgrace. The town was shocked, and her church voted to "withdraw fellowship."

BUT WHILE THE church folk debated her fate the determined girl had other ideas. She spun and wove suit cloth and had a local clothesmaker cut a man's suit about her size. One night she donned the coat and trousers, left her shed-home and walked to Worcester, some 75 miles. When the Army recruiting office opened she entered and reappeared as Pvt. Robert Shurtleff, assigned to the 4th Massachusetts Regiment of Foot, commanded by Capt. George Webb. She skipped the tavern this time and went on to pass without suspicion as a model soldier, binding her chest and allowing the shapeless homespun garments to do the rest.

The new recruit had little time for training, for in a few short weeks her regiment made a week long, dusty march to West Point. Not long after her arrival there Deborah saw action at Tappan Bay, getting slashed by a saber, and later at Eastchester she took a musket ball in the side. But she got up quickly and kept moving, not wanting the medics to notice. Then she hid in the woods for several days alone to dress her wounds and recuperate from battle. She carried the musket ball to the day she died, however.

Soon Private Shurtleff was sent in a small detachment to Ft. Ticonderoga and then western New York. Eventually she was made an orderly on General Paterson's staff in Philadelphia. When fever hit the city, Deborah, as Private Shurtleff, was put into the "hopeless" ward of an Army hospital, unconscious. Making rounds, the doctor routinely checked the patient for a heartbeat and raced off to report to the head nurse that the soldier was a woman.

The jig was up, and Deborah, as Private Sampson this time, was moved from the ward immediately. General Paterson took the surprising news about his staff orderly with humor, and when Deborah recovered he sent her to West Point, where in woman's clothes she paraded down the ranks of her former company of the 4th Massachusetts Regiment of Foot. Story has it that not one of her former comrades recognized the girl as the former Private Shurtleff.

SHE HAD served nearly a year and a half and was given an honorable discharge in November, 1783, with a record of decorous behavior and good soldiering. Nine years later she received a 34 pounds veterans pension from the Massachusetts legislature, and later the federal pension office granted her a lifetime pension.

Her war had ended, but Deborah Sampson didn't entirely retire to home and hearth. Married to Benjamin Gannett, she moved to Sharon, Mass., where the couple reared three children. But in 1802 their mother decided to become probably the first woman lecturer in the United States. She would harangue audiences from Boston to Albany with noble words about liberty and the rigors of war. And then, nearly 20 years after her discharge, she would end the program in military uniform, reviewing the Manual of Arms drill with regulation Army musket, smartly rapping the rifle butt to the platform floor with a thud. She also recorded the details of this tour in a diary.

She died at about age 67 in the town of Sharon, where she had settled and became a local matriarch and was to be remembered by having a street named for her.

And 117 years later, during World War II, a Liberty ship was launched at Baltimore, the Deborah Sampson Gannett, honoring America's only female regular soldier.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Loving Makes Pauper Of Girl Subsidizing Boyfriend's Pool

DEAR HELEN:

I have liked Joe very much for over three years. He seems fond of me. The problem is he always bums money off me, not just a quarter but a dollar or more, and every day, so he can play pool with his friends.

As a result, I hardly ever see him, as he is playing pool on my money!

I don't want to hurt his feelings, and I don't want to drop him, so what can I do? — GONE BROKE OVER LOVE

DEAR GBOL:

This freeloader is playing two games: Pool and — you for a fool! You're not only broke but batty if you keep on subsidizing his nights out.

Send him a bill and his walking papers, and sign yourself "Former Miss Easymark, 1968."—H.

DEAR HELEN:

What can I do when I'm afraid, no matter which way I turn? I've been married two years. My husband knew the baby I was carrying wasn't his, but he said he'd love her anyway. Ever since she came, he's threatened to kill her if I go against him. He says if I leave him, he'll track me down and I won't have a daughter any more.

I reported this to the police, but they can't do anything about threats. So far, he has never harmed us, because I always give in to him.

His mother says to be patient as he has a problem, but he won't go to a doctor or psychiatrist. He says I'm the one to blame, not him.

My folks have begged me to bring the baby and come to live with them, but they'll probably be in danger if I do.

My husband has turned into a rotten no-good and I have learned to hate him. But I'm — PETRIFIED WITH FEAR

DEAR PETRIFIED:

You are more in danger if you stay than if you leave. Move in with your folks and turn your problem over to a good lawyer who will see to it you are protected.

I can't guarantee that your husband is more threat than action, but if he runs true to form, he'll cave in when faced with straight talk by authorities.

And I hope his protective mother will get him to a psychiatrist!—H.

DEAR HELEN:

We attend a State College where the ratio is one girl to eight men.

We're considered nice looking and the fraternity men always ask us over for informal, sort of unplanned, parties after the Friday night dances. But on Saturdays? They disappear. We are never asked on a real date.

Should we start being cagy about these parties, making excuses to avoid them, until the fellas realize we'd like to be asked out other times in the week? We'd like several sharp answers that would put them down a little bit, yet make us the Saturday night dates. — WAITING IMPATIENTLY

DEAR WAITING:

Don't push your luck! With a ratio of eight to one, you'd better shine brightly on Friday nights and hope the glow will soon extend to Saturdays. But remember this: College men prefer informal parties to dating these days. They're cheaper, safer, and less entangling for fellows who have several more years of books ahead.—H.

Before Painting

Enameling furniture? the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association suggests that you remove as much hardware as possible before painting. If you mount drawer pulls, knobs and other decorative pieces on a cardboard backing, you can quickly and easily enamel them with spray paint. Put masking tape on any pieces that cannot be removed to keep them from getting spattered.

Applesauce

When you need unsweetened applesauce to add to a cookie or cake batter, cook the apples in as little water as possible; a quarter cup will be enough for half a dozen medium apples, so the sauce is on the thick side when you strain it.

Weekend Shoppers Will Find Lamb And Ham Prices Higher

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The following guide to the nation's food buys for the weekend was prepared by the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Interior for United Press International.

USDA's consumer and marketing service reports that food shoppers will find excellent supplies of meat and poultry and good supplies of some fresh fruits and vegetables in food stores and supermarkets this weekend.

BEEF STEAKS, roasts and ground beef should appear in more than adequate supply in all areas. Pork items in abundance are bacon, chops, ham, roasts, and smoked picnics. Broiler-fryer chickens and turkeys continue to lead as the most abundant meats. Canned salmon, fish sticks and portions, and fish fillets are the fish buys to watch for, according to the U.S. Department of the Interior.

IN THE WEST:

Large and medium size eggs are lower in all western markets, and small eggs are lower in Los Angeles.

Wholesale prices on fresh pork loins are higher in California markets, and Boston butts are higher in San Francisco and Portland. Slab bacon is lower in Portland and sliced bacon is higher in Los Angeles. Smoked hams are higher in California.

LAMB IS HIGHER in Portland and in San Francisco.

Beef briskets are higher in California markets and ribs are higher in Portland. Arm chucks are higher in Los Angeles.

Broiler-fryer chickens are higher in all markets except San Francisco. Fryer-roaster turkeys are lower in Los Angeles.

FRUITS AND vegetables in best supply include: apples, bananas, grapefruit, emperor grapes, oranges, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, onions, and potatoes.

Fish buys to watch for in the West are canned Pacific shrimp, canned pink and chum salmon, Pacific oysters, dungeness crab, canned tuna, and frozen fish fillets.

ART REVIEW

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Artists: Marin's show this month at the Mill Valley Library points out the uselessness of trying to isolate media within specific bounds anymore. Supposedly a print and drawing show, instead, it often integrates colorful bursts of collage, watercolor and gouache.

In pure print form, Eleanore Bender provides the most tantalizing idea with a cool crisp column of joined sections, reaching with classic elegance from floor to ceiling. Her other print from the new "Voyage to the Moon" series is equally arresting.

For pure delicacy and grace it would be difficult to match Mary Tift's plate of figs and mushroom-filled bowl. The elaborate decoration of the china against simply defined fruits and vegetables, plus her exquisite palette of deep blue, lavendar, rose and golds, add up to studies in serenity.

In abstract designs, Doris Morrison and Henry Rasmusen offer monoprints which are quite individual in exploring textural possibilities and color. While John Ihle, Ella Tamkin, Fred Berensmeier and Maggie Hazell-Rosen offer other techniques full or rich color, interesting surfaces and self-confident designs.

Mrs. Rosen's double collograph, "Doggie Diner Series — Two to Go," is also the lone humorous idea, its brick-toned top dog labled "Catsup" and the bottom olive-gold one, "Mustard."

The drawings are less easy to define.

With the exception of Elsie Pomeroy's and Leola Dixon's line drawings they are more like paintings. Such are Gwen Stone's tiny black and whites whose lacy details push and pulse in space, Helen Rich's combinations of opaque shapes with line in figure studies and Art Grant's wrinkled gray drips.

M. M. Horton's birds, animals and children fall through mad, bright-hued, polke-dotted space in what might pass as watercolor sketches for larger works. Ada Garfinkel uses collage, drawing and gouache in three handsome bi-leveled works that often read more as paintings than drawings. While Russell Chatham's paste-up figures can find little reasonable claim as drawing at all.

In effect, media limits just don't matter anymore. And while it is only sometimes true in this show, the most exciting things in most shows are often those facile combinations of various media that fit none or all of the recognized categories.

Plans On Fire Zone Revamping Reviewed

Sausalito should set some of its own fire zone requirements rather than rely entirely on the uniform fire code, th Sausalito Planning Commission agreed last night.

The commission ordered a report sent to the city council suggesting possible changes in fire zone requirements — among them a proposal the city buy downtown property to create small parks and open areas between commercial buildings as a fire retarding measure.

The commission also received a response from Sen. George Murphy R-California to its letter of last year objecting to Army plans for an antimissile base in Marin. Murphy wrote that the Army had told him of its plans. He said he would keep an eye on the situation, but took no stand in the matter.

The Sausalito Planning Commission Also:

EASEMENTS — Approved an amendment to city Ordinance 630 which will lessen allowable building area on lots with railroad easements. The amendment adds easements to that area which cannot be included in computing allowable building area.

MOBIL — Approved use permit and variance applications by Mobil Oil Corp. to rebuild and enlarge its service station at Second and Main Streets.

MARINA VISTA — Denied a use permit request by Henry Arana to build a three-unit structure on a lot in Marina Vista subdivision now designated for a single-family swelling.

VARIANCE — Approved a variance sought by Melvin H. Brown to legalize existing structures built into setback areas at 41 Miller Avenue.

AMENDMENT — Approved an amendment of Ordinance 630 which coordinates its references to eating and drinking establishments.

A "Fortune Faire" will be held from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m. Feb. 23 at the Peacock Gap Country Club, Point San Pedro Road, San Rafael, to raise funds for the Marin Shakespeare Festival.

Home Ransacked

Hans C. Damberg of 306 Marin Avenue, Mill Valley, reported to the sheriff's department yesterday that someone had pried open a bedroom window of his home, ransacked the house and taken a clock radio and a pair of trick dice.

Orchestra To Feature The Harp

The San Francisco Chamber Orchestra will feature Anne Adams, harp soloist, in a concert scheduled by the College of Marin Concert-Lecture series Sunday at 8:15 p.m. in the theater in the Fine Arts Building.

Harp pieces to be performed are the Concerto in B Flat for Harp by G. F. Handel and "Capriccio for Harp" by Walter Piston.

Other works on the program will be a Divertimento by Bela Bartok conducted by Edgar J. Braun and Sonata for Strings, Opus 6, by Rossini, conducted by William I. Jackson. This piece will be played in observance of the Rossini Centennial.

Wynn Bullock, photographic technical adviser at Monterey Peninsula College and former head of the San Francisco State College photography department, will lecture on photography and conservation at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at the College Theater in the Fine Arts Building at the College of Marin.

Bullock, winner of several photography awards, has prints in permanent collections at the New York Museum of Modern Art, Princeton University, Eastman House of Rochester, N.Y., and the Kalamazoo, Mich., Institute of Art.

Infiltrator Identifies Antidraft 6

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A young Oakland policeman who infiltrated the leadership of antiwar groups yesterday identified six of the "Oakland Seven," the group accused of felony conspiracy to commit misdemeanor acts during antidraft demonstrations in October 1967.

James Bruce Coleman, 22, reported he had attended meetings and training sessions where plans were made for the demonstrations. He said he was given a job as a march monitor for the demonstration to help "scout escape routes."

Coleman identified Michael J. Smith, 27, formerly of Corte Madera and one of the seven, as the man who instructed march monitors in the use of a four-foot long bamboo shaft as a club.

He also reported the parts others of the seven played in organizing strategy which resembled a battle plan.

Coleman was expected to face cross-examination today.

Woman Reports Seeing Span Leap

A Monterey man apparently jumped to his death from Golden Gate Bridge last night, the California Highway Patrol reported.

A witness, Marsha Workman of 127 Edwards Avenue, Sausalito, said she saw a man run to the rail from an abandoned car as she drove past him at midspan at 10:10 p.m. She said the man had disappeared when she looked back in her rear view mirror.

Identity papers and a note left in the car indicated the man was Harry Albert Reed, 41, of Monterey. A drift marker was thrown from the spot but a Coast Guard search did not find a body.

Judge Orders Sanity Hearing At Presidio

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The court-martial of two of 27 soldiers charged with mutiny at the Presidio stockade was halted abruptly yesterday when the Army judge ordered a sanity hearing because he was convinced there was "a serious question of the ability of either of the accused to adhere to the right."

His order followed two days of testimony by psychiatrists on the mental states of Pvts. Louis Osczepinski, 21, of Florida, N.Y., and Lawrence Reidel, 20, of Medford, Ore. when they allegedly participated in a sitdown strike last October to protest conditions at the stockade and the shotgun killing of a fellow prisoner.

Defense attorneys objected to the order. Capt. Brendan Sullivan said, "I am convinced that we would have gotten a verdict of acquittal if he had allowed the court-martial to continue."

Proceedings against nine more of the men accused of mutiny were scheduled to open today. Among the 25 awaiting trial is Pvt. Keith C. Mather of San Bruno, one of the Marin City Nine who chained themselves to clergymen in an antiwar demonstration last summer at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church.

Special Kudo For Quentin's Paper

The San Quentin News has won the grand honorary sweepstakes, the Charles C. Clayton Award, in the 1968 penal press contest at Southern Illinois University.

"We've won the top award so many times they created a new award for us," said Associate Warden James W. L. Park. The regular first place went to the Echo, published at the Texas Penitentiary at Hunstville.

Clayton, a member of the Southern Illinois journalism department and the first person to teach journalism course in a prison, said the News is "one of the leading penitentiary publications in the world," Park reported.

San Quentin inmates won first place in three categories, news, photography and sports.

Marin Artist Is In Traveling Show

Tiburon artist Don Henrico was one of 14 California artists who won awards in Preview 69, the annual traveling show sponsored by art groups of Napa and Solano counties.

Henrico's entry, for which he was given a cash award, was one of the 14 selected from 67 works in the show. The traveling show will be in Vallejo, Feb. 7-10, and at Vintage 1879 in Yountville, Feb. 12-23.

Panel Asks Local Tax For Schools

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A special advisory committee has urged Gov. Ronald Reagan and the legislature to levy a local income tax and a special statewide property tax to finance public education.

The Council on Intergovernmental Relations, created six years ago to study money problems of city and county governments, made the suggestion yesterday.

"The recommendations," the council said, "are designed to assist local governments in closing the revenue gap which they face, but they are designed to do this by redistributing the existing tax burden, and not adding to the tax burden in any way."

The council said the income tax could be collected by the state, but returned to cities and counties for local use. The plan would call for Californians to deduct from the federal income taxes whatever they pay in the local tax. Thus taxes would not be raised. The U. S. Congress would have to approve such a plan.

The statewide tax on nonresidential property proposed by the council would be used to pay elementary, high school and junior college education.

The plan would tax residential property on a formula devised to end the current disparity of education resources between "rich" and "poor" districts, which finds students who live in an area with a broad tax base getting more for schooling than those who live in a district with a small tax base, such as an urban slum.

No Charges Filed

No charges have been filed against William Harold Garner, 30, of Big Sur, and Diony Louise Welch, 32, of Sausalito, arrested last Thursday by the California Highway Patrol on suspicion of possessing marijuana.

Behr Heads Unit Of Save-The-Bay Citizen Alliance

Former county supervisor Peter H. Behr will head the newly formed Marin unit of the Citizens Alliance to Save San Francisco Bay.

He was elected at an organizational meeting Tuesday night at the Civic Center. The alliance is made up of organizations interested in conservation from the nine Bay Area counties.

"The moment of truth is now," declared Behr. "This is the year we save or lose the Bay."

He explained that the Bay Conservation and Development Commission will go out of existence 90 days after the close of the present Legislature, and with it will die its authority to hold a moratorium on filling the bay shores, unless a bill before the Legislature, extending indefinitely BCDC's life, passes.

The purpose of the alliance is to create a permanent successor to BCDC to control fill and development of the Bay.

Emme Gilman of Kentfield was elected vice chairman and will preside at the next meeting of the Marin unit, set for 8 p.m. Feb. 18 at the Civic Center.

Span Bus System Backed

The Marin County Transit District board, four years after it began trying to set up a bus system, last night voted unanimously to hand the task over to the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District.

The action came in a 5-0 vote to endorse the plan by the bridge district's retired engineer, Arthur C. Jenkins, for the bridge district to go into the commute bus business. Directors Dean N. Meyer and William A. Gnoss were absent.

The plan "gives direction to our request for a joint powers agreement with the bridge district," said Corte Madera Town Councilman Edward W. Colthurst, a member of the transit board, which in December voted to contract with the bridge system to jointly finance and operate a bus system.

None of the directors reacted last night, however, to Jenkins' proposal in his plan that the transit district either dissolve itself or limit itself to operating a bus system within the county. "There has been no positive action" by the transit district in its existence," Jenkins commented in his plan.

Jenkins' plan calls for the bridge district to operate a system of 150 new buses. To get it started would cost $8.5 million, and the annual subsidy from bridge funds would be $1,411,000, Jenkins estimated.

The new public system would operate in Marin, San Francisco, Sonoma and Napa counties, and could be in operation within seven months, according to Jenkins.

The bridge district board, which received Jenkins' plan last month, is having it reviewed by two committees. The next public hearing will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Marin County Civic Center.

The transit district directors' high praise for Jenkins' $6,000 plan was in marked contrast to the unanimous rejection they gave last night to their own manager's plan for a $135,000 study of an experimental bus transit concept called Demand Actuated Road Transit (DART).

The concept, which would allow riders to telephone a computer to order service, never has been tried anywhere in the world, directors were told by the president of a Washington engineering firm, John D. Garcia, who flew here to present his proposal. But mathematical models, he insisted, "show it will work under certain conditions."

The three-month study would find out "if these conditions exist in Marin," Garcia said. The federal government would pay up to three quarters of the cost of the study by his firm, he asserted.

The transit district's manager, Seymour Kashin, urged the directors to endorse the study "in spirit" so he and Garcia could "come up with a package proposal," but he got nowhere.

"I'm completely disinterested in this presentation," declared Colthurst. "We've got bigger fish to fry," he added.

Chairman John F. McInnis, noting the fares per mile would vary from one area to another under Garcia's proposal, said it would "invite a succession of violent objections."

Director Louis H. Baar termed the proposal, which envisioned no fixed routes or time schedules, "utter chaos."

"If there's one thing this county doesn't need, it's more studies on transportation," said Director Michael Wornum.

"You know what will happen," predicted director Peter R. Arrigoni, Jr., "we'll have two studies by computers, and then we'll need an unbiased computer to tell us which is right."

McInnis' motion to endorse Jenkins' plan also noted that any bridge board action on it should not preclude the use of bridge funds also to operate a ferry system if one proves feasible.

"I'm just amazed at the unanimity here," said Thomas D. Hardcastle of Novato, a former director of the bridge district. The bridge board long has been ready to finance a bus system, he noted, but never could because the transit board would not say what it wanted.

BOND ISSUE

If Voters Nod, All San Rafael Schools To Get Improvements

(Last of four articles)

There are improvements planned for every school in the San Rafael District if voters approve San Rafael Elementary School District's $2.1 million bond proposal Feb. 18.

Passage would provide $52,100 for proposed projects at the 14 schools, with the two major undertakings at Davidson Junior High School and Santa Venetia Middle School.

Present field conditions and an open ditch at Davidson are hazards, reported Your Elementary Schools Committee, the district's citizen bond campaign organization.

As proposed, $105,000 would be allocated to construct a football field, track and ball fields at Davidson, cover open ditches, provide erosion control and provide another entrance and exit at the bus loading area.

The plans for Santa Venetia School allocate $119,000 to develop the playfields, pave the parking lot, resurface the blacktop play areas and expand and modernize the shop area, and improve other classrooms.

The industrial shop at Santa Venetia is in a former kindergarten room "of rather odd design and is quite inadequate," the committee reported.

The proposed projects for other schools are:

Bahia Vista — Install an entrance and a parking area, $3,000.

Coleman — Complete erosion control, expand the blacktop play area, and improve the site and develop of the playfield, $21,600.

Gallinas — Erosion control and landscaping, $12,000.

Hartzell —Turf the playfields and erosion control, $17,500.

Glenwood — Install a turfed field and sprinkler system, $13,000.

Laurel Dell Intermediate — Acquisition and development of additional land, $72,000. The school is on a very small site, crowded against a ditch, which holds stagnant water much of the time, the committee noted.

Laurel Dell Primary — General modernization of the building, erosion control and resurfacing of the blacktop area, $56,000.

MacPhail — Filling, draining and development of a playfield area, $42,000. "The need for recreation facilities for children and the lack of field development makes this a high priority improvement," the committee said.

San Pedro School — Resurfacing of the blacktop area, landscaping and development of an entrance, $8,000. "The widening of San Pedro Drive has left the approach to the school in a shambles," the committee said.

Short School — Development of a kindergarten outdoor play area, $7,000.

Sun Valley School — Playfield development and fencing along Happy Lane, $5,500.

West End School — Remodeling the central portion of the building, modernization of the administration area and classrooms and install new lighting, $40,500.

Boy Burned Pouring Fuel Into Fire

A 13-year-old Novato boy, apparently ignoring his parents' warnings, poured gasoline onto a fire in the fireplace of his home yesterday and suffered serious burns.

The boy, Michael Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee of 18 Nina Drive, was reported in serious condition today in Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Francisco with burns over 35 per cent of his body.

Asst. Fire Chief James W. Kidder said flames leaped out at the youth when he dumped a quantity of gasoline into the fireplace shortly before 4:30 p.m. He was burned on the right arm, face and chest.

The youth was rolled in a blanket by his brother, Patrick, 15. Both are students at Sinaloa Junior High School.

Mrs. Lee said Patrick's actions saved his brother's life.

She told firemen both boys had been warned Tuesday night about playing with gasoline near the fireplace.

The family moved to Novato two weeks ago. The house was not damaged.

High School Officials Expecting College 'Revolution' To Spread

By DAVID DIETZ

A group of Marin and Southern Sonoma school administrators — told to expect expansion of the type of unrest choking San Francisco State College — said yesterday they were taking steps to avoid a confrontation with militant students and faculty.

The warning that turmoil in education would soon spread to high school and even elementary school campuses came at a program sponsored by the North Bay Section of the California Association of School Administrators at the Marin Civic Center.

Claire Salop, activities counselor in student affairs at San Francisco State College, seemed to sum up the feelings of speakers representing student, faculty and administration at San Francisco State when she said that, unless there is a "total redefinition of education and a redistribution of the resources, there will be a complete revolution."

"I think you had better get used to that word," she said.

Deploring the lack of procedures for student and faculty grievance, Harvey Yorke, director of public affairs at San Francisco State, said, "You are going to get it. It's just a matter of when and how bad you want it to be."

Lesly H. Meyer, superintendent of Petaluma City Schools, who was among about 250 school administrators who attended the session, said during a break in the program:

"I don't know if any school district can be fully prepared (for unrest.) But we try to communicate with students and the local community to avoid this type of thing."

Meyer said he believed turmoil in the schools resulted from "misunderstanding and the fact that we're not meeting some need."

"It's too late when the demands are put on your desk," said Dennie B. Willis, superintendent of the Dixie School District.

Dr. John F. Plank, superintendent of San Rafael schools, reported that administrators in San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools were meeting monthly with students.

"High schools always ape the colleges," he said of possible expansion of the college crisis. "It's the 'in thing' to be militant. Youths are idealists. They want a better world today, right now."

Henry A. Marshall, dean of boys at Tamalpais High School, said it was too late to prepare for revolution — "we're already in it."

The black administrator said that the "racial question is only a small part of the overall problem. It's not what the blacks and other minorities might do; it's what the whites are going to do.

"By nature, blacks and browns don't know the operation because they've never been a part of it. The white kids know the system and they're the ones who are going to blow it up."

James B. Herndon, teacher and author, told the school administrators at the daylong meeting, at which San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto also spoke, that they should stop following educational tradition, such as the use of textbooks and a grading system, and pemmit increased student self-determination.

At one point, Herndon said: "If students want to smoke in the bathroom, let them — even though the state law says no smoking in schools. We get around big laws, such as the one forbidding de facto segregation, so we can get around this one."

Officialdom At College Of Marin Holds Campus Report Senseless

By BRUCE COLEMAN

The staff of the California Coordinating Council for Higher Education was accused yesterday of not doing its homework in its report which recommends that no new junior college campuses be built in Marin or Sonoma counties until after 1977.

Criticizing the report at a press conference at the College of Marin were Theodore C. Wellman, Marin Junior College District board president, Trustee Elizabeth M. Deedy and Louis H. Herkenhoff, acting president of the college.

The report, released to state legislators and the press Tuesday, jeopardizes the college district's chances of passing a proposed 77-cent tax rate increase election April 15 as well as getting state matching funds for the present college at Kentfield and a proposed new Novato college, trustees agreed.

One of the fundamental problems or the report, said Mrs. Deedy, is that its authors ignored the local issues in several districts and made assumptions including one concerning the size of community (junior) colleges.

"This assumption," she said, "was adopted by the council staff without consultation of a broad spectrum of the community. Nowhere do they talk about academic and educational standards or programs and what this size of community college would get as relates to the kind of program we wish to fulfill."

Mrs. Deedy argued that the report suggests longer school days and more night students. But, she said, the state doesn't give the same amount of support for these students —so "you would educate more and get less state money."

Wellman attacked the method of releasing the report, which became public on presentation to the council.

"The staff took the ball and ran with it by sending it all over the state without any appreciation of the council with whom they were working," he said.

After the council saw the report, Wellman said, it extracted the portion on junior colleges without making recommendations or conclusions. The council board is to review and revise this portion in cooperation with local districts, the report to be returned to the council for action in October.

But, said Wellman, the report "puts us in a bad spot" because it says the state should not take any application for funds from any of these school which have adequate capacity now.

"They are not going to review it until October and there will be 30-40 people standing in line for review. So," he added, "we've probably lost one year in our programming and planning."

Herkenhoff said there is no immediate plan in the Sonoma Junior College District for another campus and Wellman responded, "This means that a second campus in Novato is more vital."

(The report stated that a second Sonoma County College District college is proposed in an area north of Petaluma, about 25 miles north of the proposed college in southern Novato.)

Trustees and Herkenhoff criticized the report for implying that there should be a good deal more college regional planning.

"Records show there has been good program planning in our district and even common planning between the Sonoma and Marin districts," Mrs. Deedy said.

Herkenhoff noted that trustees and staffs of both districts will talk about what they can do in regional planning at a meeting to be held at 11 a.m., Feb. 14, at The Lodge in Novato.

Herkenhoff also criticized three other assumptions made in the report. He said it makes no sense to put 10,000 to 15,000 students on every college campus. He complained that the staff report assumes there will be no changes in college attendance or college persistence rates in 10 years.

Moreover, he said, the College of Marin is already "chock" full four nights a week and has an extensive summer session."

(The report suggested full year around use of colleges and more evening classes.)

Asked if there is any other choice for raising money other than the tax increase election and state funds, Mrs. Deedy replied, "No, that's it."

All three said it is difficult to assess the damage the staff report has done to the election.

The full college board will meet again at 8 p.m., today in the Fine Arts Building to decide on whether to withdraw, modify or reconfirm the election. Deadline to do this is today.

Parking Lane Ban Is Refused

The Independent-Journal yesterday incorrectly reported that the San Anselmo Planning Commission had recommended to the city council that a Sir Francis Drake Boulevard parking lane be used for westbound traffic during peak commuter evening traffic.

In fact, the commission rejected, by a 4-1 vote the proposal that parking on the lane from El Cerrito Avenue to Butterfield Road be banned from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. daily. A similar parking ban, however, is in operation on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from the Hub intersection to El Cerrito.

City Engineer Charles R. Leitzell said the commission majority which defeated the proposal felt the extension would only be a short-term solution to the heavy traffic problem and that it would be an undesirable change for the neighborhood.

Sewer Project Approval Voted

The Ross Valley Sanitary District board last night accepted completion of the $159,000 Forrest Avenue Assessment District sewer project.

The district involves 93 building sites in Fairfax. District Mgr. Ralph C. Noah said district residents now have until June 1 to make their own connections to the sewer amin.

The board also accepted completion of the relocation on Stadium Way of a trunk siphon line under the Corte Madera Creek.

Special Raises Weaken 'Hold-The-Line' Attempt

The three-fifths-new Marin County Board of Supervisors has committed itself to come up with a "bare bones budget" for next fiscal year and to endeavor to reduce the $2.27 county tax rate.

In making such a commitment, it has pretty well pledged itself in advance to resist the county employees' association's demands for pay increases that would add a million dollars to the budget — respresenting 20 cents on the tax rate.

Just how well the supervisors will be able to resist these pay demands depends largely on how good a job their negotiators do in private huddles with representatives of the employees. Taking advantage of a new law tailored to collective bargaining concepts, the board has appointed a negotiating committee to do the haggling, and its sessions with employee representatives will not be public.

THE BOARD, HOWEVER, may have cut the ground away to some extent by its own actions.

On Jan. 21, the supervisors unanimously endorsed an immediate raise from $12,000 to $18,000 per year for the court commissioner, with further increases over a five-year period to bring his salary to $21,720.

On the same day, the supervisors — again unanimously — approved raising court reporters' pay from $12,000 to $14,340 immediately, with a five-year step-raise program to bring them to $17,450.

These are raises of 50 per cent for the court commissioner and nearly 20 per cent for the court reporters, with more to come.

EVEN THE MAXIMUM raises sought by the employees' association fall far short of such boosts as these.

The court commissioner is in an unique position. To ease the load of the superior court, he functions in some areas as a judge. Therefore, it would appear his salary has not been commensurate with his duties.

The court reporters, however, are in no such special position. Their duties are the same as they have been in the past.

By granting the court reporters 20 per cent salary increases, the supervisors have, to say the least, weakened their position in resisting demands for increases of less than half that percentage for a majority of county employees.

IT WILL BE HARD for the supervisors, or their negotiators, to convince county employees that this large raise for the court reporters did not come because they had the advantage of special pleading from the judges.

As to that, it would be hard for them to convince us that such was not the case.

The new board of supervisors, it appears, is following the same loose, self-defeating practice of the old board — granting special raises apart from the annual salary review which result inevitably in further increases all along the line when that review is made.

The three new members might be excused for inexperience, were it not that they all have served on city councils and should be well aware of the pitfalls of such a practice.

Competition In Nature

Learning to compete with others is valuable for any child. Competition is the name of the game of life. Marinites who garden or study nature know this is true.

Populations of plants and animals exist in a state of tension. Each living individual has gained its station at the expense of others that lost out in the game of evolution. An organism finds it necessary to adapt to its environment, but after that it must fight against a variety of species that are its enemies. And sometimes it is necessary for it to struggle against its own species for survival.

Nature is fascinating, beautiful and complex beyond the limits of the imagination. But Nature is a stern mother too.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

How Much State Tax Rebate? Watch While It Disappears

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Now that Gov. Ronald Reagan has submitted his 1969-70 annual budget in the amount of $6.2 billion, attacks on it may be expected both from the opposition party and from legislators who will use the document to embarrass the administration if possible.

Most interesting in the budget, as far as the pocketbooks of taxpayers are concerned, is the proposal to return part of the surplus to the income tax payers of the state. The governor says the highest priority in disposal of surplus monies in the state treasury is giving it back to the people, and his administration figures $100 million can be returned.

BUT ALREADY, Assemblyman Jess Unruh, D-Los Angeles, former speaker and Democratic leader in the house, has announced that this return is a "fraud on the taxpayers of California, and a calculated effort to deceive the people of the state."

Unruh charges the administration with attempting to salvage some political advantage from its record-breaking billion-dollar tax increase in 1967 by offering the taxpayers far less tax relief than the people need, and far less than the state budget allows them to have.

Unruh thinks the return should be 20 per cent instead of 10, which would amount to some $200 million.

About all the taxpayers can do is hope for the best and expect the worst.

In the immediate past, tax relief has turned out to be not much more than getting a small refund for property tax relief back from the government, only to find it necessary to turn around and give it back.

If the legislature does provide for reduction of 10 per cent on income taxes payable in 1970, the possibility exists that local governments will increase taxes to eat up the savings.

UNRUH ALSO says that by a state income tax withholding system, another $100 million would be generated from people who now evade their just share of the tax. He claims that a total of $300 million, rather than $100 million should be returned.

Thus, it is easy to see that the fireworks will start when the Legislature gets down to consideration of the budget on the floors of both house,s which probably won't be before June. In the meantime, extensive subcommittee and committee hearings will be held.

With the prospect of a large surplus, it is not too hard to guess that many legislators will start the special appropriation routine for pet projects. Although most of these will be dumped before they really get a start, it is possible that some will get through, thereby depleting the surplus. Fortunately, the governor can use the blue pencil on these if he so chooses.

Almost any way you look at it, the taxpayer is due for an additional beating.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Hospital Raise Branded Robbery

I read in your paper of Jan. 29 that the Marin Hospital District Board raised room rates in the hospitals around the country.

People go to prison for armed robbery. What can be done to these people for enacting these "Jessie James" prices?

What does a person do when he is on Medicare? (Medicare doesn't come close to satisfying these rates!) What does a person do who is not covered completely by insurance and has no way of getting this coverage?

The "poor Doctors" and "poor hospitals" cry — everything has gone up. They blame wages. I know a poor widow who, right now, works her head off in a convalescent hospital in "Marvelous Marin" for $1.75 per hour, while the registered nurses sit and "supervise." She is a practical nurse — nurse's aide.

You don't see any Marin County doctors riding around in 10-year-old cars. At least 98 per cent of them have three cars, a boat, a $75,000 house and have stock in medical buildings, rest homes, etc., etc.

I think the article should read, "Marin Hospital District Rapes People of Marin Again." It is a disgrace.

JACK MORRIS

(Editor's note: Reader Morris mis-read the Jan. 29 report. The Marin Hospital District Board raised room rates in Marin General Hospital. It has no control over the rates in other hospitals in the county.)

Letters to "What Our Readers Say" are welcomed. Only letters with signatures and addresses will be considered. Please keep them under 200 words. We reserve the right to cut letters.

Real Offenders In Air Pollution

I noted with considerable anger the special I-J report, Jan. 30, indicating that the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District is recommending a ban on all backyard burning to become effective in one year.

Well, that's just great! And I'll observe that ban when the BAAPCD issues the same kind of absolute ban on air pollution from all industrial sources in the entire Bay Area, and gives them exactly one year in which to do so.

The deadly stuff, in the main, comes pouring from the industrial complexes ringing the Bay and increasing virtually month by month. And what do they demand for doing at is their obligation, completely, utterly and absolutely? Why they howl for special tax advantages on pollution controls, accelerated depreciation, study after study after study to prove what everyone already knows, special municipal bond issues to pay for pollution controls, on and on ad nauseum.

This kind of crap has been going on for years now. And as of June 18, 1968, in a special pollution feature, the Wall Street Transcript admits that the pollution control market (devices and systems which trap or destroy pollutants) "remains more promise than reality. The promise is great, but the market itself is more propaganda, politics and plans than projects, plants and profits." And my own emperical study from our hill overlooking the Bay I can tell you since 1947 (when it was clear as a bell) gradually in recent years that oily, slimy, brown pall has gotten thicker and thicker and larger and larger — all I presume from that nasty backyard burning! Hah!

Oh, this gas refining bit. You are correct, they can obtain much, much cleaner gas by using more platinum in the refining process. It would cost more but there's the clue. And boy I am ever nuts — many of my investments are in the very plants ringing the Bay. But it wouldn't reduce my dividends by more than a few pennies if these frauds were made to hop to!

Public Servants Prove They Care

Today (Jan. 31) four boys dug up some tuberous plants while hiking in the hills near Fairfax. Unfortunately, they ate these without knowing what they were eating. The plants happened to be a very toxic species, namely water hemlock.

Fortunately, due to quick thinking of a companion and to the Fairfax police, the boys were quickly brought to Marin General Hospital. Once here it seems that the whole emergency room staff worked as a synchronized team to save the lives of these young men.

While this was being accomplished, Officer Paul Simpson had the presence of mind to take one of the unaffected boys back to dig up some specimens of the plants that had been eaten. After these had been brought to Marin General for identification, he also helped arrange transportation of these specimens to the rangers at Taylor Park and to Professor Constance of the botany department at the University of California in Berkeley. Both the Marin County Sheriff's Department and the Highway Patrol assisted in this. Within a short period of time both of these sources confirmed our suspicion of water hemlock poisoning. As I write this, the boys are better and I cannot help but think that it is comforting to live in a community where people seem to care and where our public servants extend themselves for the sake of others.

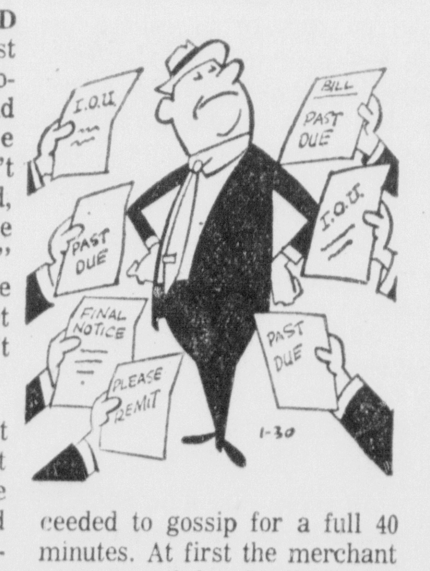
TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

THE BIGGEST DEAD BEAT in town, in debt to just about everybody he knew, proposed to take a new girl friend to the most expensive restaurant in town. "But aren't you afraid," he was asked, "that you'll run into a couple of outraged creditors there?" "Not a chance," sneered the dead beat. "When I get through with them, they can't afford a place like that!"



A PROSPEROUS merchant was enjoying a vacation at Fort Lauderdale when the phone operator asked if he'd accept a long-distance call collect from a friend not noted for generosity. "Certainly not," said the merchant, annoyed, "but if he wants to pay for the call himself, put him on." The friend thereupon caroled a cheery "hello" — and proceeded to gossip for a full 40 minutes. At first the merchant was amused, but finally felt he simply had to say, "I hope you realize that this call is costing you a small fortune." "Think nothing of it," responded the friend cheerily. "I'm calling from your house."

AN EDUCATOR'S VIEW

Special Privileges Disrupt Education

By JOHN W. GILBAUGH
Professor of Education
San Jose State College

Taxpayers are finding themselves mired in the swamps of despair. And for good reason. With so many government bureaucrats committed to the philosophy that simple problems have only complex answers, hope for tax relief does not appear in the offing.

To spend tax receipts in deliberate pursuit of complex answers for simple problems is to fleece the taxpayer for wool to pull over the eyes of the general public. Tax shears for the fleecing are sharpened by the creation of blue-ribbon whitewash committees to which so-called distinguished citizens are appointed. Prime subjects for scrutiny of such committees include the most sensitive areas of contemporary society, such as racism, crime, and various facets of education. And, with the same certainty that we know night follows day, we can predict the committees will tell us the problems they have studied are so complex that simple answers cannot be found, but expenditure of large sums of money on new programs appears to be the only solution.

THERE IS ONE difficulty with these single-track thinkers appointed to blue-ribbon panels. They begin their deliberations with the conclusion that poverty causes nearly all crime and that discrimination provokes nearly all racial violence. Why do so many, whom we trust with the guardianship of public funds, ignore the evidence that crime has increased as poverty has decreased? And, that racial violence has been greatest where discrimination has been least?

Higher education has led the parade in blossoming with experimental programs designed to cure the nation's social ills. Most of these programs, which cost billions of dollars, after failure, have been neatly wrapped and tied in sophisticated rhetoric, and deposited on the academic scrap heap. As a consequence, in nearly every state where education costs are spiraling, the quality of instruction is eroding.

Instead of restoring peace and tranquility to college and university campuses, taxpayers' dollars are being used to fan the flames of violence. No wonder our over-permissive campuses have become rendesvous for agitators, arsonists, burglars, degenerates, rapists and pot-pushers!

ONE EXPLOSIVE area in which eruptions are already convulsing is the enforced special privileges for blacks. Instead of demanding equality of opportunity, leaders of militant Negro pressure groups are insisting on and obtaining legislation which assures special privileges. While most whites subscribe to the principle that blacks, like other Americans, are entitled to equality under the law and equality of opportunity, they also believe that they, like other Americans, are entitled to nothing more.

By enforced special privilege, many unqualified Negroes across the nation have been admitted to college and university programs which require higher admittance standards for whites than for blacks. And, after being admitted they are often permitted to continue on in such programs at academic levels lower than those required for other students — levels of performance by which white students are normally disqualified.

Ironically, militant blacks who fail to meet admission and academic standards required of other students frequently disrupt the instructional programs of all other students by militant confrontation, or by seizing and forcibly occupying campus buildings. And, in some instances, holding hostage members of the college administration or faculty.

THE INSISTENT pressure by militant Negroes, to which school officials are yielding, can lead to similar demands by other ethnic and racial groups. And why not? If such programs, financed by the taxpayer, are provided for blacks, on what basis can they be refused for Mexican-Americans, Irish, Japanese, Chinese, Italians, French, Russians, Jews, or any other ethnic or racial group?

Currently, in some of California's state colleges, teaching positions are being allocated to departments for the employment of blacks or Mexican-Americans only. In most instances, if qualified blacks are not available, positions remain unfilled, though qualified white applicants may have applied. The same true for employment of student assistants, graduate assistants and teaching assistants.

This flagrant violation of American tradition of fair competition and impartial regard on the basis of merit, generates deep-seated antagonism among white people who support the principle of equality of opportunity for all.

Franco's Edict Reverses Spain's Trend To Freedom

By PHIL NEWSOM

Generalissimo Francisco Franco has called at least a temporary halt to the slow progress of the people of Spain toward new freedoms.

Just how temporary will be seen at the end of three months when a "state of exception" granting Spanish police almost unlimited rights of search and seizure and imposing full censorship on Spanish newspapers is supposed to end.

Imposition of the state of exception, short of martial law and similar to a state of siege, followed months of mounting opposition to the Franco regime among students, workers and young Roman Catholic priests.

IN VIOLENT outbreaks, demonstrators have burned the Spanish flag, trampled the portrait of Franco, and even threatened to throw the rector of Barcelona University out of his office window.

Young priests have freely criticized the church hierarchy, demanded closer identification with underpaid workers and encouraged church sit-ins by the wives and relatives of workers jailed as political prisoners.

Leaders of labor groups within Catholic Action, a church-based lay organization, have charged that "Spanish workers are abandoned materially, culturally and spiritually" and have no other recourse than illegal strikes.

Workers and students alike have demanded their own "free" organization not under government control.

IMPOSITION of the new government controls, while not unexpected, came as a defeat for for the young technocrats with whom Franco sprinkled his cabinet prior to 1966 and to Franco himself.

Franco, perhaps not wholly trusting the move toward a relaxation of totalitarian rule, nonetheless had permitted his young cabinet members to relax press laws, to write a new law permitting a degree of freedom of religion and to write into the new constitution a guaranty of freedom of expression.

The last is now wiped out, and whether it will be restored depends upon the old Falangists who formed the political backbone of Franco's support in the Spanish Civil War and upon the army.

PARTICULARLY it must be regarded as a defeat for the man most active in bringing about the relaxation of censorship and the law governing religious worship.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By ROSS DAVIS

Alas! Even Hitchhikers Don't Have Proper Manners Any More

They just don't take pride any more in bumming rides.

Sitting on Marin's curbs with limp thumbs extended. Leaning against sign posts. Perched on bridge railings. Hardly bothering to look at the motorist as he passes. And all this at the worst likely section of road or overpass! Sometimes in the middle of the night.

It makes you wonder where they're going, how much it matters if they get the ride, and if they even care after having gotten there.

ANY HITCHHIKING veteran knows an elemental rule of the road is to expect a driver to halt only in locations of minimum traffic danger. Roads with broad aprons for safe stopping, intersections with sufficient traffic lights to provide time to communicate with a beckoning motorist, or tops of hills with clear views front and aft aren't asking too much.

And if they must have rides at night, surely the walk to the nearest lightpole isn't overtaxing. The motorist has a right to know for whom he's stopping —maybe no longer the right to know for sure whether it's a boy or girl, but at least to discern that it isn't an escaped orangutan, or a tobacco store wooden Indian someone has stashed beside the road for laughs.

And even the amateur should know the need to be alert of eye, friendly and anxious, an earnest thumb snapping up and a smile that cracks the parchment of dust on the teeth. And when and if the vehicle does halt, the need to scramble into that car like a bagful of cats so the driver won't be inconvenienced.

ALL THESE little pre-requisites seem to be largely ignored by the new breed. Neither, apparently, are they aware of motorist — reluctance to halt for two or more persons. What rightly cautious driver is going to put strangers in the seat beside him, and then let more get in behind him, there to be in wonderfully good position to pummel him about the head and shoulders until he surrenders his wallet and car and his senses? Freeways are dangerous enough, as it is.

The lack of luggage bit is baffling, too. Of course many hitchhikers are going only a few miles to classes, job or home. And certainly a few just haven't any belongings. But it seems incomplete, somehow, like checking into a hotel without a suitcase.

Certainly you can't expect them all to have grips plastered with college sticker's and maybe even the proverbial "L.A. or Bust" sign (which does at least show decision and determination) But a show of possessions does go a long way in convincining the motorist that he isn't likely to be thank-you'd in less than a mile and have to go through the whole stopping procedure at a dark intersection so soon to discharge the rider at a destination he could well have walked to, anyway.

Wonderful Commands In Navy In Days Of Peace And Love

WASHINGTON — "Commander, we've got a wonderful assignment for you."

"Yes, sir. What is it?"

"The Navy wants you to take command of a ship, sail it up the Yangtze River, and take mud samples and depth readings of the river bed. We'll give you the latest top-secret equipment for the job."

"That's great, sir. What kind of ship will I have to do this with?"

"WE'RE CONVERTING a sardine trawler into a man-of-war. It will be a top-class ship that anyone would be proud to command."

"What kind of guns will she have, admiral?"

"What do you mean, guns?"

"If I'm sailing up the Yangtze, shouldn't I have some guns on the ship in case anybody wanted to attack me?"

"Why would anyone want to attack you?"

"No reason that I can think of. I just thought if it was a Navy ship it should have some guns on it."

"THE NAVY doesn't have guns to spare for every ship in the fleet. Besides, it might look provocative if you were carrying all that secret equipment and guns, too."

"But suppose I'm attacked?"

"Why would anyone want to attack you? After all, you're only looking for mud samples. Look, commander, if you don't want the assignment, we can always find somebody else."

"Oh, I want the assignment, sir. I just wanted to be clear as to what I was to do."

"Well, we've got the whole thing worked out. You sail up to Shanghai from Formosa, make a sharp left and head straight for Nanking."

"That's the entire plan?"

"Why, what else do you have to know?"

"I'M NOT TRYING to make waves, admiral, but there could be some resistance on the part of the Chinese to my sailing up the Yangtze, even if it's for mud samples."

"The Chinese would never dare attack a U.S. naval vessel. If they did, they know we'd retaliate immediately."

"That brings me to another question, sir. In case I am challenged, will I get aid from any naval vessels?"

"Of course. The Sixth Fleet will be available to give you full protection."

"But the Sixth Fleet is stationed in the Mediterranean."

"I know where the Sixth Fleet is stationed. We can't give you cover from the Seventh Fleet because they're involved in Vietnam; the Pacific Fleet at Pearl Harbor will be on maneuvers. So the only ones available for contingency are ships from the Mediterranean Fleet. You may have to hold off your attackers until they get there."

"WITH WHAT, sir?"

"We're issuing all the officers sabers, and the enlisted men will have cutlasses."

"That's different then, sir. I thought we were going in unarmed."

"If anything happens, commander, all you have to do is give me a ting-a-ling and we'll be there."

"It's good to know I can count on you, admiral. Sir, I know this is probably a stupid question, but is there any way I can scuttle the ship in case you can't get to me in time?"

"WHY WOULD you want to scuttle a good Navy ship?"

"So they wouldn't get all the secret mud-sampling equipment on board."

"Let's cross that bridge when we come to it. The next thing you'll be asking me is what are you supposed to do if you're captured. Ho, ho, ho; ha, ha, ha; ho, ho. That would be a good one, wouldn't it?

"Commander, you're not laughing."

Teen Driver Faces Marijuana Charges

A 16-year-old Terra Linda High School student was booked at Juvenile Hall Tuesday on suspicion of having marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia after five plastic bags, each holding a one-ounce "lid" of suspected marijuana, were found in his car, the California Highway Patrol said.

The patrol said an officer sighted the boy's car weaving on Highway 101 in Terra Linda at 6:30 p.m. and followed it, stopping it in the Northgate shopping center. A search produced a pipe which smelled of burnt marijuana, one bag in the glove box and four bags under the driver's seat, the patrol said.

Dr. Steinman Will Head Panel On Mental Health

Dr. Paul A. Steinman of Ross has been named chairman of Marin County Mental Helath Advisory Board to succeed Dr. Gerald Hill and will chair his first meeting Feb. 20.

Steinman reported today that the board, expanded from seven to 13 by a recent State law, has now been filled.

Members are: Donald Barksdale, Julie Bloomfield, Mrs. Sally Mishkind, Peter W. Palmer, Martha Valliant and Jack D. Williams, new members; and Dr. Richard W. Brunstetter, Dr. Gerald Hill, Mrs. Daniel Collins, Judge Joseph G. Wilson, Ernest N. Kettenhofen and Steinman, continuing members.

Steinman reported that the board has recommended to the Marin County Board of Supervisors that people picked up by police as possibly mentally disturbed be screened for hospitalization at Marin Community Mental Health Center, rather than being sent directly to Napa State Hospital. After July 1 this will be a law, Steinman said, but the board asks that the change be effected as soon as possible.

Arkansas House Passes Bill Easing Abortion Rules

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas House yesterday passed a bill that would clarify and liberalize the state's 100-year-old abortion law.

The measure would make abortions legal in cases where the continuing of the pregnancy would threaten the life or health of the woman (the only provision of the old law), or if there was strong evidence that the unborn child would be mentally or physically defective, or if the pregnancy resulted from incest or rape.

The bill requires a woman to live in the state four months before an abortion can be performed except in cases where the woman's life is in danger.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Mumps Vaccine Recommended For Children Over One Year

VAN DELLEN

The new mumps vaccine is recommended for all susceptible children over one year of age. It produces a mild, noncontagious infection that is followed by lasting immunity. The product is made from live, but weakened viruses, and is safe.

More than a million persons have been immunized without significant side reactions.

The vaccine will be most valuable in susceptible children approaching puberty, adolescents, and adults, especially males who stand a one in five chance of developing testicular involvement (orchitis) if they acquire the infection. Mumps, a common disorder, occurs most often in young school-age children. Fifteen per cent of the reported cases occur after the onset of puberty.

Only one injection is needed. But it should not be given when another infection coexists and especially when there is fever.

Because the product is cultivated in chick eggs, it should not be used by persons overly sensitive to egg proteins. Pregnant women should not receive the live mumps vaccine.

WILL THE VACCINE protect a susceptible person who is already exposed to mumps? This is doubtful, but there is no reason why it cannot be used at this time.

Mumps varies in severity and if the individual just happens to develop a mild attack, the vaccine will be given credit. This is not so farfetched as it seems, because 30 per cent of those with mumps have such mild symptoms that the condition is missed.

Mumps viruses are carried in droplets of saliva and are spread by close contact. About 18 days elapse between exposure and the onset of fever, aching, and swollen glands in the jaws. Ten to 14 days may pass before the swelling subsides.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

REPEATED SUICIDE THREATS

A reader writes: My girl friend constantly threatens to kill herself by taking an overdose of sleeping pills. Do you think that people who threaten suicide are likely to follow through?

REPLY

Yes, especially when they are depressed. Encourage her to see a psychiatrist, even though her threats may merely be used to get attention. P. S. Get a new girl friend — getting married will only increase her responsibilities and anxieties.

LAZY OR ILL?

A reader writes: If a person doesn't feel like working or going any place, how can he decide whether he is fatigued or just lazy?

REPLY

There are many physical causes of fatigue, and the answer depends upon what a thorough examination reveals. In my book, the lazy child develops into a lazy adult. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on fatigue.

AN INACTIVE INFECTION

P. O. S. writes: Is there a difference between a dormant and an arrested case of tuberculosis?

REPLY

Not for practical purposes. When a tuberculous lesion heals, the bacili go into an inactive (dormant) state. This is why physicians seldom use the word cure.

POOR CIRCULATION

A reader writes: Is intermittent claudication due to hardening of the arteries of the legs?

REPLY

Arteriosclerosis is the most common cause of cramping of the calf of the leg after walking a certain distance.

Guilty Verdict Voted In Deputy's Murder

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — Zachary F. Lillard, who pleaded unsuccessfully that he had an extra male chromosome, was convicted yesterday of murdering a sheriff's deputy.

A superior court jury returned a first degree murder conviction against Lillard in the death May 23 of Gordon Joinville, a San Mateo County sheriff's detective who stopped him for narcotics investigation.

FBI agents arrested Lillard in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park and turned him over to Santa Clara County because he was wanted there on burglary, robbery and kidnaping charges.

Overpowering a jail guard, Lillard fled from the jail in San Jose before he could be arraigned on those charges and a day before he was scheduled to be taken to Redwood City to face the murder charges.

He was recaptured on a San Francisco street.

A laboratory test, taken last October at the request of the defendant's attorney, showed that Lillard's chromosome makeup was normal. Attorney George T. Davis had argued his client had an extra chromosome which made him overly aggressive.

Joinville, who like Lillard was 34, had radioed that he was questioning a man resembling the defendant.

The detective's body was found in a patrol car.

Lillard had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. Jurors are scheduled to start hearing the insanity plea on Monday.

200 Mission High Youths Charged After Uproar

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 20 pupils have been charged with truancy and seven nonstudents with loitering after a demonstration at Mission High School.

Arrest of Russell Beebe, of the Third World Liberation Front at San Francisco State College, touched off so much protest from some high school students that the police tactical squad was summoned yesterday.

A noon rally had been held to emphasize 17 demands students made Tuesday night at a school board meeting.

Some of the protesters at that meeting wore brown berets or pins denoting support for the Third World Liberation Front at San Francisco State and at the University of California in Berkeley.

Objection to students having to carry identity cards was voiced by Henry Gibson, a Negro, who said: "Dog 209, go to class. It's like walking into a prison. You flash your ID, yeah, I'm in cell 302, English class."

School principal Harry Krytzer said some of the students demands could not be met.

The demands included more ethnic studies, bilingual required courses and remodeling the cafeteria and better food.

Mission High School is located in the city's Mexican-American district about 10 miles from San Francisco State College.

$800, Worker Said Missing

Missing Monday morning from Fling's Drive In in Kentfield were several days' receipts, the owner reported to the sheriff's department.

David J. Jasinsky of San Mateo, the drive-in owner, said he checked bank receipts when the manager, Richard Vernon Johnson, 26, of 546 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, did not show up for work Monday, according to officers.

Jasinsky reported that receipts totalling over $800 had not been banked last week.

Officers were not able to find Johnson, who reportedly had told friends he was leaving soon for Australia.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Computer, Retarded Boy Star In Newest Ventures

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The producers of television's highest-rated series, "Laugh-In," last night presented a new, weekly ABC-TV half-hour show entitled "Turn-On," and described as follows:

"A visual, comedic, sensory assault involving all media techniques such as graphics, film animation, tape, stop action, slow motion, electronic distortion, computer graphics and even people."

The final reference to the fact that "even people" figure in the entertainment may be intended lightly, but is, in fact, the crux of advance debate on the show. For this is a serious comedy show that strikes uncomfortably close to the nerve in recognizing a subtle, yet terrifying contemporary theme: People becoming objects, packaged in a huge supermarket atmosphere.

"Turn-On" has, as its host, a computer. While it may be compared with "Laugh-In," it is actually much more compressed, not merely because it is 30 minutes shorter than the parent series, but, additionally because it intends to truly assault the senses with bludgeoning speed. It is the most McLuhanesque of all television series to date.

If "Turn-On" fails, it will be, I think, because it is so honest in its attempt to comment on the way we live: I don't mean just the individual sight gags and topical humor, but the adherence to the impersonality it is driving at as an essence of our time.

"Teacher, Teacher," a 90-minute NBC-TV venture last night on "The Hallmark Hall of Fame," concerned a mentally retarded boy and the attempts to bring him out of his shell and into the everyday world. It was a lovely piece of work.

The boy was played by non-actor Billy Schulman, 13, who was proposed for the role by officials of the National Association for Retarded Children. There is no question this added authenticity gave the production a substance it might otherwise not have had. Because of young Schulman, much of the dialogue apparently had to be improvised, and writer Allan Sloane removed his name from the screen credits, using a pseudonym. The concept of his work, however, remains fine.

Nixon said he also expects to visit NATO headquarters while in Belgium.

Nixon also said:

He had "no announcements" to make about the possibility of recalling some American troops from Vietnam, but that the return of American GI's is "high on our agenda."

It is in the interests both of the United States "and in the interest of achieving progress in the talks" for U. S. negotiators in Paris to insist on a separation of the military and diplomatic issues involved.

The United States plans to "assume the initiative" in seeking a Middle East settlement on five fronts supporting the efforts of the United Nations' envoy, Gunnar V. Jarring; bilateral talks at the U. N.; four-power talks at the U. N.; talks with Mid-East countries and moving forward on long range plans for economic development.

His administration intends to give high priority to "new initiatives in the Alliance for Progress." In the past, he said, "There's been too much emphasis on what we could do for Latin America and not enough on what we can do WITH our Latin American friends."

In reply to a question about the meaning of a Pentagon announcement of a suspension of deploying the Sentinel antiballistic missile system, the President said there has been "no progress on arms control talks with the Russians" and that while he was placing emphasis on such discussions, he wanted "some political differences" to be part of such talks. (See story on page 2.)

—He was unwilling to discuss specifics now of the Administration's tax reform proposals. He said Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy would make a preliminary statement tomorrow on the subject.

—That "as a non-smoker" the proposed FCC ban on cigarette advertising on radio and television "would pose no problems for me."

He favors "a massive infusion" of federal financial aid to the nation's schools, with emphasis on the elementary and secondary levels. He said also he beleives federal money should be denied school districts which perpetuate racial segregation.

Of the case of the spy ship Pueblo: "I will axamine the whole record myself with regard to this incident and with regard to seeing that the whole thing can be avoided in the future."

He is in favor of long range, very stringent regulation of offshore oil drilling to prevent repetitions of the current pollution of a vast ocean area off California.

Later the White House supplied this itinerary, but said it was still subject to possible change:

Nixon will leave Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland on the morning of Sunday Feb. 23 and will arrive in Brussels for an overnight stay in the evening.

The chief executive will leave the Belgium capital in the afternoon and fly to London for a stay that will end on the morning of Feb. 26 when he procedes to Bonn.

Nixon on Feb. 27 will make a flying trip to West Berlin, and go straight from there to Rome where he will spend the night.

The President will leave Rome for Paris on the morning of Feb. 28 and will spend two nights in the French capital.

On the afternoon of March 2, Nixon will fly back to Rome for his visit with Pope Paul VI, then make the return flight to the United States that same evening.

Wonder Drug Makers Plan Repayments

NEW YORK (AP) — Five major drug manufacturers said today they have agreed to pay $120 million to settle civil suits charging they rigged the price of a wonder drug antibiotic during the mid-1950s.

The federal government had charged that the drugs were produced for as little as 1.6 cents a capsule but eventually cost consumers 51 cents each.

The money will be paid to cities, state, and counties that have filed treble damage suits. Some will even be paid to consumers who can prove they bought the drug at a rigged price.

Three of the five firms involved were convicted 14 months ago of federal antitrust charges. The Justice Department said they had conspired to control the production and distribution of $1.7 billion worth of the drug, tetracycline, regarded as one of the most effective of the wonder drugs.

The convictions are under appeal.

The five firms in the civil suits are American Cyanimid, Bristol Myers, and Charles Pfizer and Co., the three that were convicted; and the Upjohn Co. and Squibb Beech-Nut Inc.

Late Hours To Resume Feb. 20

Last evening service on Thursday at the Corte Madera office of the Department of Motor Vehicles will not resume until Feb. 20, according to Orin Riley, office manager.

The service — remaining open until 6 p.m. for drivers' license applications — originally was to resume today. It was discontinued so that employees could concentrate on vehicle registration renewals, according to Riley.

He said today the delay in resuming late evening service is because the deadline for vehicle registration renewals was extended from Feb. 3 to a new deadline of Feb. 14.

OUTLAY

McDowell Boulevard from East Washington Street to McNeil Avenue, including a signal system at the East Washington-McDowell intersection. Young estimated costs at $126,000 with the state providing $28,000 for improvements to the Highway 101 approaches.

Automatic gates for the Northwestern Pacific Railroad track crossings on East Washington and D streets were also listed. Young said the city and railroad would split costs with each paying $24,450. Fourth on the list is a traffic signal at the Magnolia Avenue-Petaluma Boulevard-Payran Street intersection at a cost of $90,000.

Young also proposed a traffic signal at the intersection of East Washington and Payran strtets at a cost of $20,000 sixth in priority, but termed "essential" by the engineer is a project to repair, widen and fill the roadway on Magnolia Avenue between Cherry and Keokuk streets at a cost of $8,500.

He said his department would review the condition of all streets and estimated the resurfacing costs to be $42,000 Young also suggested an engineer's report be prepared for a proposed Cherry Valley assessment district to rebuild Magnolia Avenue, Laurel Drive,-Schuman Lane West and Cherry streets. He estimated the report cost at $14,000, saying the city would underwrite the cost, unless an assessment district is formed.

First on the list of projects to come under bond issues was an overcrossing of Highway 101 at Caulfield Lane, long sought by East Petalumans who are often bogged down in heavy traffic at the lone Washington Street overpass. Young said the project would delay costly widening of the other overpass. He said the city's cost would be $349,000 with the state paying for the bridge and fill for approach ramps.

Building an area project that could develop into a truck bypass of downtown Petaluma, the next three plans would provide a better road system for the area east of the river, Young said.

They included widening the Lakeville Highway to four lanes from Caulfield Lane at the proposed overpass to Hopper Street and to D. Street at a cost of $349,000. Carrying the plan further, Young also would widen D Street from Petaluma Boulevard to Hopper Street and include a second lift bridge at D Street to parallel the present span. Street improvements and the new bridge would total $554,000.

Concentrating again on Hopper Street, the plan would widen East Washington Street from Hopper to Redwood Street and include a new traffic signal at Hopper and Washington at a total cost of $135,000. Following the construction plan, East Washington from Hopper to Payran Street would be widened for $300,000 and Payran to Highway 101 for $120,000. Included in the plans is a pedestrian sidewalk for the freeway overpass. Young said it would cost the city $60,000 with the state providing another $30,000.

On the west side of the river on Washington Street, the plan calls for widening to four lanes from Keokuk to Kentucky streets with traffic signals at Keller and Liberty streets at a total cost of $66,000.

The final plan on the priority list would be widening South McDowell Boulevard to four lanes between McNeil Avenue and Sarkesian Drive for $300,000.

Young said the costs for plans under bond issues would total $2,500,000, but if included with the esplanade section of the core area plan to relocate Petaluma Boulevard, it would be increased to $4,635,000.

The council accepted Young's plans for study and agreed to study a bond issue for the June 10 municipal election.

The second most costly plan submitted yesterday was from Richard W. Shollenberger, director of parks and recreation, who offered a five-year improvements project with a price tag of $1,800,850.

First on Shollenberger's list was development of Lucchesi Park for an estimated $1,250,000. Other projects and costs included, a five-acre park adjacent to La Tercera School, $75,000; a 5.3-acre park in Washington Manor, $50,000; a three-acre park at Grant School, $75,000; a park at McDowell School, $22,000; a 6.5-acre park on the river north of Payram Street, $221,850; and development of a city park at the Lafferty Ranch, $107,000.

Shollenberger recommended the parks be financed through bond issues.

Fire Chief Roscoe A. Benton presented projects totaling $270,000 including two new fire stations and an addition to the headquarters station on D Street.

Terming it a ten-year plan, Benton recommended new fire stations on both south and north McDowell Boulevards. Plans are already being prepared for an additional bay to the Central station, and Benton said a search is continuing for a new site on South McDowell. He said Station Two on Payran would be abandoned.

Police Chief Larry D. Higgins did not offer long-range projects, but presented a cost estimate of $44,857 to remodel the police station. He said it would include more office space, a squad room, an interrogation room and a new reception area. Both fire and police addition plans are being prepared for council consideration by architects Richard Lieb and Donald Quaresma.

The council will meet again in study session Saturday at 9 and continue consideration of a June bond issue.

Seaman Says Pueblo Mission Top Secret

CORONADO (AP) — The Pueblo's senior quartermaster said today the intelligence ship's crew was not aware when it sailed what its mission would be and had no occasion to consider whether it was on hazardous duty.

Charles B. Law, backing up testimony of fellow crewmen, told a Navy court of inquiry that the Pueblo's skipper "did a hell of a good job."

Law said of Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher: "I considered it an honor to serve with him . . . I'd like to serve with him again."

Law was a witness before a court of five admirals investigating the capture of the Pueblo by North Kortans a year ago and the imprisonment of the crew.

Rear Adm. Edward Grimm asked: "Did the commanding officer ever brief the ship's company on the mission?"

Law: "No sir . . . the crew was told it was not illegal . . . We were just carrying out our duties."

Law, short and slightly heavy but jaunty in bearing, stared occasionally at the ceiling as he recalled his Pueblo experiences.

He said he first learned of the mission — to check on Soviet ships and North Korean radar facilities—when he had to plot the Pueblo's operating areas on a chart.

Lt. (j.g.) Timothy Harris told the court yesterday that he would follow the skipper anywhere. The 21-year-old freckle-faced junior officer called Bucher "an outstanding leader."

Law said tht closest he could recall the Pueblo coming to North Korean shores was 12.8 miles, when the vessel was turned toward the sea to provide stability while crews were repairing an antenna on the mast.

"As soon as it was reported to the skipper, we moved right out," he said.

"I personally think Cmdr. Bucher is one of the finest officers I know—an outstanding skipper before and during the capture and certainly during detention," said Lt. Frederick Schumacher Jr.

"I don't think any of us could have made it through that eleven months in North Korean prison if it hadn't been for Cmdr. Bucher."

CWO Gene Howard Lacy said he agreed with Bucher's decision not to man the Pueblo's machine guns because "it would have been slaughter for anyone put out there."

Harris and Schumacher also supported the surrender decision.

Adventists To Conduct Stop Smoking Series

A community service aimed at helping people quit smoking and stay healthy will open in San Rafael tomorrow.

The project, sponsored by the Seventh-day Adventist Church, will be launched formally at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at its new offices at 1435 Fourth Street in San Rafael.

Rev. Lester Bennett, minister of the Fairfax Seventh-day Adventist church and director of the project, said the kickoff program will be held tomorrow night on a five-day plan to stop smoking.

He said the group therapy program, similar to others operated by the church in Novato, deals with psychological and physiological aspects of using tobacco.

Interested persons, he said, may call Adventist Community Services in San Rafael.

Read To Take Part In Football Clinic

Dick Read, College of Marin's answer to Vince Lombardi as a builder of champions (junior college version), will share the podium with some of the country's leading university mentors this weekend at the American Football Coaches Association's "Coach of the Year Clinic" in San Francisco.

Headline speaker will be the Coach of the Year, Joe Paterno of unbeaten Penn State. Others on the agenda will be Bill Yeoman of U. of Houston, Bill Peterson of Florida State, Pepper Rodgers of Kansas, Eddie Robinson of Grambling, Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State, John Ralston of Stanford, Doug Scovil of Pacific, Joe McMullen of San Jose State and others.

Read, who is president of the California Football Coaches Association, will step into the spotlight at 12:45 p.m. Saturday to present the J.C. Coach of the Year award.

The clinic, which will attract some 1,200 high school and college mentors, Saturday and Sunday at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel, is managed by Bob Troppmann, the Redwood High School athletic director and football coach.

'Best End In College Football'

Paterno, who coached San Francisco 49ers' No. 1 draft choice Ted Kwalick, told Troppmann: "Ted is the best end in college football. When God was designing football players he had Kwalick in mind."

Incidentally, I have finally discovered why the 49ers made Kwalick and Stanford receiver Gene Washington their top two draft picks. With attendance sagging, they figure this is one way to make ends meet.

Enroute to Seattle for last week's national championships, their car hit an ice slick at Myrtle Creek, Ore., spun out of control and wound up in a ditch.

Undaunted and unhurt, the mother and daughter hitched a ride the rest of the way to Seattle where Juli garnered a silver medal in the national novice ladies division, succeeding on ice where her mom's car had failed. It's still in Myrtle Creek, a total loss.

LOCAL FOCAL — I noticed at last Friday's Marin County Hall of Fame ceremonies that Samuel Blake Chapman was the only one of the five inductees wearing cheaters.

"That's because," said one fan of the former football-baseball hero, "Sam always made a spectacle out of himself."

Packed Gym At Novato For High School Fights

By GARY TISCHLER

The not-quite buried body of boxing raised a teen-aged, brawling head last night in the packed to the rafters gymnasium of Novato High School as nearly 2,000 screaming and cheering fans immersed themselves in the fifth annual Novato Boxing Night.

All those lively bodies turned out in a raging rain and windstorm that would have kept a lot of mailmen at home.

NOSTALGIA

While the youngsters battled it out in three-round bouts, a touch of nostalgia was provided by the presence of three former boxing greats, all looking chipper and youthful, who helped officiate and score the 12 bouts. Bobo Olsen, former world middleweight champion, now living in Santa Roas; Sixto Rodriguez, former California light heavyweight champ, and Pee Wee Thomas, former state flyweight champ, were there, and all agree that this kind of night was a boon for boxing and youth.

The key bout of the night was the welterweight match pitting Wally Campbell against Randy Smith, both seniors, both two-time champs, both gunning for their third titles.

CATCHES UP

Campbell, with an unerring sense of timing, won it, catching up with a tiring Smith, scoring heavily, solidly and repeatedly in the final two rounds, after a fast start by Smith against the cautious Campbell.

Ken Burton, who edged Rich Campbell in the junior welterweight division in a bruising, thrilling bout, was named outstanding boxer.

Most of the fights were real roundhouses, although there was only one knockout, a tenchical knockout verdict by rentless blonde Kevin McDowell over outclassed Terry Barson in the junior middleweight division.

Flyweight Joe Ferretti opened the activities by counter-punching and hammering out a unanimous verdict over Ross Allen to join older brother Mike as a two-time winner. Only a junior, Ferretti fought off the game Allen, who repeatedly waded into a buzzsaw of jabs and sharp rights and lefts.

That set the tone for the next two matches. Larry Yarger won his second title, taking the bantamweight bout from Jim King, another game but somewhat outclassed competitor who carried the fight but not the title. Yarger scored repeatedly on stinging counter punches and classy boxing.

CLOSE BOUT

Then John Mills won a close decision over Kevin Burton to capture the featherweight title, throwing sweeping punches and generally flailing aggressively against the more cautious Burton in a battle of seniors.

In probably the closest battle

Redskins Get Lombardi

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers sent Vince Lombardi to Washington last night, with regret, and without animosity.

By unanimous vote, the 45-member Board of Directors of the National Football League club ended debate, and voted to accept Lombardi's resignation as general manager, releasing him from a contract that had five years remaining.

Lombardi joins the Washington Redskins as head coach, executive vice president and part owner. The Packers said they decided against demanding compensation from Washington for the loss of the man who had built their small-town team into a profitable terror of the gridiron.

Green Bay's executive committee advised yesterday's emergency session of directors that, after his decade of contribution, it would seem unfair to block his desire for ownership in a pro club, something Lombardi couldn't have achieved under Green Bay's non-profit stock system.

Lombardi had said a return to coaching and ownership of a club were the chief appeals in the Washington package.

WITH REGRET

"To a man," Packer President Dominic Olejniczak said, "the entire board felt like the executive committee had felt—that there was not anything we would not have done to keep Vince Lombardi. It is with regret that the resolution was adopted."

In his letter of resignation to the board, Lombardi told directors he had not been dissatisfied with his Green Bay income, but that he could no longer think of himself in terms of being a Packer coach again.

"There has never been a question of remuneration," his letter said. "After making a decision a year ago not to coach, I think you all can well understand the impossibility of my returning to the field in Green Bay. It would be totally unfair to coaches and players alike."

LOMBARDI ROOM

The directors' meeting was their first emergency session since they met a decade ago to hire Lombardi. They convened in the Forum Restaurant's Lombardi Room, with murals of The Man surrounding their deliberations.

Olejniczak told the directors that Lombardi's opportunity to purchase a "substantial block of stock" in the Redskins was a "dominant motivation" in the executive committee's recommendation to free him from his contract.

Lombardi, who had led Green Bay to five NFL titles in his nine years as coach and 10 as general manager, often expressed a hope of gaining ownership in a club. The Packers are a community-owned corporation in which no one is allowed to own more than a token number of shares.

Indiana Bowler Leads Tourney

DENVER (AP) — Don McCune of Munster, Ind., winner of only one tournament last year, took the second round lead late last night in the $45,000 Professional Bowlers Association Denver Open.

McCune, who won a PBA tourney in Fort. Worth, Tex., last year, had a six-game average of 1,360 and hit a single game high of 245 on his last go-round.

He had games of 225, 234, 194, 228 and 245 to edge the first round leader, Pete Tountas of Tucson, Ariz., by only seven pins.

Tountas, who had a big lead after the end of the first round over Jim Godman of Hayward, and Don Lemon of Rochester, N.Y., were in second and third last night.

The five-man nationally televised finals will be held Saturday afternoon.

Nicklaus Jumps To Money Lead

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — As a result of his $30,000 victory in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open last weekend, Jack Nicklaus has taken the lead among golf's money-winners, the Professional Golfers' Association of America announced yesterday.

Nicklaus has earned $35,600 in only two tournaments, almost $7,000 more than George Archer, who won the Crosby the previous week.

The top 10 money-winners:

Nicklaus, $35,600; Archer, $28,953.30; Gene Littler, $24,727.24; Bruce Devlin, $20,634.43; Charlie Sifford, $20,400; Miller Barber, $16,907.50; Bob Dickson, $15,416.67; Harold Henning, $15,365.72; Dick Lotz, $14,702.67; Howie Johnson, $13,826.63.

46 Players Break Par In 1st Round

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) —To hear the so-called experts talk, no one was going to tear up the four courses used in the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament, mostly because tough Tamarisk had replaced easy El Dorado.

It didn't turn out that way in the opening round yesterday as Gene Littler, Lee Trevino, Marty Fleckman and Tom Shaw led a group of 46 players who broke par at the four Desert layouts—Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, Tamarisk and La Quinta.

Most of those same experts said Indian Wells was the easiest course and Tamarisk the hardest. They were dead wrong again as 16 turned in sub-par cards at Tamarisk and 13 at Indian Wells. La Quinta, it developed, was the hardest—in the first round anyways—as only seven players got under regulation figures there.

Seals Whip Defending Champion Canadiens

By DAVID DIETZ

OAKLAND — Clapping in approval, Seals' Gen. Mgr. Frank Selke Jr. led reporters into the dressing room last night after the vital 5-1 victory over Montreal.

"Good effort; great effort, you guys," Selke said.

It was, indeed. Oakland won without the services of three of its best players and regained a three-point lead over the third place Los Angeles in the Western Division of the National Hockey League.

EDGE

The victory also gave the Seals a final edge in the season series with the world champion Canadiens. Oakland won three and tied one of the six games between the clubs.

"It was a good all-around effort and, being shorthanded as we were, the win was doubly gratifying," coach Fred Glover said. He referred to the absence of Bill Hicke, Oakland's top point-getter; Gary Jarrett, top goal scorer, and the team's best defenseman, Bert Marshall. All are injured.

NO CHANCE

"We were bottling them up in their own end," he said of the strong effort against the swift Canadiens. "We didn't give them a chance to get started."

Rookie Brian Perry, Jarrett's replacement, scored two important goals in the second period to put Oakland comfortably ahead, 4-1, after Mike Laughton and Bob Dillabough of the Seals and Bobby Rousseau of Montreal had tallied in the first period.

Laughton scored the Seals' fifth goal in the final period.

The Seals play in Toronto Saturday and Boston on Sunday before returning to the Coliseum Arena next Wednesday night to play the surging New York Rangers.

Ow! Tar Cagers Dump Santa Rosa By 87-39 Count

By KIMO CAMPBELL

Once the College of Marin Tars started running roughshod over their erstwhile archrivals, the Santa Rosa Junior College Bear Cubs, it felt so good they almost didn't stop.

The Mariners delighted about 300 spectators in Kentfield last night by routing Santa Rosa's J.C. basketball team 87-39 in a Camino Norte Conference encounter, at one stage running off 29 points in a row, which ought to be a school and conference record.

13 TARS SCORE

Pat Schafer's 17 points and Ches Bornia's 15 rebounds led the parade as 13 Tars cracked the scoring column. Marin ran up a 33-18 halftime margin, then increased it after the intermission despite substituting, as the whole team rebounded and shot well, while the Bear Cubs seemed unable to buy a shot.

Coach Cal Riemcke was pleased with the team's movement on offense, in working their extended patterns against the Santa Rosa zone for good shots. He praised the entire team for good shooting (35 of 64, 54 per cent) and singled out frosh guard Daryl Ravani for his defense.

"Ravani usually plays good defense," the veteran cage coach said, "but tonight he just let Farrell get a couple early, then shut him off."

Mike Farrell, Santa Rosa's top scorer, averages 18 points per game but was held to four points by Ravani. Bruce Bromley and Len Gotschalk led the Bear Cubs with 10 points apiece.

BIG WHIPPING

The run of points came in the last half of the second span, as Marin went from 56-37 to 85-37 without retaliation. In that span, Santa Rosa missed both ends of two-shot fouls on three occasions, were whipped off the boards, and just generally did not look like a team that has won nine games, nor one that has come within nine points of league-leader Contra Costa.

Riemcke said that his club is already looking forward to Saturday's home game against second-place DeAnza College of Cupertino, which beat Marin 75-74 in January. The game will be

It's Quite A Contrast For Vince

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vince Lombardi, the miracle worker of Green Bay, Wis., population 85,000, may find miracles harder to come by in the nation's capital.

The city isn't only 10 times bigger than Green Bay. It's bigger than life.

In Washington, they play politics.

In Green Bay, losing is a disgrace. In Washington, it's some thing people learn to live with. It happens to one party or the other every four years.

It's happened to the Redskins with regularity since 1942 when they last won a National Football League title.

"Winning isn't the big thing," Lombardi once said. "It's the only thing."

Would a Washington Senators' baseball fan say the same thing?

Lombardi must teach Washington that winning can be fun. He must persuade his players that faith, family and football are the bedrock of success.

In swinging Washington, that may go over like a new edition of The Life of Millard Fillmore.

The telephone company needs 32 yellow pages just to list Washington's drinking places.

S.F. Skipper Scores Home Run With Press

Affable and articulate are adjectives that accurately describe Clyde King. The new manager of the Giants is easy to speak to; courteous and amiable in his responses to questions; mild and gracious in his manner.

Obviously, there is a slight difference between the personalities of King and his predecessor, Herman Franks, a brusque man whose rough and short manner did not endear him to dressing room reporters.

KING MADE A big hit with two score press, radio and television representatives the other day when he outlined his spring training plans without once raising his voice. He is a soft spoken southern gentleman from the Carolinas where he was born and still lives.

"I would have to say," said Joe Sargis, a United Press veteran who has been covering the Giants through five managerial regimes, "that the dressing room outlook this year is good."

SARGIS MADE this observation before five minutes elapsed at King's first press conference. The consensus after the conference ended corroborated Sargis' snap judgment. It was generally agreed among the men who cover the dressing room that no longer will they suffer through sulphurous sessions.

There were occasions when Franks' triggerlike temper exploded with volcanic fury, particularly after sqeaking one-run losses. During Franks' four-year regime as manager the Giants lost quite a few one-run games so his volatile eruptions were not isolated incidents.

ONE OF HERMAN'S favorite expressions was: "What kind of a question is that?" Questions that probed sensitive issues could cause Herman to spew his favorite retort with venomous expletives.

"Not at all," says Sargis. "It just seemed that way when delicate questions had to be asked. Some of the younger reporters, possibly intimidated by Herman's explosive replies, hesitated to ask the tough questions. I merely was doing my job in putting probing questions to Herman."

SARGIS' EXPLANATION of the situation makes sense. He definitely is not a sadistic fellow. He's just a very competent reporter, unafraid to ask embarrassing questions that good newspapermen sometimes must ask to put a story in proper focus.

"Actually," Sargis insists, "I might miss Herman. I got a Christmas card from him. Could he be mellowing after four second place finishes with the Giants?"

5 Marinites In Oakland Auto Show

Five Marin County entries will vie in the 21st annual Grand National Roadster Show that opens a 10-day run Feb. 14 at the Oakland Coliseum.

The delegation will represent San Rafael, San Anselmo, Tiburon and Novato at the nationally-known Oakland event, according to show general manager Mel Fernandes.

More than 200 hand-crafted hot rods, custom cars, sports vehicles, dragsters, dune buggies, motorcycles and powerboats will seek awards valued at $12,000 during the show.

San Rafael's entry will be a custom show motorcycle built by Roger M. Hawkins, 25, an auto mechanic of 185 Woodland Avenue.

CYCLE

San Anselmo's two entries include a street rod coupe built from a 1932 Ford by Thomas J. Passantino, 27, a systems engineer of 60 Parkway Avenue, and a customized street motorcycle by Tony Ialopi of 111 Broadmoor Avenue.

Tiburon will be represented by a customized competition hardtop named "Moonduster" and created by Peter H. Bert, 36, an architect of 1915 Mar West.

Novato's exhibit will be a customized three-wheel motorcycle entered jointly by Michael McGinnis, 31, a fry cook, and Thomas Palmer, 29, a heavy equipment operator.

Entries including the nation's top show cars will compete in 44 display classes during the Oakland event for more than 100 awards headed by a $5,000, nine-foot trophy for "America's most beautiful roadster."

Show doors at the Coliseum's Exhibit Hall will be open from 6 to 10 p.m. weekdays and from 1 to 10 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and Feb. 21, Washington's Birthday.

PRO FOOTBALL HALL OF FAME

Coach, Four Ex-players Win Honor

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Earle "Greasy" Neale, a coach who led the Philadelphia Eagles to two National Football League championships, and four former stars—Turk Edwards, Leo Nomellini, Joe Perry and Ernie Stautner — have been elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio.

Announcement was made today by Dick Gallagher, director of the Hall.

The five will join 54 other pro greats in induction ceremonies in September.

Neale, a former big league baseball player with the Cincinnati Reds and a Football coach at seven colleges, led the Eagles to the Eastern titles in 1947, 1948 and 1949 and the NFL championships in the latter two years.

Nomellini, Perry and Stautner were honored at the earliest pissible time. A player must be retired for at least five seasons before becoming eligible for membership.

LEO NOMELLINI
Two former . . .

Nomellini, a tackle for the San Francisco 49ers, won all-league honors six times, twice as an offensive player and four times for defense. He played in 174 consecutive games, the third best longevity mark in NFL history.

Perry, a standout fullback for most if his 16 seasons including 14 with the 49ers, won the rushing title in the now defunct All-American Football Conference in 1949 and took it twice in the NFL, in 1953 and 1954.

In the NFL he ranks behind only Jimmy Brown and Jimmy Taylor in almost all lifetime rushing categories.

Stautner, a tackle for the Pittsburgh Steelers, was an almost perennial choice for All-NFL honors in 14 seasons—1950 through 1963. From 1953 until 1962, he missed only one Pro Bowl Game.

Edwards, a standout tackle and later a coach for the Redskins of Boston and Washington, made the NFL's all-league team four times in a nine-season career in 1932 through 1940. A knee injury forced the retirement in 1940 of the 6-foot 2½, 260-pounder.

JOE PERRY

Czech Amateur Stuns Ashe In Tennis Tourney Opener

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Top-ranked Rod Laver of Australia led a field of 16 professional and amateur players into tonight's second round of the $7,000 Philadelphia International Indoor Open tennis singles championships.

But the top-ranked amateur, second-seeded Lt. Arthur Ashe, U.S, Amateur and Open champion, was missing. Ashe was eliminated by Jan Kodes, the Czech Amateur champion, in a stunning 6-4, 4-6, 6-2 upset in the opening round last night.

Laver, who defeated Pierre Barthes, French pro, 6-3, 6-1, in the opening round, faces Butch Buchholz of St. Louis, 6-4, 14-12 victory over Herb Fitzgibbon of Garden City, N.Y.

Boat Registration Extended 10 Days

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Department of Harbors and Watercraft has given Californians an additional 10 days to renew the registration of their boats.

Terra Linda was handicapped by the absence of star shooter Pat Purcell, the leading Marin County Athletic League scorer with a 20.8 average. Purcell has a sprained ankle.

Terry Bennett had 12 point points and Bill Hoge 11 for the Tarbabes, now 8-5 on the year.

of the night, Steve Law a skitterish jumping jack who waded and flitted into Mike Wilburn, wound up with the lightweight title on a not-too-popular decision despite steady and solid hitting by Wilburn in the late going.

Then came a brawler as Burton, hitting hard for three rounds, punched and hammered out a decision over the younger Campbell for the junior welterweight title, repeatedly fighting off late-round flurries by Campbell in a deceivingly bloody battle, made red by Campbell,' bleeding nose.

SLOW START

McDowell, after slow starts in each round, had Barson defendless, arms down in the first two rounds, and after another solid right again jolted Barson, Olson stopped the bout at 25 seconds of the third round.

Neal Given, solid and sturdy, whipped a game, smiling and mustachioed Mike Morris for the middleweight crown, scoring a knockdown in the first round, and overcoming hard-hitting and swift ducking by Norris

HEAVIES

STARTING POINT FOR PICKING 5-7
NORMAL 1st BALL STARTING POINT.

The 5-7 split is one that can be made. The ball should be rolled to the right of the 5. Move slightly left on the alley and aim your ball to the right. Even if you're off a little and the 5 misses the 7, it may bounce off the sideboard and pick it up anyhow.

Seals Loan Goalie To Canucks

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Seals said yesterday that they were sending veteran goalie Charlie Hodge to Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League for at least 14 days.

The move was made so Hodge would be able to get in shape for the National Hockey League playoffs, the Seals said. Most of the goal tending has been done by rookie Chris Worthy and Gary Smith lately.

"Charlie was just not getting enough work here," said general manager Frank Selke, "and it was showing in his play."

Four-Golfer Deadlock In Bob Hope Classic

Fleckman, the long-hitting soph from Port Arthur, Tex., and 28-year-old Shaw, who sometimes washes his own clothes to save money, bagged five under 67s at Tamarisk. Trevino, the U.S. Open champ who seems to have found his all-winning 1968 groove the last two weeks, shot a matching 67 at Bermuda Dunes, and Littler, who was second in the San Diego Open last week, got a 67 at Indian Wells.

CHANGE COURSES

As a result, the quartet led the field by a stroke at the start of today's second round with everyone in the pro field of 136 changing courses. They'll all have one whack at the four courses and the low 70 and ties will go on to play the final round in the 90-hole Hope Classic on Sunday at Indian Wells.

Tony Jacklin, the good-looking young English star, turned in the best round at La Quinta—a four under 68. He was in a seven-man group tied at that figure. The others were Joel Goldstrand and Buddy Sullivan (Tamarisk), Jim Ferrier, Jim Wiechers and Jim Colbert (Indian Wells) and Ken Still (Bermuda Dunes).

The three-under-par 69 group was made up of an even dozen—Dave Bollman, Charles Coody, Bruce Devlin, Jerry Mowlds and Ray Floyd (Tamarisk), Kaiser champ Miller Barber, Art Wall, Tom Nieporte, Bobby Brue and Rod Funseth (Indian Wells), and Bob Duden and Dave Hill (Bermuda Dunes).

TIED AT 70

Former Hope champion Doug Sanders, Frank Beard and Gay Brewer were among another dozen tied at 70 while the Lotz brothers, Dick and John, and Billy Casper were in a group of 11 tied at one-under 71.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer, San Diego winner Jack Nicklaus, Dave Marr, Deane Beman, Harold Henning of South Africa, Martin Roesink of Holland and George Knudson of Canada topped a field of 19 with even par 72s.

Masters champ Bob Goalby had an opening round 73, PGA champ Julius Boros a 75 and Charley Sifford, who won the Los Angeles Open a month ago to kick off a $5.5 million year on the PGA tour, had an 81.

Trevino had seven birds on his card but he missed making it an even more spectacular round when he took a double bogey six on the par-four, 435-yard 16th at Bermuda. Trevino got in trouble when his second shot flew over the green and he chipped badly coming back.

If you think Sifford had problems, you should have seen what happened to poor Reeve McBee, the man who surprised everyone when he shot a course record 64 in the second round of the 1966 U.S. Open in San Francisco. McBee, playing at Tamarisk, had two holes on the back nine in which he took 10s and another in which he got a seven. His card showed 40-55—95.

First money in the Hope is worth $20,000. There is an additional purse of $22,000 for the pro-am phase of the tourney. A total of 408 amateurs are entered, which was mainly responsible for slow play in the opening round.

Shaw and Trevino were tied for the lead in the pro-am with 16 under par totals. The competition is through 72 holes with the pros changing teams (three amateurs each) every day.

Another NBA Star Injured

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gus Johnson, Baltimore's All-Star forward, has joined Boston player-coach Bill Russell on the sidelines as injuries continue to shake the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division title contenders.

Johnson suffered a torn ligament in his left knee in a third quarter spill last night as the first place Bullets hung a 124-112 setback on the crippled Celtics. Boston lost Russell last Sunday when the 6-foot-10 pivotman suffered strained knee ligaments in a game against New York.

Earlier, Cazzie Russell of the Knickerbockers and Luke Jackson of the Philadelphia 76ers were shelved for the season with injuries.

Johnson also was feared lost for at least six weeks. He collided with teammate Kevin Loughery and fell heavily to the floor. Physicians said the 6-foot6 Johnson would undergo surgery today.

Lombardi To Washington

ports he was offered $1 million in Redskins stock at half price. Redskins officials declined to confirm that Lombardi would also be paid up to $110,000 annually under a pact running five or more years.

"Stock in football corporations is difficult to obtain, and, in all probability, this would be the chance of a lifetime for Mr. Lombardi," Olejniczak told the Packer board.

"Lombardi has served us well, far and above the call of duty, and we felt it would be a dog-in-the-manger attitude if we were to stand in his way to obtaining a very profitable and substantial interest in the Washington ball club," he told directors.

NO COMPENSATION

Olejniczak said directors decided not to ask Washington to compensate the Packers for Lombardi. But he said there was much discussion of reimbursement.

"It is difficult to measure true value of compensation," the Packer president said. "If someone had offered me 15 players from any one club for Mr. Lombardi, I would have turned them down."

"If someone had offered me $1 million, I would have turned them down. I would not cheapen this deal by measuring him in money or a couple of players," he said.

"We will always be indebted to Vince Lombardi," he added. "Whatever we have done for him, he certainly was deserving of it, if not more."

LAST IN '58

In 1958, the Packers finished dead last in the NFL Western Division with a 1-10-1 record.

Lombardi, a New York native who had been a defensive coach with the New York Giants, arrived in January 1959, and the Packers never again knew a dry spell until the 1968 season—the one that followed his decision to abandon his coaching duties to become full-time general manager.

The first year, 1959, Green Bay finished 7-5, and Lombardi was selected NFL Coach of the Year.

The next season, the Packers won their division title, then took NFL championships in 1961, 1962, 1965, 1966 and 1967.

DOUBLE TITLES

Green Bay defeated Kansas City in the first Super Bowl after the 1966 season, and repeated their conquest over an American Football League champion by crushing Oakland the next year.

On Feb. 1, 1968, Lombardi's unprecedented era of successful coaching ended when he turned over the field duties to his long time aide, Phil Bengtson.

It was the first time the general manager, absolute ruler of Green Bay football, ever delegated a major share of authority.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Feb. 6, the 37th day of 1969 with 328 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1778 Massachusetts ratified the Constitution.

In 1943 Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was named commander-in-chief of the Allied Expeditionary Forces in North Africa.

A thought for the day: Henry Clay said, "If you wish to avoid foreign collision you had better abandon the ocean."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

In No-Trump, Lose The Early Trick To The Harmless Enemy

When you don't know which suit to tackle first at a trump contract, start with the suit that gives the lead to the harmless opponent. You may not be deliriously lucky with that suit but at least you'll buy enough time to develop the tricks you need.

TAKES WITH KING

West opened the three of hearts, East put up the jack and South won with the king. South thoughtlessly led a diamond to try a finesse with dummy's jack, and by the time he looked up he was down.

East won with the king of diamonds and returned the seven of hearts. South tried a finesse with the ten, losing to the queen, and back came a heart to the ace. Since declarer needed a club trick for his contract he led a spade to dummy and returned a club.

West took two clubs and two more hearts, and South was down two.

WEST IS SAFE

South should see from the start that West is the harmless opponent. If West wins an early trick he cannot hurt declarer by leading hearts since that would allow South to win a trick with the ten of hearts. For this reason South should plan to tackle the clubs first; if the queen of clubs is in unfavorable position, harmless West will gain the lead.

HOPE FOR HEART

South leads a spade to dummy in order to return a club. West wins with the queen of clubs and switches to the eight of diamonds in the hope of getting East to return a heart.

South must put up dummy's ace of diamonds, refusing to finesse. He leads another club from dummy, forcing out the ace. Now South is sure of 10 tricks instead of only seven — all because he kept the dangerous opponent out of the lead.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ 6 2
♥ Q 9 4 3 2
♦ 8 3 2
♣ A Q 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 1 no-trump.

You are strong enough for a response, but not quite strong enough to bid two hearts. If partner had opened with one club or one diamond you would have bid one heart; your hand is strong enough to show a new suit at the level of one.

Name's A Mystery

TOKYO (UPI)—The Japanese people, who trace their recorded history back to 660 B.C., still cannot decide the name of their nation. Some Japanese call it Nippon. Others say Nihon. The government has never settled the question. The name "Japan" was given to the northeast Asian islands by early European explorers.

OFFICE WALLS TUMBLING DOWN?

The bosses of America are doomed to lose their main status symbol — privacy — according to forecasts by decorators. The new thing is "office landscaping" with functional groups of furniture separated only by low cloth screens or bookshelf dividers, and no walls behind which the boss can relax or hide from persistent salesmen. SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Some Treasury Notes Offering High Yields

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like to buy some Treasury notes or bonds. Do they have any risk? — J.L.

A. Prices of Treasury bonds and notes have been in an extended — four years — slide, and further downside risk is possible. However, if you plan to hold to maturity, you will stand to reap a small profit from currently discounted levels. One-to five-year maturities are selling to yield 5.5 to 6.125 per cent and certain issues are acceptable at par in payment of federal estate taxes if owned by the decedent at the time of death.

Treasury bills, which are almost as liquid as cash, are available in 10 to 350 day maturities and yield around 6 per cent. These debt securities can be acquired either through a broker or a commercial bank.

High yields are attracting some money that normally would be channeled to savings, a phenomenon known as disintermediation. However the diversion of funds as yet has not been excessive, with net outflow of $30 million reported by 500 mutual savings banks in December.

In making your selection be certain that the interest gained is not canceled out by commission or taxes.

Q. I have purchased 100 shares of two funds and have asked to have dividends in cash. These shares were bought for retirement in 12 years and I am now having second thoughts about the dividends. Should I have them reinvested? — B.A.

A. Reinvestment of capital gains and dividends can, over a period of years, add to the value of your holdings. For example: By reinvesting distributions in one of the most widely held growth-income funds, total value after 10 years was 18 per cent greater than if distributions had been accepted in cash. One of the popular gorwth funds showed an even greater differential of 24 per cent. Last year 57 per cent of fund shareholders took advantage of reinvestment compared with 30 per cent in 1956.

For the person acquiring shares for retirement five to 10 years away the advantages are obvious, especially since reinvestment of capital gains is done at net asset value.

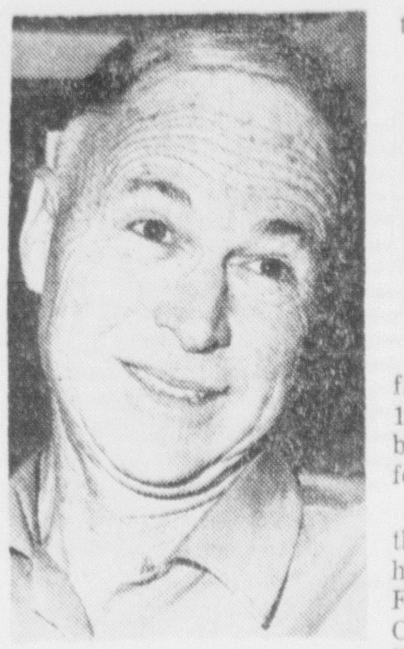
CREDIT STRUCTURE CRISIS

Marinite Strongly Criticizes Banks

By JOANNE GRANT



ROBERT DE FREMERY
Bank critic

If a major crisis threatens banks, they will change their methods of operation. And if they don't change their methods, there will be a crisis, predicted Robert de Fremery, outspoken bank critic who lives in San Anselmo.

"There was a severe credit crunch in 1966 and we are entering another crunch right now — at the same time the world as a whole is faced with the collapse of the credit structure," the San Francisco businessman said in an interview at his home at 203 Bolinas Avenue.

The first crack was the devaluation of the pound, de Fremery said. "Since then, the number of crises has become more frequent."

He maintained the large-scale hoarding of gold is withdrawing the very basis of the credit structure. "This is bound to precipate a wholesale loss of confidence."

"If one needle doesn't prick the inflated balloon another one will," he warned flatly.

The 52-year-old spare-time economist sees the country's banking system as the culprit in business cycles, including depressions and recessions. The problem, he believes, is the practice of allowing banks to "borrow short and lend long."

He explains it this way: "Bankers borrow the money you deposit in checking accounts withdrawable on demand and lend it for as long as 90 days and even six months. They borrow the money you put into savings accounts withdrawable on 30 days notice and lend it for as long as 20 years."

Thus, he explained, bankers become obligated to pay out money that doesn't exist.

But de Fremery believes he has a solution.

He has proposed a 20-year program which would make banks fully liquid and would eliminate $309.6 billion of government debt without altering the supply of money or increasing taxes.

Under his stabilized system, banks would be able to lend only as much money as they actually have.

Demand deposits, such as checking accounts, de Fremery explained, would be backed by actual cash in the bank.

Loans would be made with funds obtained by selling certificates of deposit of varying maturities from 30 days to 20 years. Money could be loaned only for the amount of time on the certificates of deposit.

Eminent economists and even some bankers have agreed with de Fremery. His theories, written in layman's language, have appeared in financial journals and books, including the new "Death of the Dollar" by William F. Rickenbacker.

The major reason the system, first proposed as early as the 1920s, has not been adopted is because it is not politically feasible, he said.

Many persons also believe that the possibility of bank failure has been wiped out by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, an institution de Fremery calls a "psychological gimmick."

He pointed out that in 1957 the FDIC in its annual report admitted: "There is no question that the present deposit insurance would be entirely inadequate should, for example, a situation similar to that of 1930-33 recur."

"A failure of just one of our major banks would topple the entire FDIC," de Fremery maintained.

His contentions are backed by research which began in 1937, when, after two years at the University of California, he became disillusioned and dropped out to do independent research.

His college courses, he said, weren't answering his questions about the underlying causes of the depression.

He spent three years studying the problem intensively and then worked in a federal reserve bank and commercial banks.

He has continued his research with fascination and has accumulated thick, meticulous files on economics, including letters from Herbert Hoover, explaining his views of the depression, from economists and bankers, disagreeing and agreeing with de Fremery's views.

A slightly built, mild man, de Fremery becomes intensely enthusiastic when he discusses his unusual hobby — and explains that he went into his totally unrelated business, selling a preparation for athletes foot, because he didn't feel a bank critic should work within the system.

He joined Onox in 1947, the same year he and his wife moved to Marin to raise their family. They have four children, Phillip, a classical guitarist with the San Francisco Conservatory of Music who is married and living in San Francisco; Mrs. Kate Burnett, also married and living in San Francisco; Mary, a freshman at the University of California at Santa Cruz, and Dorothy, a junior at Redwood High School, Larkspur.

Aqueduct Repair Pact Reviewed

The North Marin County Water District board Tuesday night reviewed a three-powers agreement on maintenance of Russian River aqueducts, according to Asst. Mgr. Eugene Churchill.

The agreement, not yet in final form or adopted by any of the parties, would be a mutual aid agreement to maintain present of future aqueducts from the Russian River to Marin County in event of an emergency, Churchill said.

The agreement would be among the Sonoma County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, the Marin Municipal Water District and the North Marin County Water District.

Counties Added To Disaster List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen more California counties have been added to those designated a disaster area because of mudslides and heavy rain, a California congressman said yesterday.

Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Second District, said the White House informed him that after a survey the other counties were deemed sufficiently damaged to be included.

The additional counties are El Dorado, Kern, King, Madera, Mariposa, Merced, Modoc, Mono, Monterey, Orange, Placer Sacramento, San Joaquin, Shasta, Stanislaus and Tuolumne.

New President For Bonn's Parliament

BONN, Germany (AP) — Kai-Uwe von Hassel was elected president of the West German Bundestag or parliament yesterday.

He succeeded Eugen Gerstenmaier, who resigned Jan. 23 under pressure of public criticism for collecting $70,250 in salary he said he lost under the Nazis.

Novato To Host Workshop On Kindergarten Tests

The speech testing program underway in Novato kindergartens for the past three years, will be the subject of a three-day testing seminar in March.

Twenty-two school speech therapists from throughout Northern California will spend March 6-8 in Novato studying the school district's project.

It was started originally with a $7,820 grant from the William Babcock Endowment Foundation of San Rafael with the understanding that what was learned in the program would be made available to other schools in Marin County. This year, it is financed by a $10,750 federal grant under the Elementary-Secondary Education Act.

Barbara Hoadley and Penelope Wayte have been in charge of the program to develop tests for kindergarten pupils. When tests show a speech defect, therapists try to determine if it can be corrected.

Defects run from minor speech flaws such as lisping, baby talk or slurred sound, or some others more serious symptom. The tests will be given to 200 kindergarten children who have been selected throughout the Novato district during the seminar.

Local speech therapists R. Lynn Campbell, Gail Friedman, Barbara Schmidt and Orene Sanders will assist in the group testings.

Following the three-day seminar, Mrs. Hoadley and Miss Wayte plan on having their tests and scores system published for use in other districts.

College Approves Co-Ed Housing

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Brown University's interfraternity council passed a resolution last night aimed at establishing a coeducational housing program at Brown.

The resolution urges fraternities and "other members of the university community" to investigate the possibility of such a program and to encourage it.

Lonn Shinn, a junior who presented the resolution, said Pembroke women are invited to meet tonight with Brown men at Alpha Pi Lambda Fraternity, of which he is president, to discuss the issue. Pembroke College is Brown's sister school.
